Growing Up Together

Through the Looking Glass

Through the looking glass is often the way we look at our past. We look back as if the past was only a tale told by movies or (oh no!) our parents. But 1960 was a real year, and it just happened to be the year Granite Hills opened its doors to students.

Some things about Granite Hills students have changed, like their music, dress, and outlook. The women's lib movement of the early 70's drastically changed the face of student government. The first 15 ASB presidents were male, while the past 4 have been female. That same era saw the abolition of dress codes, so now students express themselves exactly as they wish through their dress.

In other ways, Granite Hills students will never change. They will always have an intense pride in their school. They still hate homework (maybe they hate it more) to which Mr. Stowers or any of the other teachers who have been here all 25 years can attest.

The first 15 ASB presidents were male, while the past 4 have been female.

The most important element of high school remains friendship. Whether one is a member of the class of '60 or class of '85, the mention of an old friend will always evoke fond memories of the years spent growing up at Granite Hills.

Carla Kendall, Tanya Hightman, Karen Robinson and Susan Hammond demonstrate their friendship. These four have been practically inseparable all year.

Jodi Crenshaw models the modern cheer uniform. It is hard for us to imagine cheerleaders dressing as Alverda Davis did in 1960.

Working hard during both lunches is part of Marjorie Turk's job as ASB president. Males used to dominate this position, but Marjorie is the fourth female ASB president in a row.

Both cars and clothes have grown more sophisticated since 1960 as Jill Toom shows us here at Bob Stall Chevrolet. The height of fashion in 1960 is shown in the inset.

Looking bored, Scott Smith sits in the midst of the infamous quad litter.

Many students litter because their friends do.

Several students like Victoria Smith and Gretchen Hubble walk over to the park before and after school to smoke since it is prohibited on campus. Peer pressure introduces many teens to smoking.

Searching through students lockers for drugs is not Mr. Arens' favorite duty, but it must be done. The drug scene began about 1965; before that, the "hardest" drug used was usually beer, and that was used by a small minority.

Growing up is no longer the simple task it used to be. The kids today are being pushed from all sides — parents, teachers, the media, and especially friends. Pressure from friends is called peer pressure.

Peer pressure often gets kids into trouble by forcing them into activities in which they may not want to participate.

Kids may get teased about being straight or simply be left out of the group because they choose not to drink or take drugs. This exclusion often prods kids into changing their minds so they can become part of the group.

Other kids may start getting poor grades because "it's not cool to be smart."

Or they may get involved in sex because they feel like they are the only ones in the world who haven't "done it" yet.

Whatever the pressures are, an adolescent who has a strong sense of self-worth is better prepared to make up his own mind, which ever way he decides. Peer pressure has been around for a long time, but today the pressure is tougher than ever.

Kissing goodbye as they go to separate classes is a daily ritual for couples like Trisha Pearson and Richard Stewart. Students would have been sent home if they were caught kissing in 1960.

Jeff Meehs, Gretchen Hubble, and Myra Boyett hang out with other "mods" at Kennedy Park. Adolescents dress like their friends to be accepted into the group, be it the mainstream or a subculture.

Peer Pressure

Our World Grows With Us

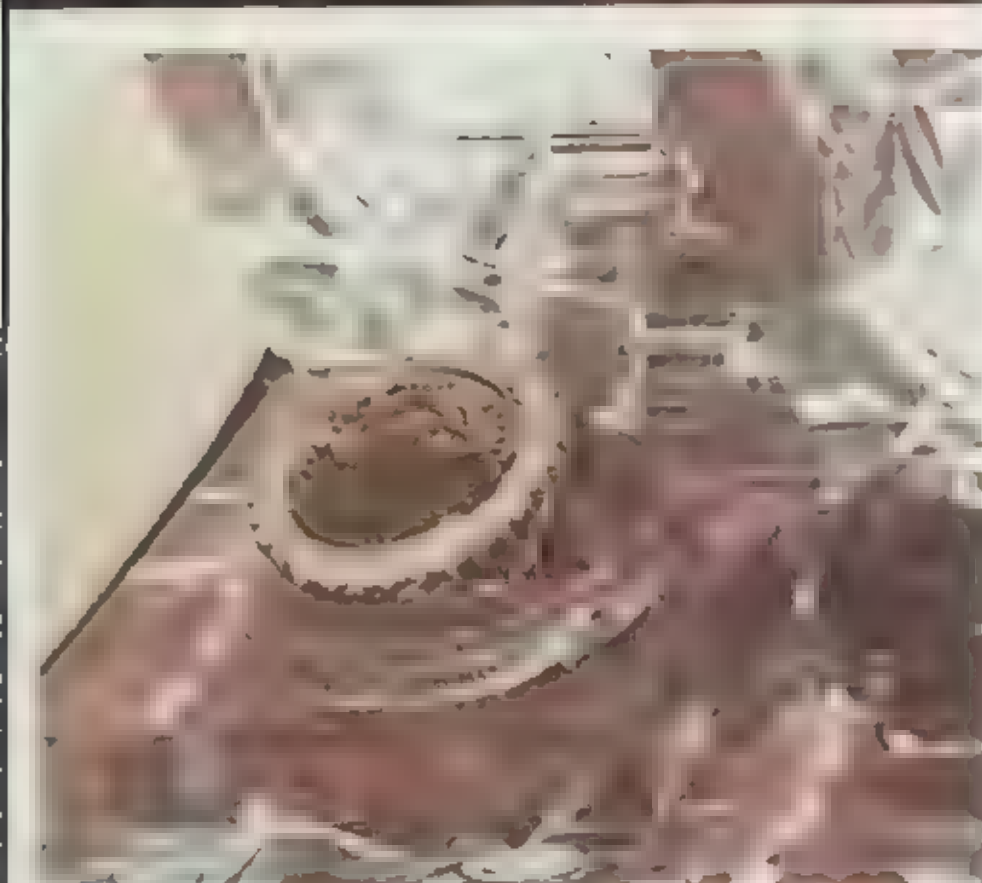

"History, it has often been remarked, is but a fable agreed upon." The fable of the United States has followed a twisty past through crime, conflict and challenge through the past 25 years

John F. Kennedy was elected president in 1960 in a wave of optimism. He stood for the values of the new generation: racial equality, economic opportunity, concern for undeveloped countries, and relief from the cold war. Kennedy composed a selective group of volunteers, The Peace Corps, to live in countries such as Chad and Bolivia to help their inhabitants learn to create a better life. The entire world felt excruciating pain when Kennedy was assassinated on November 22, 1963 in Texas

Meanwhile in El Cajon, CA, the sixth high school in the Grossmont District, Granite Hills entered its third year. Then, El Cajon was a small bedroom community. El Cajon today has over 70,000 citizens and has many businesses, making it a bedroom community no longer. It also accommodates the ninth Grossmont District school, Valhalla.

The United States has gone through a drug revolution, The Viet Nam War, the Woman's Lib movement, the "Me" Generation, the Watergate Scandal and six presidents in a quarter century. Let us all hope that President Reagan can lead us through these crucial years of the 80's and to a bright future

Computer Programming is a very popular class for students like Kim Hallisav. Most students did not know what computers were in 1960.

Second Street is well known for being East County's main drag. In 1960 it was a tiny two lane road.

The San Diego Chargers are celebrating their 25th anniversary also. Special thanks to Roberta and Lynn at Diamond Designs.

Ronald Reagan came to San Diego during his re-election campaign. Reagan, 73, was a quite different president than Kennedy, who was elected in 1960.

Granite Hills students listen to the speaker at the E.C. police department. The department felt the delinquency problem was so bad on 2nd street they called several meetings to air the problem.

Student Life

Experiencing More Change

Drive-in movie dates, penny loafers, pedal pushers, and beach parties are common for teenagers in 1984 but grads of '61 remember these trends from their high school days too. Just as Nancy Drew has been replaced by Harlequin Romances as favorite teenage reading, so have other outlooks changed.

In the early 60's, student government was very prestigious, but today student interests are more diverse and often do not center on school. In the 60's students seemed to belong to more clubs that were associated with school.

One of the big activities in the 60's and today is dating. One place that is popular today is Jack in the Box, on the corner of Second and Madison. Can you believe that in the 60's the same place was a riding stable visited by a lot of teenagers? Second street, where the action is now, used to be a two-lane back road and the 60's hangout was Oscars, where Point West restaurant stands today. Now we have a larger place to hangout.

When things became dull and lifeless, if a fire truck went by everyone would chase after it. Roller skating was a big 60's fad. Sometimes students would meet at the roller rink or go to the Aero Drive-In-Theater to see the latest movies. Drive-ins are still popular today.

School dances were neat and always fun, just like today. But back then students went into the gym to dance in socks or bare feet, so students started calling them "Sock hops." We don't have sock hops today, maybe because school hours dress codes then were so strict that sock hops were about the only time students could go in socks or barefooted.

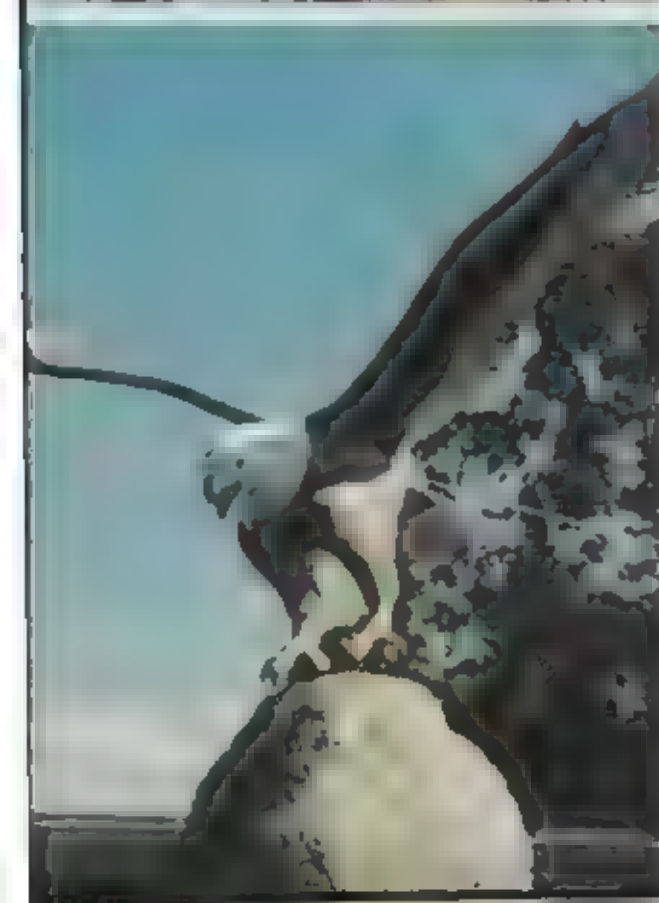

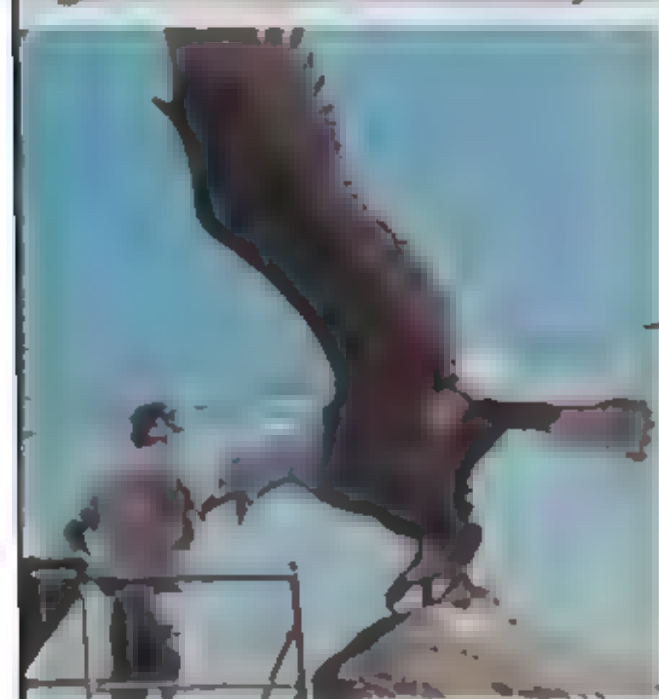

Girls couldn't wear pants, shorts, high heeled shoes, or skirts that didn't go below their knees. Just imagine all the girls that would be in trouble today if that dress code were still enforced? For the guys, they wore shirts and ties and were expected to dress nicely and neatly — no jeans! Their hair was either worn in a crew cut or neatly combed. The common shoes at early Granite Hills were saddle shoes and penny loafers. Today we dress comfortably while looking nice.

As Granite Hills has grown up, with more buildings and students, school has become less of the total focus for students' lives.

In black and white for an early yearbook. Even our symbolic eagle looks much the same as today. When it was started from passing shots. Ernie needs repair in '84. Poor Ernie has been the target for vandals for years but always returns from repairs as proud as ever.

At 100 years, Ernie oversees our campus again. New eyes, a restructured face and a new coat of paint restore Ernie.

Traditionally Spirit Week occurs the first week of school. This year was different. A heat wave which sent temperatures above 100° in the classrooms closed school at noon most of the first two weeks so "Spirit Week" was spread over two weeks.

The quad was the setting for lunchtime activities designed to raise spirit and help everyone enjoy the return to school.

Games included a grape toss, find a penny in the pie, back to back stand up, and a sock race, all planned and pulled off by our cheerleaders.

FOOTBALL CARNIVAL

Here he is at his best in a Eric Demostreting his browng style at the Football carnival. He and the team won the game.

For ever and ever. The Lacers present their banners to identify the marching band in parades and at football games.

Shows Our Stuff

The Football Carnival is traditionally the first event of the year when the football teams, the cheerleaders, and the bands can show what they have been working hard on all summer.

This year's Football Carnival was strictly Eagle Territory. Not only did the Eagles beat Santana 10-0, but Granite Hills also won the 1984-85 Spirit Trophy for having more spirit than any other school in the Grossmont League.

Jim Perez made the only touchdown of the game with Aaron Petrich kicking the after point. Aaron also made a field goal.

"Our right side (offensive side) is very strong," was Jim Perez's comment. Brian Schwartz remarked, "the defense played a good game."

The timing between the header and the kick must be perfect to have a good kicking team. The kicking action in the game was headed by Aaron Petrich with Eric Rainer blocking.

Swerve-dive-block. Blocking a Santana Defender, Frank Carey helps our offensive team.

"Don't bring me down." This Sultan player was very determined, but so was quarterback Eric Rainer, as he tried to avoid a sack.

There is a method to their madness. The Defensive team held the Sultan scoreless as we won 10-0.

FASHIONS

Everyone knows that Granite Hills students are fashion conscious and stylish, but most people do not realize their ultimate fashion goal. This, of course, is comfort. Students here dress comfortably yet still look up to fashion. Some of their fashions catalysts found within numerous closets, dressers, and highboys are loose weave cotton knit vests and sweaters, mini-skirts and jumpsuits of infinite colors and design, and loafer shoes made from leather and plastic. Through the use of such unique blends of comfort and style appears one of the best dressed schools in the state: Granite Hills.

Let's Go Out

"Who are you going out with tonight?" is probably the most common question on campus every Friday. Dating is a major part of the life of most teenagers, including ours.

Most students start dating at the end of their freshman year, if not before. Some of the popular dating spots this year are Bobby Mc Gee's, Round Table Pizza and The Tubs.

As always, many dates center on Eagle games, movies, parties and the beach.

Amy George and Bill Reval enjoy lunch break together in the quad.

Krista Kelsch and Krista England snuggle up as they plan their weekend.

Sarah Smith and Susan Burgeson discuss the evening at the end of a date. Many dates end at home, sharing a coke.

At the new Grossmont Theatres, Todd Richards and Laura Barton wait to see George Burns in "Oh God, You Devil"

Rocky, the Cougar, Nurse Good body and Alice in Wonderland clown around with Mike Badams and Celeste Drake on a date at Bobby McGee's. Bobby's is a favorite date spot for such events as the Christmas Dance, or when the guy wants to impress his date

Wendy's Hamburgers is one of the best places to get a quick meal. Russell (center) is a student who has been eating at Wendy's since he was a freshman. He is a member of the Young Men's Christian Association (YMCA) and is a member of the school's basketball team.

Leaving Campus is Risky

It is really easy to get bored with the school's food, so a lot of students take a break from it all and go for an "off campus" lunch. About 90% of the students that leave the campus for lunch don't have permits or permission to leave so they are taking a big risk. However, as Dan Barnes tells it, "My friends go out every other day and never get caught." Grossmont District High School campuses are closed because several years ago, a student was leaving school when she was hit by a fellow student's car. Since that tragic accident, the school board has decided to keep all the campuses closed.

A few groups and classes have permission to leave campus: ASB, the Clarion, the Pageant, and Honors Psychology.

The students who leave campus, pass or no pass, have their favorite places to go for their lunch break outings. The popular places to eat range from Arby's to Taco Bell, but when they are on the run, most students will eat almost anything.

Most students wish that the administration would just declare lunch open so they would not have to sneak around anymore.

Trying to look sly, Anne Lacey, Debbi Good, Nancy Goodwin and Su De Nure leave Taco Bell to go back to school.

Again at Taco Bell, Taunya McCall and Raquel Gonzales eat as they discuss the plan to sneak back to school.

Have a Coke[®] and a smile.

Party Mood

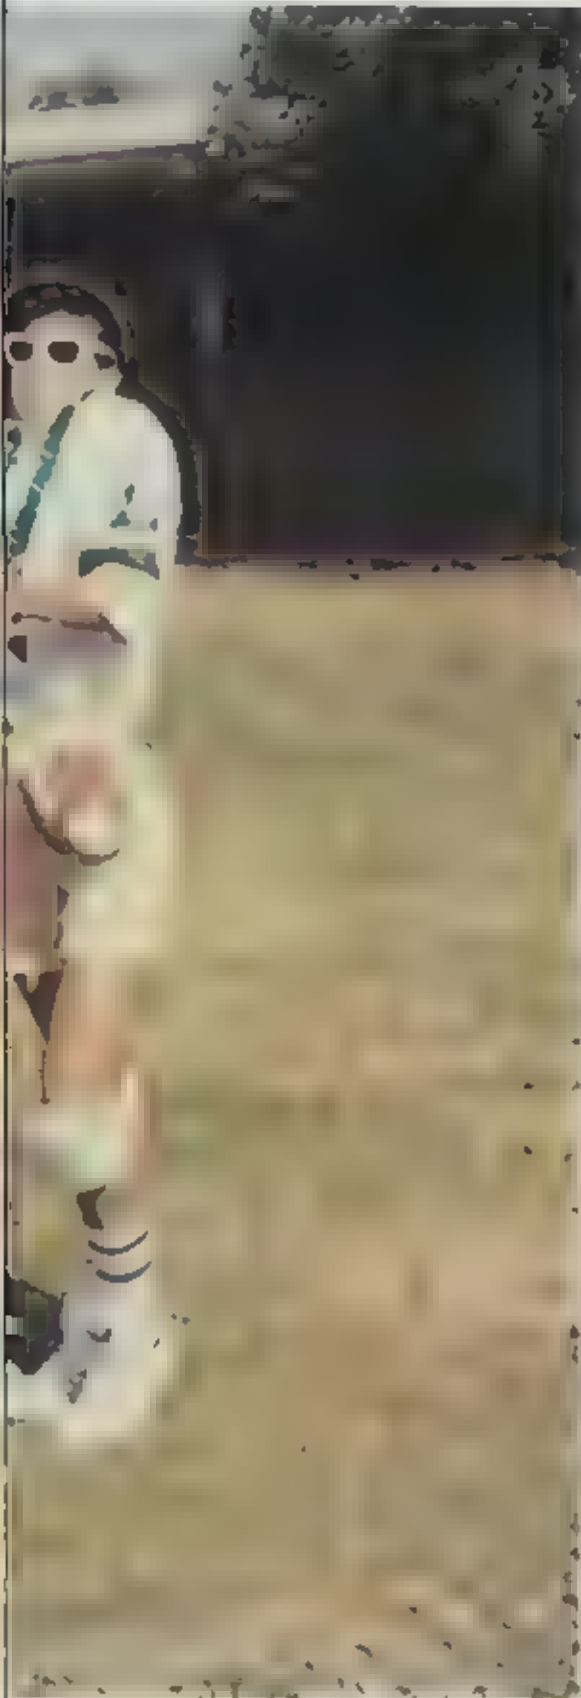

Looking back over all the Halloweens we've celebrated at Granite Hills, this year boasted the biggest turnout of costumes ever. Costumes varied greatly, ranging from the traditional witches and monsters to the off-beat lion tamers and rock stars. ASB assistant Ingrid Anderson (Senior) said, "This was the best Halloween ever! More people came out in costume than ever before, and ASB really appreciates it." Sheri Guseman, Comm. of School Spirit, said, "There was a lot of Halloween enthusiasm this year. First lunch was like a party; music played, people danced, and everyone had a great time." Several favorite costumes were the old lady, the M&M, DEVO, and Strawberry Shortcake.

Bunnies, ballplayers, scouts, and devils clown around for Halloween. Very creative costuming appeared this year. Rockers Trenton Harris and Kim Marie perform for an imaginary audience. Many students dressed as their favorite musicians, including one Boy George!

Welcome to our Luau

Come and do the "Hukie Lua" with me, say the participants of the Hula Race. This was a new activity incorporating the Hawaiian theme of homecoming.

The Juniors take the lead in the chariot race. Although the chariots are getting old, we still keep up this tradition.

It's an Old Day spirit is shown by Cheri Nordenger and Christina Stronce. Like these girls, many others dressed up for the day.

The VW push puts Brian Schwartz to work, while Sam Guerra sits on his duff steering. This is an annual homecoming event.

Our JV and Varsity cheerleaders perform an awesome pyramid. This was a new feature added to their routines this year.

Homecoming week included events both old and new, designed to raise spirit for the homecoming game. Directed by the cheerleaders, our lunch time activities included a snail race and a limbo contest in the new category, as well as the traditional push.

Friday was the annual homecoming assembly. The game of musical chairs aroused much laughter in the stands because many people fought over the chairs. In the end, the Seniors prevailed because Stacy Sullivan won. The Seniors succeeded again by winning The Freaky Flipper/Hurried Hula Race. The Juniors beat the Seniors in the time trials for the night's chariot race. The chariot race was only between three grades this year; the Freshmen, Juniors and Seniors because one chariot was broken and was not replaced. Although the races and costumes used to be Roman, this year we switched to Hawaiian.

After the race, our JV and Varsity cheerleaders did a cheer together then formed a pyramid approximately 3 people high. Shortly after the pyramid, the Commissioner of Alumni, Monica Mroz, introduced the returning alumni. Finally, it was time to go back to class and resume studies and to wait for the big game that night.

The Mighty Graphics charge at the Monarchs. Although we lost, we fought until the end.

Mr. Morell and Marie Carrol arrive in his 1951 Chevy. Mr. Morell was our principal for 23 years and Mrs. Carrol was our first homecoming queen.

Homecoming '84 was quite an event. The evening's activities started with the chariot race between juniors and seniors, a traditional event which started in the early years when Roman themes were more common than now. Although it was a close race, the juniors won. Kickoff for the title game with Monte Vista was at 7:30. We were ahead until the fourth quarter when the Monarchs scored two touchdowns to win the game, 18-20 and with it a berth in the CIF playoffs.

The halftime show was a nostalgic scene. The first car was quite a surprise because it carried Phil Morell, our principal for 23 of the last 25 years and our first homecoming queen, Marie Carrol ('60). 1984 Homecoming princesses were Tonya Gandy, Diane Milstead, Marjorie Turk and Suzette De Nure. Queen was Stacy Allen. After Stacy was crowned by Cindy Bentley, last year's queen, a beautiful fireworks show lit up the skies, ending with a "Granite Hills 25" for our anniversary year.

After the exciting game came the dance. The Graphics rolled out some fabulous tunes while the dancers waited for the princes to arrive after their trips home to change from football gear to tuxes. Homecoming King Lance Alister was crowned, accompanied by the princes, Brian Schwartz, Erik Akin, Frank Carey and David Coker.

Shortly after the king was announced, the dance was over. This put an end to the activities marking our 25th Homecoming, a night we will remember for many years and the start of nostalgia for this year's grads.

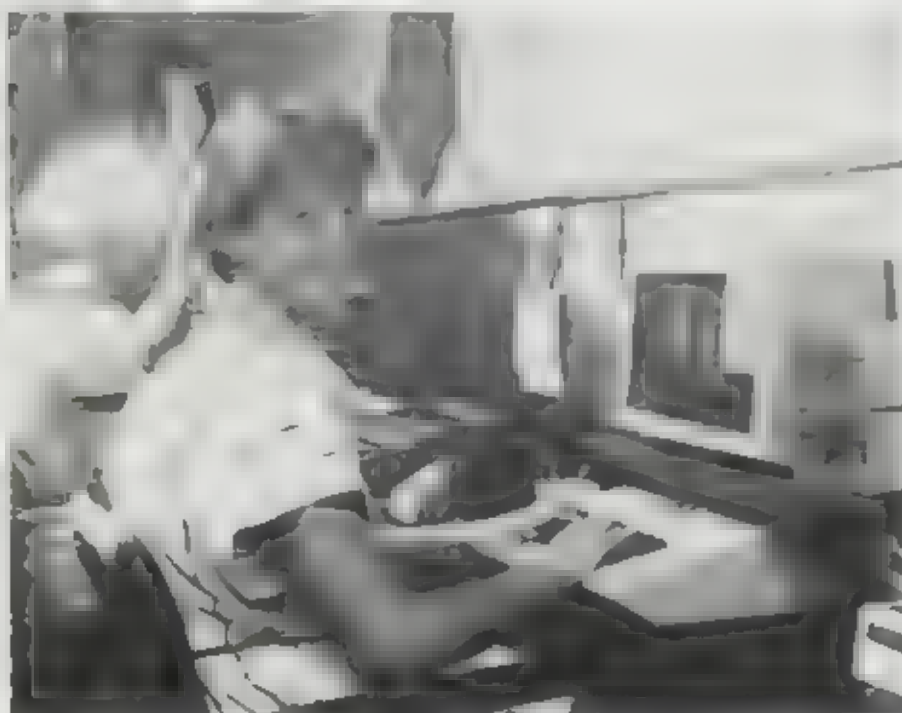

Students Work Hard

There are many reasons for working, but the majority of student workers agree that money is the most important. Erik Akin got his job because it would be a "new experience."

Teens get their jobs many different ways. Erik explained how he got his job at Sportime. "My brother worked there and someone quit, and there was an opening, so I took it." Other students get their jobs from parents, friends of parents, or simply by walking in and applying; most students jobs are part time although some students work a full forty hours. Debbie Dennett works "three days a week Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday."

Having a job while in High School is sometimes a disadvantage, but overall it is a benefit because it teaches them responsibility.

Pushing carts isn't one of Steve Endicott's favorite assignments. He works at Safeway on Avocado and 94

Heidi Eastcott types information into the computer. She works at Farmer's Insurance in La Mesa

the Sun

Surfing is an enjoyable part of Todd Prentice's summer

As the last bell rang for the end of the '83-'84 school year, some students looked ahead to a long, hot, relaxing summer. Whether going to the beach, camping, going to Padre games, traveling to foreign lands or just relaxing around the house, many Granite Hills students know how to spend their summers.

The weather this summer was much better than the year before, hot but pleasant. Swimming pools or a simple garden hose were refreshing ways to cool off. Some students attended concerts such as Billy Idol and Inxs or simply listened to the radio while lying on the beach. Others went to rallies for the '84 elections. Whatever ways students spent their time over the summer, they were sure to have fun in the sun.

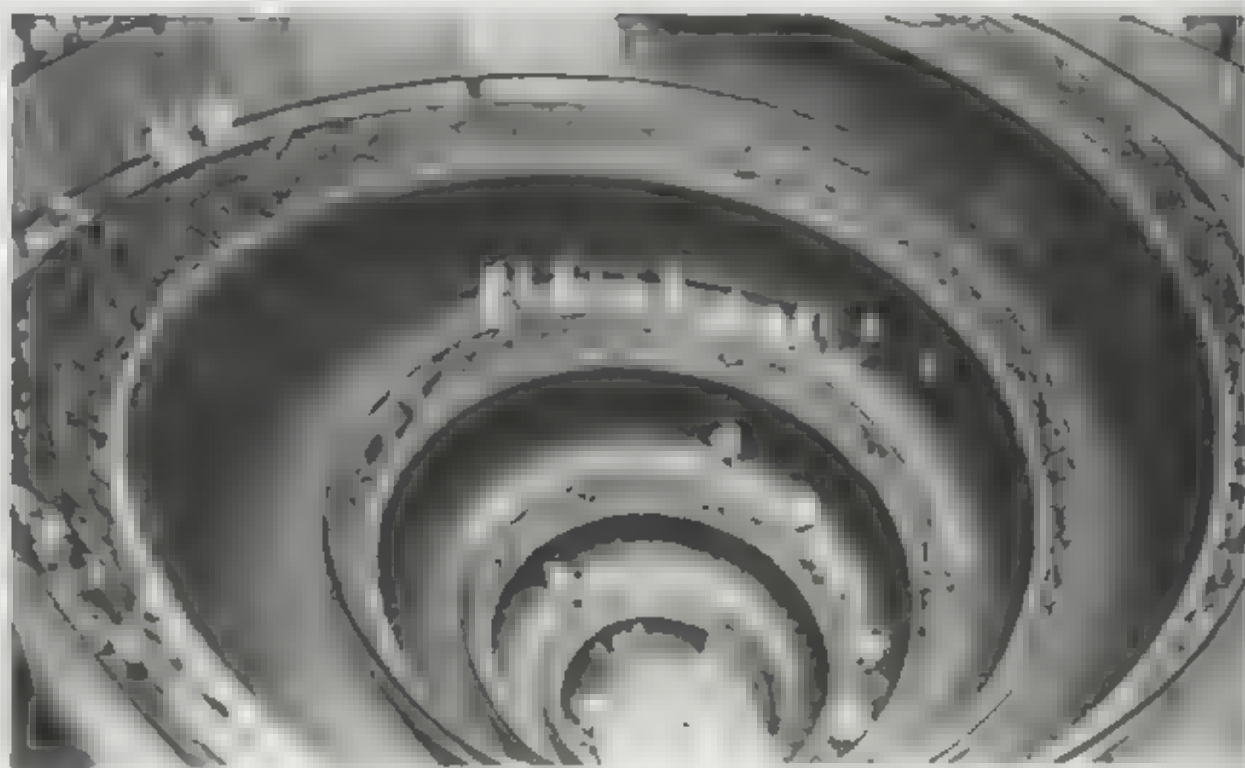

Europe Beckons Students

This fountain in Trevi Gardens, Rome, Italy, was the focus of the movie "Three Coins in the Fountain."

One of the most outstanding features in the Vatican is this Bronze Stairway.

Early Sunday morning, Monica Mroz, Mike Sprague, and others journeyed to Notre Dame Cathedral.

Every summer for the past four years, Mr. Fremont, a teacher at Granite Hills, and his wife have taken students from our school and others to Europe. They go to many cities in the five countries they visit.

Last year they visited England, France, Italy, Austria, and Germany. Some of the stops were Buckingham Palace in London, the Louvre Gallery in Paris, the Eiffel Tower in Paris, and the Mont St. Michel monastery in Normandy. They also saw many wonderful old castles and palaces built by kings such as Louis XIV and Francis I.

In addition to serious sight-seeing, they also got to do a little more relaxed touring. When asked about her favorite part of the trip, Monica Mroz said,

"Venice and Nice!" with a smile. "Walking on the Boardwalk and going to the beach in Venice," was Alisa Woodall's favorite part. Another favorite of the students was the Hofbrau House, a famous beer pub in Germany. The most popular hotel was on the island of Lido off Venice, Italy. It was only a couple blocks from the beach. Vivoli's, in Florence, Italy, has the best ice cream in the world and was visited by the students at least three times a day.

Transportation on the three-week tour included planes, boats, trains, and buses. The students covered more in three weeks than most tours cover in three months. This tour gives a little taste of everything these countries have to offer.

France is the home of the majestic Chartres Cathedral.

On the island of Normandy is the Mont St. Michel. These students were brought to the Bretonnais monastery.

This castle has 365 towers and 400 rooms. The Chambord Castle in the Loire Valley is magnificent.

Summer Can Be

A Learning Time

During the summer, one might think the only activities kids participate in are parties and going to the beach. This assumption is not always correct. There are many organized activities that kids attend.

Cheer camp at SDSU attracted many of this year's cheerleaders. Their days were long and hard. From 8:00 a.m. until 10:00 p.m., four days straight, they worked learning new cheers, stunts, and performing each day. Stacy Allen felt, "It was a great experience for those who participated."

Lynne Rosse auditioned and was accepted to attend the prestigious music camp at Interlochen, Michigan, after sending letters of recommendation and a tape of her violin playing. The eight-week camp attracted student musicians from all over the country. Lynn went to school five days a week and spent two days relaxing. Lynn said, "It was the best summer I ever had. I met lots of friends from all over the country."

The 1984 El Cajon Colt League is made up of students in the San Diego area including Tim Harris, Fred Helm, Dan Nerat, and Steve Skinner from Granite Hills. In August, they spent two weeks in Lafayette, Indiana, playing some of the best teams around the country, and after playing seven games, emerged world champions. All the guys were surprised at how many people showed up to greet the new Colt League Champions at the airport when they arrived home.

Celeste Drake, Heidi Jensen, Andy Butz, and Ms. Cronyn attended yearbook camp at UCSD. For one week, they learned about writing copy, captions, headlines, and creating layouts. Comparing annuals with other schools from California, Arizona, and Washington, gave them ideas they brought back to help improve our annual.

Couples let loose to the lively music of the band "Features." When the music mellowed, students settled down to enjoy slow dancing with their partners.

This year's Christmas Dance was held at the Scottish Rite Temple. Although the dance started at 8:00 p.m., many couples carried on the tradition of going out to dinner to start off the night. Some of the more popular places to dine this year were The Chart House, Bobby McGee's, Marine Room, and even Top of the Cove.

The theme of the dance was "Jingle Bell Rock." Couples were rockin' all night to the band "Features." "The dance was great, but we had fun the whole night!" stated Sophomore Cheryl May.

Like every year, there were quite a few Limos rented to add a touch of class to the evening. Although Senior Erik Akin described his Limo as, "A boycott President's Limo it was bad!" he went on to say that the dance was "exhilarating!"

for Giving

Every year for the past nine years, ASB has sponsored a fund raiser for the El Cajon Christmas Bureau. The classes compete against one another to try to raise the most money, which is then distributed to needy families in the El Cajon area. This year we collected $2,634.00, which was more than we have raised before. The winning class was Mr. Sebastian's Creative Writing class with $500.00, the most any one class has ever collected. A few students took charge of the fund raising in his class. Knowing that they collected that much made them all feel good.

An additional Christmas activity was the door decorating contest. The judges for the contest were Sandy Carlson, Kirsten Ramstrom, Jenny Crocker, Kim Betscher, Erik Akin, and one teacher, Mr. Nason. Mr. Schimpf's class won this year's contest with a frog theme.

Plaques were awarded to both winning classes at an assembly given for the school by ASB.

Listening to music is heard mostly on the favorite radio station. However, ticket selling services publish information on upcoming concerts.

As many students know, the Sports Arena has been a host to a number of popular groups in the past year. One such group was Huey Lewis and the News, who put on a fantastic concert on December 8, 1984.

Music not only supplies entertainment, but also variety. These album covers represent just a few of the popular groups who had new releases this year.

One of the most popular music idols this year was Billy Idol. He was one of the hottest music artists in 1984.

Music has had a definite influence on our generation. Just about everything we do in our lives is. Dating, driving, doing homework, and even wearing a certain style of clothes reflect our music.

Students have attended many of this year's concerts by all different types of groups in San Diego. Popular groups such as Boyz II Men, INXS, The Cars, Ramones, Ratt, DIO, Hootie and the Blowfish, and Huey Lewis were in concert this past year, attracting large crowds of teenagers.

Our generation is just about supporting the music industry by buying records, concert tickets, button, tapes, and posters. Almost everywhere you look, if there are teenagers there will also be something having to do with music.

When MTV first started, many teenagers didn't really like it, but as time went on, they were a bit different. MTV is now a very popular television channel, and it is now the only MTV network in the world.

A Student Day Unfolds

A typical student day begins at 6:30 a.m. as kids try to get out of bed as their alarms ring. All they can think of is trying to get up so they won't be late for class and face ISA or even expulsion from class for too many tardies.

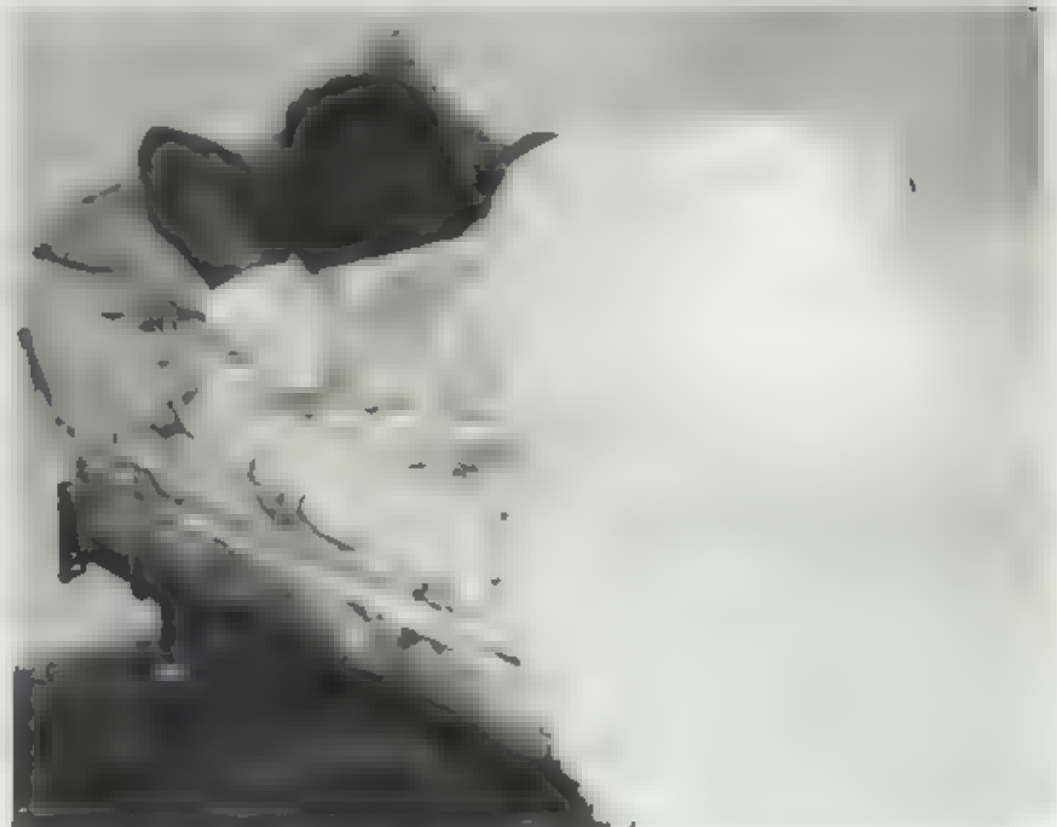

Students finally arrive and start classes. A full day of classes and social contacts all over campus keep us busy until after 6th period at 2:33 or 7th at 3:30. Typically, students carry a 6-period day from 1st to 6th. Those that are bussed from Alpine and other outlying areas get here for 2nd period and stay through 7th. Others may take off after several periods for jobs and some few elect a 7-period schedule.

Lunch, the mid-day break, is broken into two periods, so schedules are jockeyed so friends can share a common lunch period.

After school, jobs, sports, TV, clubs, friends and homework fill the day until bedtime when the cycle begins again.

Frustrated students concentrate on their English books. Most students have an English class in their schedule

Seniors Pick

The Seniors picked Mr. Williams as their favorite teacher. He was chosen because of his neat personality.

An old show, Leave it to Beaver is still a favorite. Our seniors will always be young at heart.

Students obviously do not like to be inconvenienced, which is why they chose 7/11 as their favorite store.

the Best

Looking at twenty-five years of our school's history, this years Pageant Staff began to wonder about the tastes of students in the past. So we decided to add a "Senior Favorites" section to this year's book.

Several questions were asked the Senior class students. It was quite difficult to come to conclusions due to the many different responses. There was a wide variety of answers ranging from the sporty look of a Ferrari to the sound of hard rock.

Built in Germany in the 1950's, the VW Bug was made to be economical. The seniors here however find it to be a versatile and sporty car. Since Mexican was the favorite food, it was a wise choice to pick Taco Bell as our favorite restaurant.

Homework is ...

Remember the good ol' days when homework was done at home? Students would sit at home and diligently study at tables or desks. In the unconventional age of 1985; however, things aren't so simple. Teenagers used to the excitement of TV videos and game shows look more and more for interesting study places. Instead of the sterile quiet of the library or the peace of a public park, the noise of a ghetto blaster or TV may fill the study room. Desks and chairs are being replaced by bathtubs, pools, cars, and many other study spots.

John Keves does some last minute homework while eating breakfast. Many students find it necessary to do homework in any spare moments.

Ty Alexander finds quiet in the bathroom. New and different study spots are being utilized these days.

Kenny Cauthon is burning the midnight oil trying to finish his homework. Many times, in order to finish one's homework, students must spend many hours late at night toiling over the books.

Jerry Goldstein does his homework while staring at the Tube. To the dismay of parents, students often divide their attention between the TV and their homework.

Some student obviously decided not to do the homework at all! Book burnings are not common, but they do occur.

Senioritis Is Contagious

Senioritis can cause a change in one's identity. Frank Carey plays teacher.

Senioritis has taken its toll on the classroom. Students discuss anything but their class assignment.

When students are involved in a class discussion, Leonard Maxwell catches up on sleep.

Severe cases of Senioritis can get one (or two) in trouble. These students pay a visit to Mr. Wargo.

Students observe and learn, as Jim Perez makes a point on the board. Senioritis tends to bring out our childish side

What is this virus that hits just about every student in high school at one time or another? It's Senioritis, and Seniors aren't the only ones who contract it. Freshmen, Sophomores and Juniors can get it as well. What is Senioritis? "It's too much school, too much work and not enough partying," is Senior James Henry's diagnosis. "Senioritis is being an upperclassman, acting like an underclassman and getting away with it," explains Junior Tina Virgadamo. Senior Steve Endicott describes Senioritis as "getting away with everything you could never get away with before."

So if you see that guy sitting in the back of your History class with a copy of DirtBike Magazine tucked away in his book or those girls eating out at Taco Bell during lunch, you'll know that they all have a case of Senioritis.

Clubs

Students Get Involved

One of the most important and rewarding opportunities of high school is to belong to a club or organization. High schools thrive on the out put generated by clubs and their members. Clubs bolster enthusiasm and school spirit as well as educate and ready students for the outside world. Clubs and organizations add variety to the monotony of everyday school life.

This year marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of Granite Hills. From year one, there has been a variety of different clubs for students to get involved in. The first year, 1960-61, started out with some that have been carried through all twenty-five years, including ASB, Clarion, Choir, Pageant, Marching Band, Boys and Girls Glee, Drama and CSF. Other clubs such as International Club, Radio, Speech, Key, Campus Life and German Club were started a few years later.

As the years go by and the fads change, so do many of the clubs. In the early 1960's there was Girls League, Youth for Christ, Military Science, Stewardess Club, Spanish Club, California Cadet Corps, Art Club, Chess Club, Distributive Education Club and many more. There was even a Surf Club that has been revived just this year. The desire to be a member of a club or organization was great in the 1960's. Teens met regularly and fulfilled their obligations while at the same time having fun. They took pride in their school and did what they could to make it a better place to attend. Since teens in those days didn't have too many cars, school was their life. They took on the large responsibility of making Granite Hills what it is today.

By the time the seventies rolled around, new clubs replaced the old. Mat Maids, Y-Teens, Action Club, Reflections and Ski Club were among the new additions. During this period, clubs brought about great achievement among dedicated students.

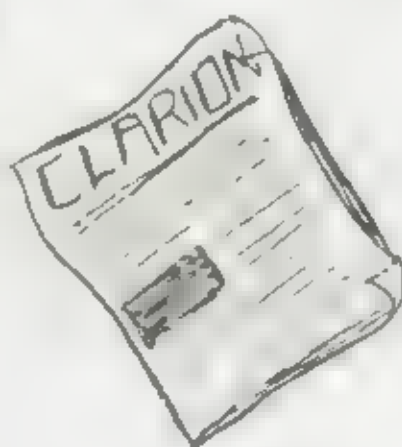

As cars and jobs become more important, popular and necessary, students are devoting less time to clubs and organizations. Even television can be considered a culprit. "T.V. has changed today's teenagers," explains former Principal Phil Morell, "They spend more hours in front of the tube than they do with their studies." As teens become more involved in soap operas and detective shows, committing themselves to a club or organization seems less important. Still, this doesn't hold true for a great many of today's teens. The need to belong is still there and clubs will always be a special part of high school life.

Promotes Spirit

This year's ASB class started last year at the annual nominating convention. President Marjorie Turk, Vice President, Stacy Allen, Secretary Suzie Southerland, and Attorney General Lisa Hagen, started making their plans for the 84-85 school year late last year.

ASB is an organization to promote school spirit. ASB runs home football games, plans assemblies and runs the snack bar. They also sponsor clean campus drives. This year ASB will hold an assembly for the Granite Hills' 25th anniversary, which they are very much looking forward to organizing in the Spring. Stacy Sullivan, commissioner of finance, says, "I feel student participation would make our school a lot better."

Being hard-working, competent, dedicated, and willing to compromise are necessary qualities of a Pageant Staff member.

The staff consists of an Editor-In-Chief, six section editors, section staffs, photographers and artists. These people work hard together, covering most activities during the school year by taking pictures, conducting interviews, drawing layouts and writing copy. These tasks don't end once the period is over. The annual staff is spending a lot of time after school working to meet early deadlines required for a book with so much color.

"It's a lot of hard work, but when you see the finished product you can look at it and say, 'Hey I did this page!'" says sports editor Nanci Finch. Yearbook is a selective class. Members are chosen after their written application and an interview with the Advisor, Ms. Cronyn, and the Editor-In-Chief, Celeste Drake.

This summer Celeste, Heidi Jensen & Ms. Cronyn went to yearbook camp at UCSD where they took classes in all phases of yearbook production. Celeste won second prize in the copy writing contest for everyone in camp.

Ms. Cronyn says she & the others went to camp to "get some new ideas and find out how to produce a competitive yearbook." One idea that came from camp is a supplement that will be published this summer to cover late spring activities.

The Pageant staff of 1985 has tried new ideas and techniques in hopes that Granite Hills' 25th anniversary yearbook is the best ever.

Clarion

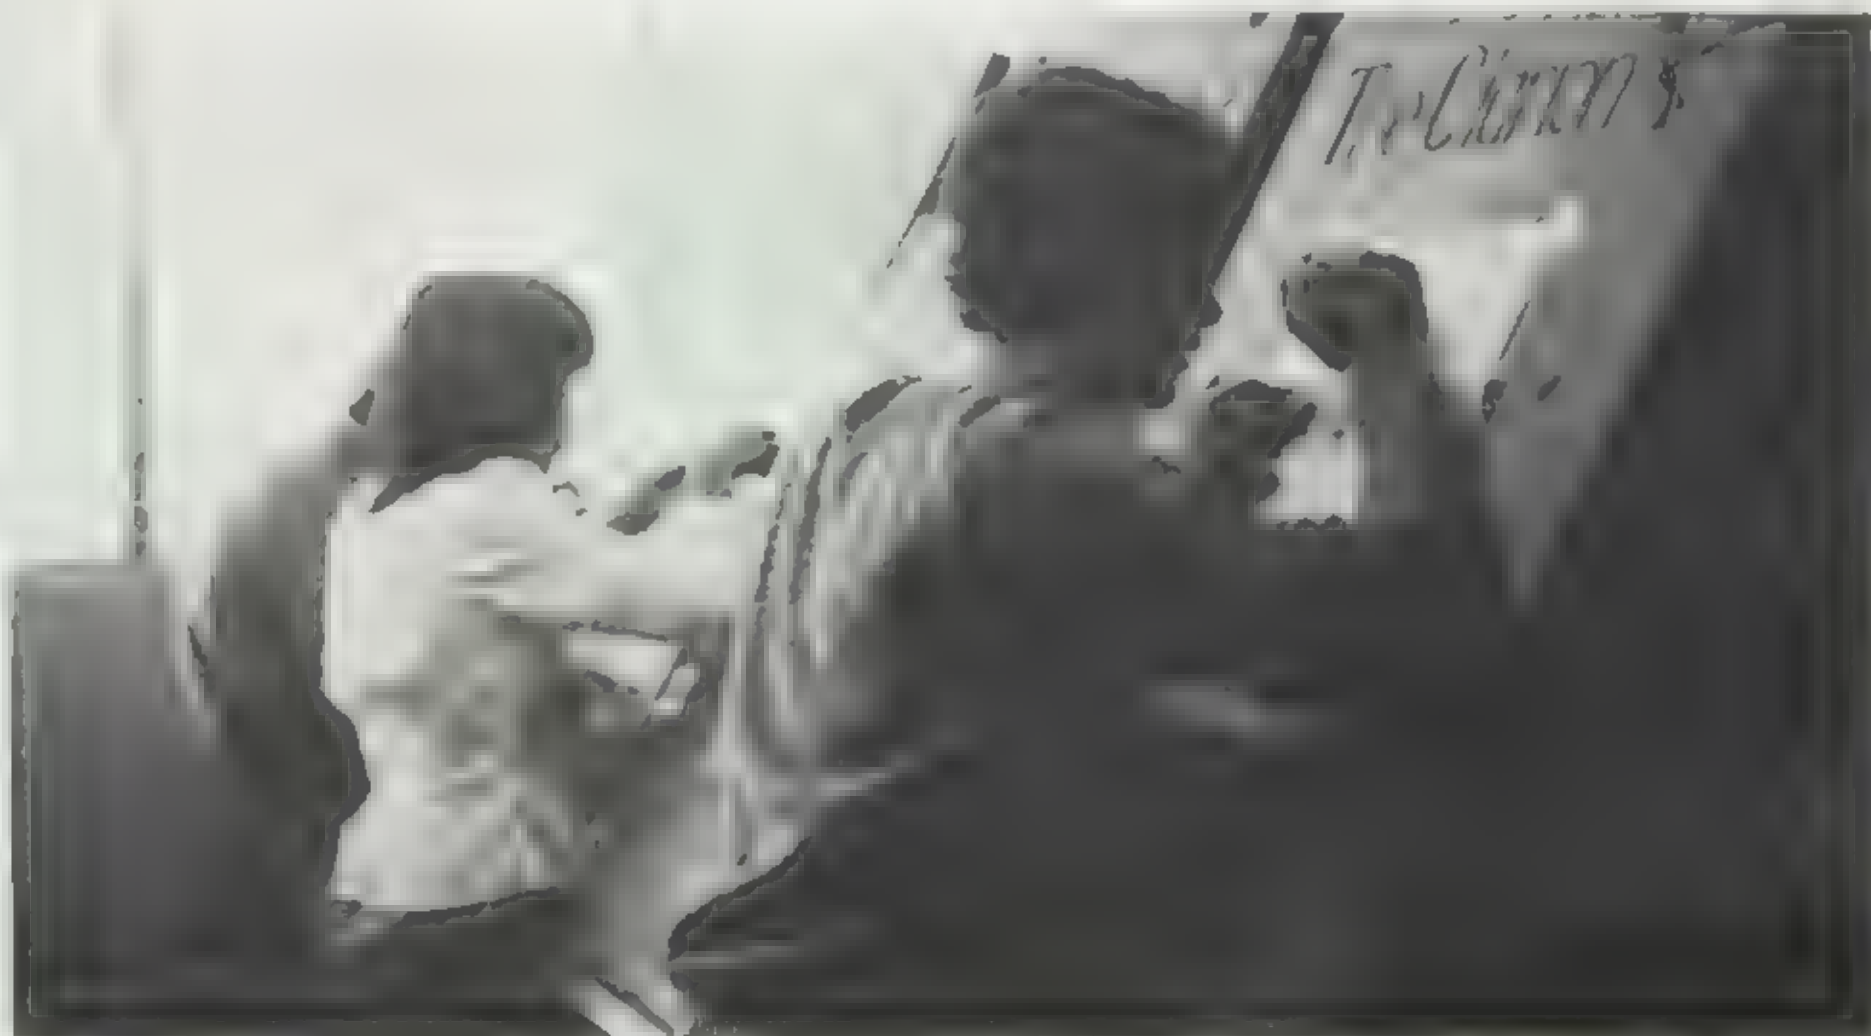

Conducting interviews, taking polls, writing stories and reviewing concerts are among the many tasks of the Clarion Staff. This group of hard workers is in charge of producing our school newspaper.

The staff consists of an Editor-In-Chief who decides on due dates, paste-up dates and publishing dates as well as captions and headlines; the editors who are responsible for assigning enough articles to fill the pages; the reporters who interview people and write the articles assigned by the editors; photographers who are responsible for photo needs; artists who draw necessary pictures; and typists who are responsible for typing every article written.

Ms. Jodi Roisman, the faculty advisor, keeps the class in order and oversees their progress.

A year of Journalism is required before one can join this highly challenging and rewarding class. Editorial Editor, Gidget Stindt assures interested staffers, "It's really a lot of fun!"

Pasting copy together takes a steady hand. Gadget Stindt and April Pruitt put all the pieces together before a deadline.

Editor in Chief Bill Thomas puts final touches on his copy before going to press. All copy must be read and reread before it is finalized.

Clarion Staff editors Fred Helm and Gadget Stindt work diligently before going to press. Going to press also entails lining up the type.

The Granite Hills Acting Workshop is and has been an opportunity for high school age people to learn together a common experience of producing a varied season of theatrical productions. The Theatre skills involved in acting, lighting, make up, sound, set building, etc. are certainly developed throughout the process; but it is the commitment and human interaction that will prove of greatest worth in later years. Here, the play is not "the thing" . . . but rather the total experience of doing all that is necessary to create such a production. to the highest level is the true goal.

The workshop followed its traditional pattern during 1984-85 by producing the three major elements of theatre: Comedy in their production You Can't Take It With You, Shakespeare's Hamlet for the drama; and Musical theatre by staging Oliver in the spring. though the performances will possibly leave a lasting impression, it will be the memories of one another and what they meant to each other that will remain always.

G.H.A.W. officers: Kim Hendrix, secretary; Chuck Gegax, publicity; Bryan Brown, clerk; Kathryn Wood, treasurer; Chaz Kenna, president; Brad Thompson, vice-president.

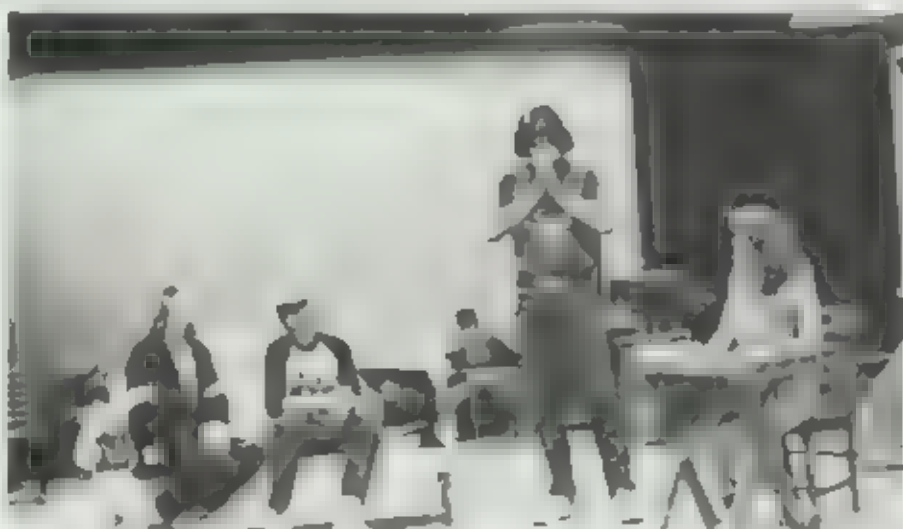

The cast of "You Can't Take It With You" settles down for a nice "quiet" dinner. Kirk Isom, Debbie Clem, and Teresa Brown serve dinner to a crazy crowd.

Larry Stevens directs Bryan Brown, Kim Hallway, Brad Thopson, and Mary Reynolds to the set work assignment in the play. Set Work is a big part of producing a show.

Disaster strikes when the Kirbys arrive for dinner on the wrong night. Don Etheridge, Lisa Landes, Mary Reynolds, Brent Baum, and Anne McAdams try to entertain their distinguished guests.

Concentration is the key to making the scene work. Mary, Brent, Larry, and Carrie work hard to develop their acting skills.

G H A W officers Chaz Kenna, and Chuck Gegax explain surprising news to Lisa Landes. G H A W meetings are held every Wednesday after school.

Academic Decathlon

Faces the Future

Granite Hills' 25th anniversary marks the second year of the prestigious Academic Decathlon. The Decathlon team consists of Joel Downer, Darrin Doud, Celeste Drake, Chuck Anderson, Roshelle Hopper, Anne McAdams, David Burgreen, Gina Crane, and Tricia Meler; 9 students who enjoy taking on difficult challenges.

The Decathlon consists of ten events, all which test some area of knowledge. The theme of the competition this year was futurism, so all competitors had to read the book Mega trends. They also were required to read the May and June issues of Newsweek, Time and Business Week and prepare a speech on some aspect of the future.

Joel was the highest scorer on the team, and received the third highest score of the over 400 competitors in Language and Literature. Chuck received a second place award for the Essay in his division.

The team celebrated their triumph after the competition at Mr. Sebastian's house, only to discover later that they had not placed third overall, as they had before the final scores were totaled. They placed sixth instead.

Not only did the students spend hours preparing, so did the coaches: Mr. Sebastian, Mr. Lindsey, Mr. LaJune, Mrs. Brooks, Mrs. Metzgar, Ms. Whitman, Mrs. Jordan, Mrs. Jones, and Mr. Williams.

Tricia Meler said, "All of the hard work was really worth it. I'm proud of the team."

Competition Hones Skills

The Academic Team consists of many high achievers. The team competes with other schools in the Grossmont District and similar to the college bowl competition. Mr. Sebastian is the team's coach. Last year the team came in first in the Grossmont District and first in the county. When I asked Mr. Sebastian how he felt his team would do this year he replied, "I think since Granite Hills was first last year we will be first again in the Grossmont District and in the county. I also believe that we have a stronger team this year." The Academic Team has a main goal this year and that is to go to the National Academic Bowl in Dallas, Texas.

Murphy Directs Singers

The Granite Hills choir, under the direction of Mr. Murphy, has an exciting year planned. For the two main events this year, they have planned to perform at the East County Performing Arts Center, singing for a "Christmas Concert," (again at the East County Performing Arts Center) and the "Pops Concert." Christine Lindsay, an ninth grader, performing for the first time, while at this school, she exclaimed, "I'm very excited to be performing and singing at these two main events."

The choir members are working very hard to perform with excellence at these two main events. All members are even rehearsing at night to get ready for their performances.

Rippers come back

It has been about twenty years since we've had a surf team. This year, a group of serious surfers decided to get one started. Mr. Bill Staples is their faculty advisor. Perry Martikas is their President; Brian Kenney, Vice President; John Cardoza, Representative; Frank Ho, Treasurer, and Curtis Smith as Chairman of the Board.

The team competes against others in the Grossmont district such as El Cap, El Cajon, Santana and Grossmont. The guys surf "Anywhere from Mexico to Huntington Beach. We just follow the waves!"

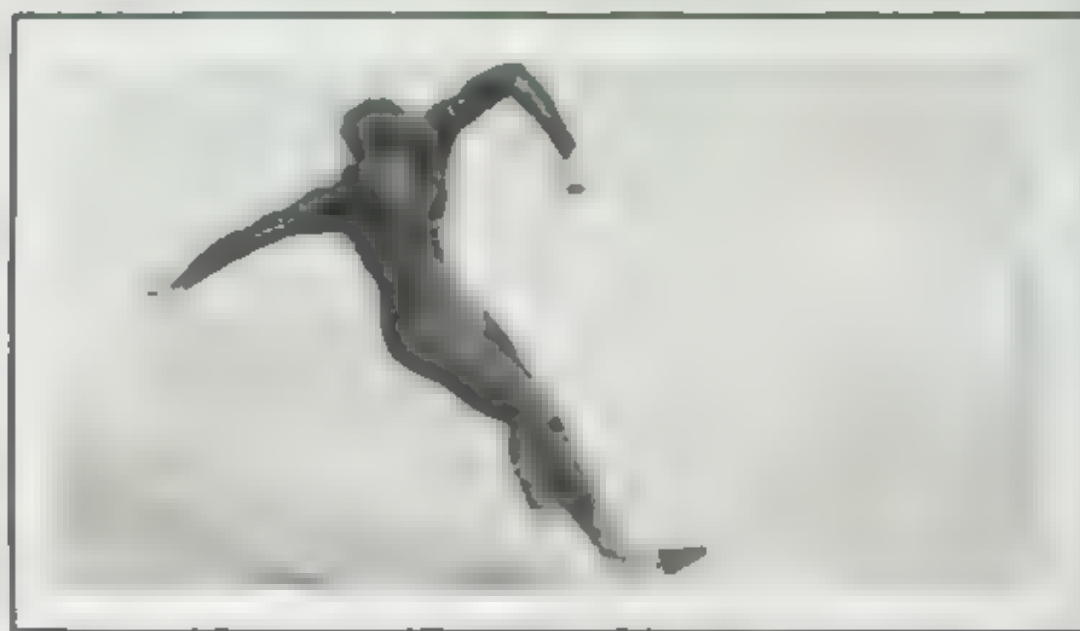

It takes dedication, coordination and talent as well as being well conditioned to be a competitive surfer. The team stretches out before hitting the waves to insure a limber body for top performance.

The guys usually surf together on weekends and during the summer. Their experience ranges from two to six years. Some of their favorite pro surfers are Tom Carroll, Shane Heran and Shaun Tomson.

The guys admit that they want to keep the team small. "Our team is expected to do really well because we have the best surfers at our school and not just anyone who wants to surf," explains Senior Curtis Smith. In other words, No Trendies, Kooks or Bozos!

The Surf Team hits the waves. Todd Prentice and Perry Martikas display awesome surfing techniques.

Speech Team

Contests Lure Speakers

Perhaps one of the most under-rated groups at Granite Hills is the Speech Team. According to Mr. Ward, the faculty advisor and coach, "The Speech Team is just that — a team. It should be included in Sports rather than Clubs." The team makes its speeches on Fridays and Saturdays from 8 am to 11 pm. An excessive amount of practice goes into preparing for a speech. An average of twenty hours is spent on cutting, preparing and memorizing a speech.

The Speech Team is sponsored by Service Clubs such as Optimist and Kiwanis as well as VFW which promotes a radio-type show gives first place winners a trip to Washington D.C. to meet the President as well as a $14,000 scholarship. The team attends Competition Leagues in San Diego and Imperial County competing against 36 schools.

This year's student offices are Vice President Lisa Dickey; Secretary Theresa Kenyon; Treasurer Scott Zenor; Reporter Raffy Kaloustian; Point Secretary Rochelle Hue; Chairman of Hospitality Jany's Barton, and President Daniel Hickman.

Making speeches isn't easy. Theresa Kenyon prepares for her presentation.

Band marches into its 25th year of excellence

The marching band, long recognized as a dedicated and capable group, has won many honors this year under the continuing leadership of director Darrell Downs.

In the Columbus Day parade, our drum major won a first place trophy while our band placed second in Class A competition.

At the Fiesta de Luna, our band was number one with the colorguard placing third. Later, the colorguard won a first at the Lester Oaks judging with the drum major placing third and the band, second.

The color guard, only two years old, is having a banner year too. They've placed in every contest they've entered.

The band enjoys marching at the annual El Cajon Mother Goose Parade as well as in other parades all over southern California.

Band Plays for Students

Symphonic Band has been a tradition at our high school for years. This year, under the continuing direction of Mr. Darrell Downs, this group will perform for the entire school for the Christmas Concert. Tuesdays Are Tops Campus Life is a Christian-oriented club for kids of all ages. They meet every Tuesday night at private homes.

This year's activities included the Burger Bash at which they had food and entertainment, later they went to Mexico to give canned food to the poor. Most of their activities take place over the summer. Campus Life members will travel to Washington DC for a conference. They are having various fund raisers to pay for the trip.

CSF

Students Earn High Marks

Being a member of the California Scholarship Federation is an honor hard to win. A student must maintain a Ten Academic Point minimum. An "A" is worth 3 points and a "B" is 1 point. CSF promotes scholarship and citizenship as well as community and school service. If one is a CSF member for four semesters he is eligible for a Seal Bearer of Life Membership. The seal appears on the member's high school diploma and all official documents.

This year CSF is lead by President Scott Emery, who is a four year member. Anh Le holds the Vice Presidency; Carolyn Sprague is Secretary; Treasurer is Ellen Bergan; Laura Barton is the Historian.

Meetings are held once a month. Among this year the group is performing school service by giving free tutoring. They also have fund raisers, such as car washes and even a fifties dance. "This year we are sponsoring poor children from other countries," explains Scott Emery. End-of-the-year parties at the beach are another common happening with the CSF group. These scholars know how to supplement their studies with community service as well as fun.

Key Club Starts Anew

The Key Club, an offshoot of Kiwanis Club is a youth organization that raises money and donates it to others in need. This year the club plans some fund raisers such as flower sales.

Two years ago at Granite Hills there were the Keywanettes for girls and the Key Club for guys. Last year it was going to be co-ed, but the shortage of members caused the cancellation of the club. This year the Key Club is co-ed and they are satisfied with the turnout. Unlike many clubs with membership requirements, anyone currently enrolled at Granite Hills may be a member of the Key Club. Russ Olsen, the president of Key Club, has a lot of plans for this club. "A Magic Mountain trip will be the most fun for raising money," he commented.

Club Takes Three Successful Ski Trips

Hungry for good skiing? Members of the Ski Club satisfied their appetite by skiing at Mammoth Mountain. Two trips in January and one in March rounded out the season for these avid skiers. After a hard day of skiing students enjoyed sitting around a fire with all of their friends. All three trips were a huge success.

Sports

Grow in San Diego

The past twenty-five years have brought about great changes in the world of sports. The sports at Granite Hills High School and in the San Diego area have evolved to offer many new, exciting opportunities for athletes. The silver anniversary of Granite Hills is a good occasion to think back on the last quarter century of sports.

In the early 1960's, teams differed tremendously from today's. The only team sport accessible to girls was tennis. The cheerleading squad included guys and songleaders, facets that were soon to disappear. Granite Hills also featured rifle and bowling teams. During these same years, an emerging young American Football League team called the Chargers appeared in Los Angeles. Players like Jack Kemp, Ernie Ladd and the immortal Lance Alworth helped to make the San Diego Chargers one of the A.F.L.'s most respected teams. Late in the 1960's, San Diego celebrated the opening of its new, modern stadium, the San Diego Stadium. Major league baseball came to San Diego in the form of the Padres.

The 1970's brought about a revolution in sports at Granite Hills. Boys' soccer teams, swim teams, girls' volleyball, powderpuff football, gymnastics and girls' and boys' basketball teams were all initiated at Granite Hills in the early 1970's. Later came events such as girls' track and softball. Other teams emerged in San Diego also. The San Diego Clippers came to town as a pro basketball team. Meanwhile, the Padres struggled through their seasons, trying unsuccessfully to even their record at .500. The Chargers floundered through most of the 1970's, but emerged as "Air Coryell" with the league's leading offense in 1979. The San Diego Sockers also proved to be a powerhouse.

The 1980's began with a down note as the United States boycotted the summer Olympic Games in Moscow, USSR sparking the Russians' boycott of the 1984 summer Olympic Games in Los Angeles. Injury-riddled, troubled times have caused the downfall of the Chargers in recent seasons. Yet, San Diego fans still have plenty to cheer about. The San Diego Padres, after fifteen seasons of losing ways, shocked the nation by beating the Chicago Cubs in the National League playoffs in a dramatic, come-from-behind effort to win the NL Pennant. As the World Series came to San Diego, excitement prevailed, but was cut short by the impressive play of the AL champion Detroit Tigers. At Granite Hills, new girls' soccer and lacrosse teams were added.

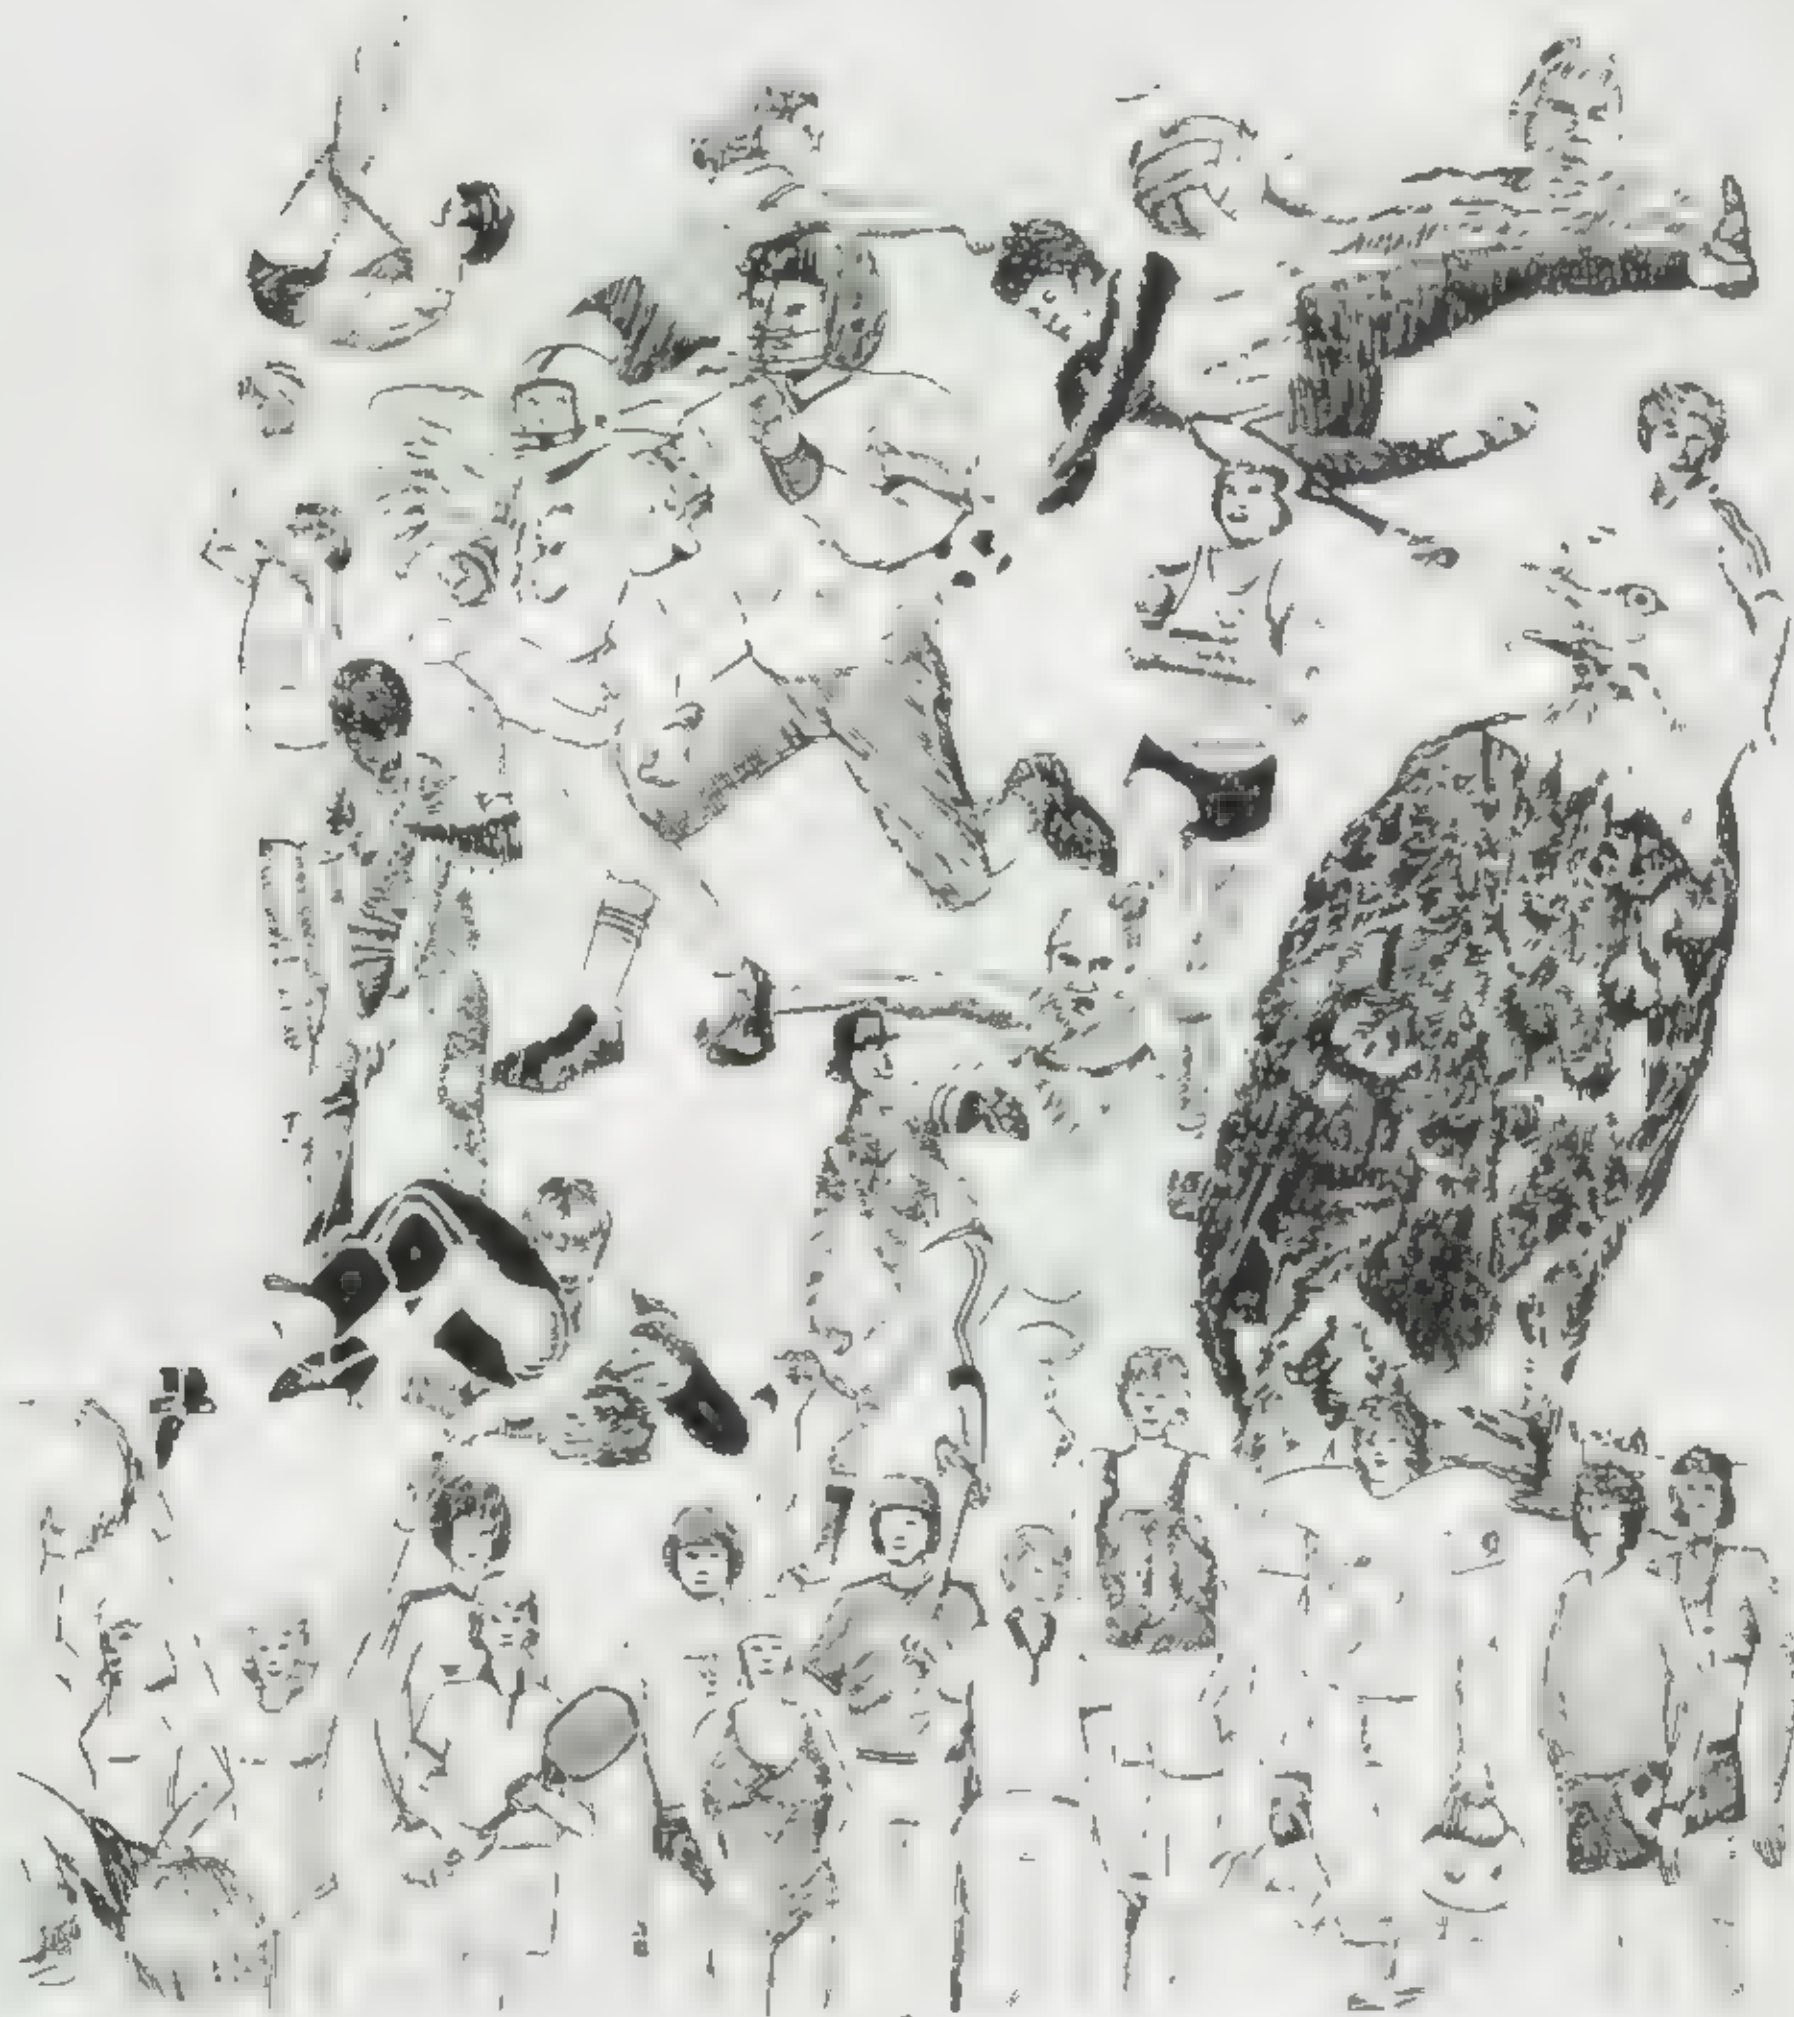

The future looks bright for sports in San Diego. The Padres have a good chance at many more World Series berths, led by million-dollar men like Steve Garvey and 'Goose' Gossage. Sports at Granite Hills and San Diego have progressed and modernized throughout the past twenty-five years and should continue to do so in future times.

Carrying the ball, tight end Kyle Robbins runs for a first down against Valhalla.

Under the guidance of Head Coach Paul Wargo, the Eagles concluded their season 8-2 and in third place in league play. Quarterback Erik Ramer who led the league passing with 1,400 yards, and Running Back Bruce Weber, who ran for 1,119 yards, were the offensive work horses for the team. Both were selected on the first team All-League. Also picked on the first team were Tight End Kyle Robbins, Offensive Guard Otis Falkenstrom,

Linebacker Lance Allister, and Defensive Back David Coker. Bruce Weber, who was selected Offensive Player of The Year for the Crossmont League, commented, "Everybody worked well together. We were a good team when we played as one and not as individuals."

Granite Hills students of 84-85 will always remember the season's turning point game, which Granite won 16-0, against one of the toughest opponents in the county, Helix. No one has shut out the Highlanders for more than 8 years!

Other coaches and trainers that added support to this victorious season were Tony Hoffman, Dave Barbus, and Mark Deesing.

These players practiced many hours to provide this sensational season and many of them promise to be just as successful in college.

Cheer Tries New Twist

This year the Varsity Cheer squad has greatly improved. Many of the cheerleaders attended Cheer Camp over the summer. Throughout that week, they learned advanced cheer techniques and various stunts and pyramids. This year also marks the return of male cheerleaders to the squad after years without them.

This year's male cheerleaders add variety to the Eagle Squad. They enable the squad to do daring pyramids that girls alone couldn't do. According to the girls, "The guys are a lot of fun!"

Cheerleading isn't just going to football games. They attend every sport. It's hard work and time consuming, but our cheerleaders are devoted. They attend practice three times a week for two hours, have fund raisers, such as bake sales and car washes. They are led by captain Stacy Allen, and also develop routines for competitions around San Diego County.

JV Bubbles with Pep

The JV squad bubbles cheer while visiting Monte Vista. The crowd at JV football games were sparse. Coaches and staff cheer as the team shows their power as they lead a cheer.

Y... .. JV cheerleaders to be beat. They tried to cheer to show their spirit this year.

On Halloween the JV and Varsity squads work together to form a pyramid. This impressive pyramid received much applause from the student body.

This year all of the J.V. cheerleaders are new, but those who have seen them cheer know how seasoned they appear. They are enthusiastic and precise in their cheers. A generous number of them show up at Varsity games and cheer in the stands.

J.V. cheer has a new style of cheering this year. Like the Varsity, they've added pyramids to their cheers. According to Junior Paige Russell, "Cheerleading is hard work but a lot of fun. I've made many new friends this year."

To raise money for their squad, they have bake sales and car washes as well as selling refreshments on registration day in early September. Many of these girls hope to be selected for Varsity cheer next year.

JV Comes On Strong

The Junior Varsity football season was surely a disappointment for all the talented players on the team. They finished the season with a 6-3-1 mark. Coaches were Steve Gruneisen, Scott Gruneisen, and Steve Paris. The team started off strong, but seemed to lose direction later. The players, however, improved with each game.

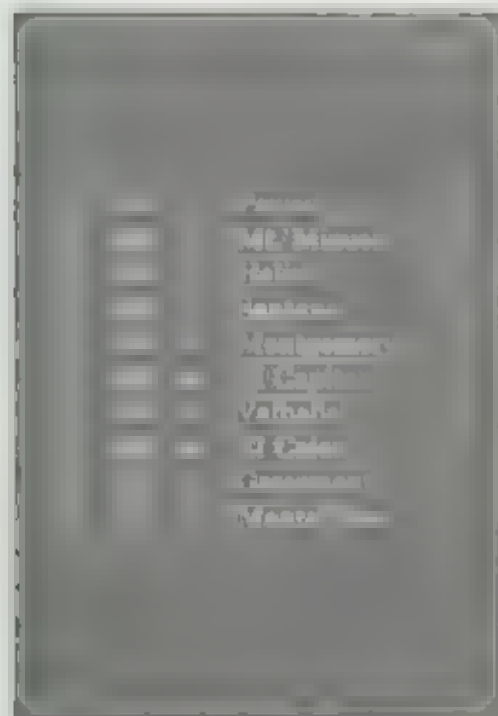

The offense was led by quarterback Donnie Carroll and P.J. Mikolajewski, running back Ricky Stauffer, and wide receiver Danny Santos. Donnie, a varsi ty hopeful until he injured his ankle, quarterbacked the first half of the JV season, while P.J. took the helm the second half.

The defense showed outstanding abilities with performances by end Rex Stacey and back Jason Degroote.

The highlight of the year was the Grossmont game, which the team won 31-24. "It was the best game we ever played!" exclaimed Kenny Cauthon. "We came out ready to play in that game."

Overall, both the junior varsity and varsity girls' tennis teams had very pleasing seasons. Coach Patty Knight declared that "all around they did really good this season, better than I expected." The varsity finished the season with a 9-7 record, and the Junior varsity finished with an amazing 14-2 record.

Grossmont and Monte Vista proved to be the varsity's toughest opponents, winning each of the two times the teams met. Susan Boehm and Beth Keltner were the varsity's best doubles team, with a record of 25-14. Christina Larrazabo was the best singles player with a record of 36-12. The junior varsity lost only to Monte Vista and Valhalla by narrow margins of 8-10 in each game. The best doubles players in JV were Ellen Burgen and Stephanie Seiler. With a fantastic record of 26-4, Helena Lundquist had the best singles record at 22-2. Overall, both teams had good seasons.

Stars Shine in Polo Play

The 1984 varsity water polo team was a diamond in the rough. As Coach Craig Matern reported, "This is a really inexperienced varsity. I didn't expect them to do as well as they did."

Only three varsity lettermen, Corbet Jones, David Hackett and David Pemberton, returned to play this year. The rest of the team was returning JV players.

Individual players shone during a rough season. David Hackett, goalie, led the league with 336 saves for the season and 555 for his career. He also broke the Granite Hills and Grossmont League records for most saves in a season.

Corbet Jones, one of three returning lettermen, proved himself as a strong swimmer, and shooter.

Brent Marquand, a junior and first year player, not only made the varsity but also lettered.

Andy Herold, a versatile player, played tough not only on defense but at offense too, shooting some 19 goals for the season, and set team record for most goals in a game (7).

Dan Courtois, one of the teams strongest swimmers, played great defense and offense. He will be a real asset to the team next season.

Sean Maynard played offense this year and showed he could make the plays work.

Les Shrum shot a big 50 goals and culled 28 assists. He was also a great swimmer and passer.

One of the two girls on the varsity, Kim Germain did really well as one of the team's best swimmers. She played both defense and offense and became a great passer.

Jennifer Riley, the other girl, joined the team late in the season but made a big contribution.

John Chapman really improved in defense to become a strong shooter and passer. His humor also helped the rest of the team to relax.

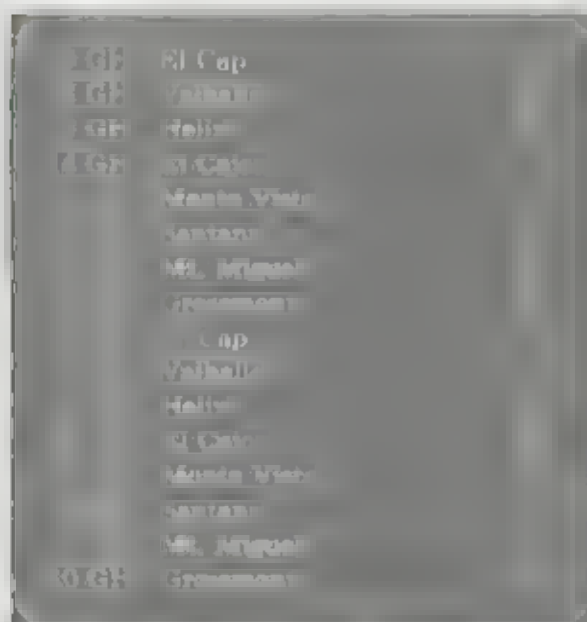

David Pemberton was a tough player. He could often turn a bad play into a goal.

The JV squad, a team filled with rookies, did very well, placing 4th.

Both teams look forward to '85 as a year to capitalize on this year's start.

Girls Serve Wins

The girls Varsity volleyball team had another outstanding season in 1984. The new coach, Renate Busch, guided the team to the CIF playoffs and announced that it was "an excellent season." Busch previously played for and coached teams at San Diego State University, a school notorious for its powerful women's volleyball teams. Getting a new coach this season proved to be a smart move. The Eagles had a perfect season, defeating every league opponent soundly.

Over the entire season, the team was never even behind by more than five points! Jenny Crocker was sensational once again, terrifying league opponents and earning herself the Grossmont League's Most Valuable Player honors for the third straight year. Sheri Guseman, Leisa Hagen, Karen Barnev, Lori Hagen, Melissa Stokes and Kim Martinez were also top-notch performers and contributed greatly to the success of the team. The Eagles' toughest opponent in league play was Vashita, although the Eagles proved themselves superior in both meetings. In the opening round of the cross-3A CIF playoffs the Eagles defeated a strong Serra team with scores of 15-2, 13-15, 15-2 and 15-2. The Eagles then went on to play Poway at La Jolla High. Disappointment prevailed as the Eagles' season ended with a loss of 11-15, 4-15, and 6-15 to Poway. Eagle standout Jenny Crocker summed it all up as "a super season."

Setting the ball for Jenny Crocker, is Melissa Stokes. Both girls contributed greatly to the team's success.

Working together, Darla Garcia and Cherie Ulloa help the team. This type of teamwork has helped the team through their good season.

JV Evens the Score

The Junior Varsity girls' volleyball team had a good year. The team, led by coach Charlie Neel, finished the season in fourth place in the Grossmont League with an even record of eight wins and eight losses. The best Junior Varsity player was Kristin Allen

The toughest opponent of the year for the Junior Varsity was Valhalla, a good team which soundly beat the Eagles both times the teams met. However, the last game of the year, against Valhalla, proved to be the most exciting. The team may have lost, but the Eagles put up a good fight.

The Junior Varsity team did not receive much recognition for their efforts this season, however, because a powerful Varsity team overshadowed them. Overall, though, the girls had a really respectable year

Runners Show Talent

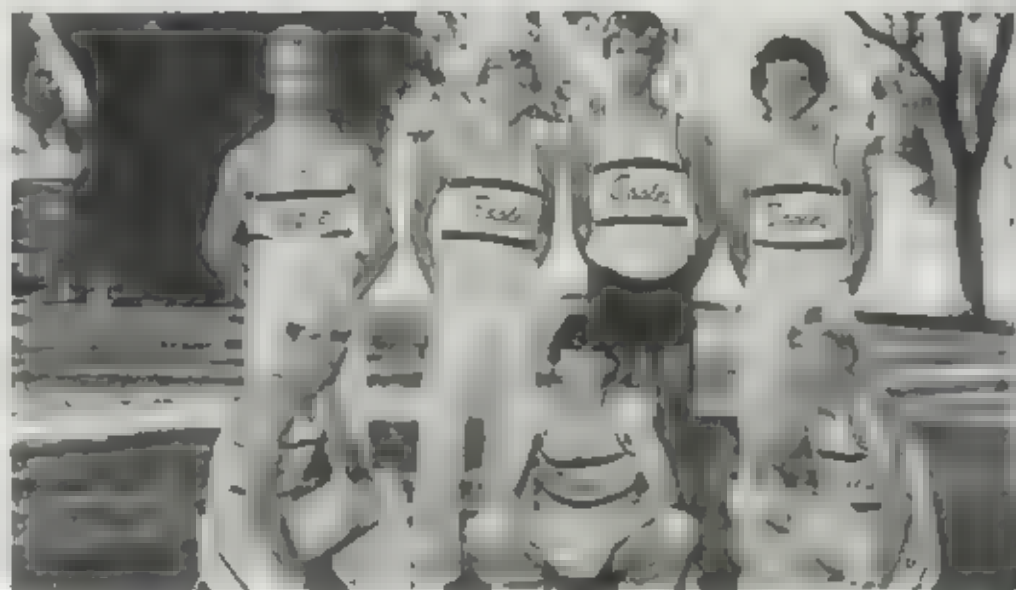

Our Cross Country team had an acceptable season. We finished strong at 5-3. Coach Steve Brown, a campus supervisor, helped the team to win the hard meets. This is Steve's first year as a coach, but he is an alumni Cross Country runner, having run for Granite Hills in 1975. Ed Arrieta shared the coaching chores although he spent more time with the girls team. Our runners were led by juniors and seniors this season.

The toughest races of the year were against El Capitan and Valhalla. The most exciting race was against Mount Miguel and Grossmont. Everybody had a personal best on the flat, fast course at Santee Lakes. Best times for 3 miles were: Mike Ieler, 15:50; John Rice, 15:54; Sean Stirling, 16:01; Steve Rader, 16:27; Mark Lange, 16:44; Tom Lower, 16:30; Don Scheidle, 16:55; Bob Moison, 17:40.

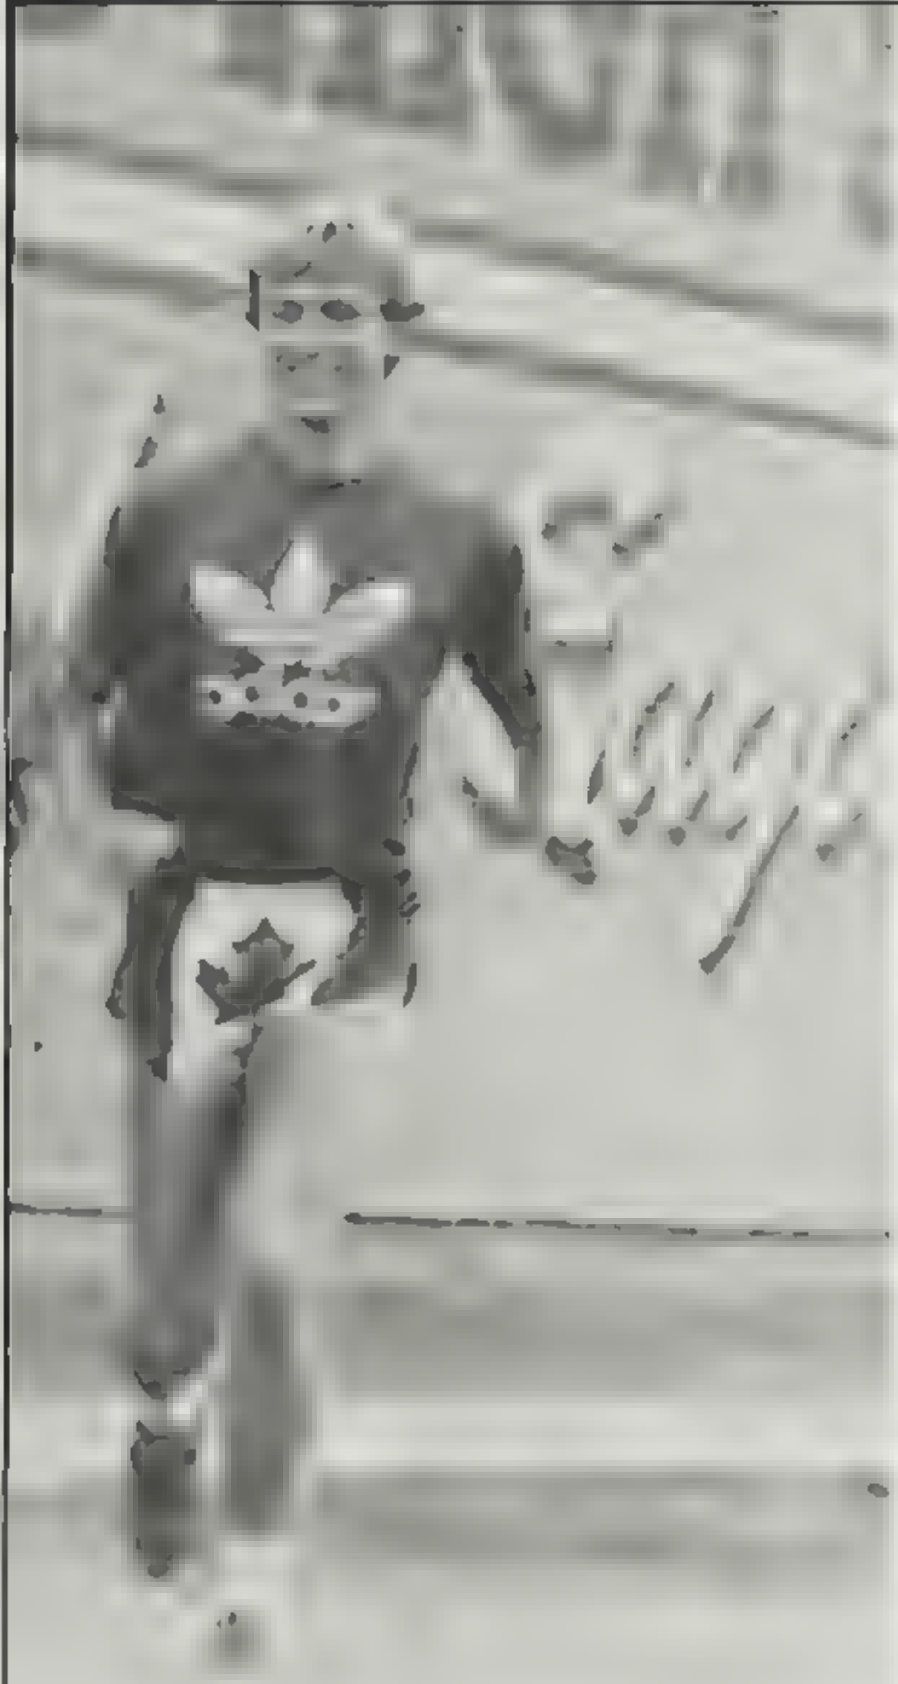

Our best J.V. runner is Joe Bodensadt. His best was 18:03, at Santee Lakes.

Run Girls, Run

For the number of runners, the Girls Cross Country Team has done well. The record for the year was 4-4. Jenny Mayfield was the top girl runner this year. In one of Jenny's races at West Hills, she ran 13:30. At this same meet, she placed 2nd. The second best runner was senior Marjorie Turk. As she said, "The most thrilling part about cross country this year was making the team for C.I.F. prelims and finals — also working as a team."

The girls have not only competed in the usual meets, they have also attended three invitationals: South Bay, Mount Carmel, and Mount Sac. At South Bay, Jenny Mayfield had an outstanding time of 13:40 and came in first for our team. Several other girls also did well: Jamie Riley 14:01, Tonia Sieg 15:08, Erin Chester 15:00, and Kristen Wise with 17:28. At Mount Carmel Jenny Mayfield again with another good time of 15:36, finished first for our team. Other good times were Jamie Riley 16:35, Tonia Sieg 17:48, Erin Chester 17:49, and Kristen Wise 19:17. At Mount Sac there were only two girls that competed: Jenny Mayfield with the time of 21:08, and Jamie Riley with 22:09. Although this year was tough, the team came through with pride.

The team anxiously awaits the starting of the race. The team as a whole raced well

Pin 'Em Down

Mostly comprised of sophomores and juniors, this young wrestling team proved to be surprisingly strong. In order to be in peak shape, the team practiced hard. The daily practice consisted of running, weights, calisthenics, and of course, wrestling.

This year's team was again led by Coach Grisafi with the help of captain Tim Briggs and co-captain Dave Myers. Captain Tim Briggs says, "We have a strong team this year with only one player not returning."

Besides competing within the Grossmont District, these dedicated players also competed in tournaments on many Saturdays. The wrestlers kept up their annual tradition by going to Milano Brothers Pizza every Thursday and Saturday after their matches.

The close ties between the players made the season enjoyable as well as successful.

Under the leadership of Coach Gist, these young athletes worked diligently and performed well. They showed steady improvement at mid-season. The J.V. also competed in tournaments outside the Grossmont District, held on many Saturdays. To wrestle in upcoming meets, the wrestlers must wrestle their weight class opponent. Whoever wins gets to be in the wrestling match. Dan Pearlman comments, "The J.V. team is inexperienced but is working hard and getting better." This team does not just have one captain; each week the coach picks a different one. There are no tryouts. Whoever wants to be on the team can make it and, with practice, compete.

Soccer Heads for CIF

The Eagle soccer team at mid season had compiled record setting statistics that could shatter existing CIF records. After six league games, the team scored 61 goals and allowed a meager 2 against them. Not only were they leading the league with a two game cushion but were ranked the number 1 team in San Diego county.

Individually, Scott Emery had recorded five shut-outs. The three top scorers in the county were Eric Peterson, 11, Todd Prentice, 12, and Wally Polcyn, 12.

During the Christmas holidays the soccer team won four games to claim, for the third time, the John Wilson tournament championship. Easily the class team in the Grossmont District, the team is well on its way to a CIF championship.

In the second round, the Eagles shut out a strong Grossmont team with another 2 to 0. Eric Peterson scored both goals.

In the semi-finals against Helix, Eric Peterson scored three goals and Todd Prentice and Tom Williams each scored one goal to beat Helix 5 to 0.

Granite Hills defeated Valhalla 7 to 2 to win the Christmas tournament championship for the second straight year. Eric Peterson added two more goals in this game to raise his total to eight in the tournament and was awarded the most valuable player award.

The entire boys' soccer team played extremely well in this year's Christmas tournament. The Eagles have become a strong, powerful team that league opponents have learned to fear.

After jumping up to head the ball, Jerry Pennock comes down to earth. Jerry's efforts helped the Eagles defeat the Sultans.

Racing towards the goalbox, Jerry Pennock dribbles the ball past the opponents. Dribbling is a skill that all soccer players must master.

Taking a shot at the goal, Scott Redmond demonstrates the Eagles' winning form. The Eagles scored a total of eleven goals in that January 15th game.

Kicking the ball down the field Cheryl McColl heads toward the goal box. Cheryl was the star halfback on the team.

Fighting for the ball, Aimee Roberts concentrates on the position of the ball in the air. Aimee, a returning letterperson, played both fullback and wing.

Freshman Melanie Somers steals the ball from her opponent. Offensive moves such as this helped the team to their good season.

Trying to block a kick, Tonya Slojowski is cheered on by teammate Brenna Bravo. Tonya, a superb athlete, plays both wing and halfback.

Charging toward the ball Cheryl McColl will attempt to get the ball after the opponent steals the ball from Melanie Somers. Returning letterperson Cheryl was one of the highest scorers on the team.

Wing Tonya Slojowski throws in the ball after it was kicked out of bounds by an opponent. Tonya, a freshman, had a very successful first year.

With great concentration, Michelle Ironside struggles to keep the ball from going out of bounds. Michelle, a returning letterperson, plays the wing position.

As a fallen opponent tries to regain control of the ball, Cheryl McColl and Andrea Young go after it. Aggressive play such as this propelled the team to their success.

Injuries Plague Year

Storming down the field Kirsten Fenn prepares to pass the ball to a teammate. Kirsten was one of the many freshman starters to gain experience throughout the year.

Coach Armand Salinas calls the team together to discuss game strategy. Coach Salinas helped the team attain great unity in spirit.

Leaping to catch the ball goalie Martha Creech saves an attempted goal by the other team. Martha, a freshman, made many saves to help the team to a very respectable season.

The girls' soccer team had a great year, considering the fact that two of the best players were plagued with injuries throughout the season. Melissa Stokes, perhaps the best player on the team, was injured halfway through the season, which as assistant coach Farrar said, "perhaps killed the team's chances for the playoffs." However, the injuries to Melissa and to returning letterman Cheryl McColl allowed many freshman players the chance to obtain valuable experience which will be a real asset to the team in the next few years. Other returning letterwinners who greatly helped the team were Andrea Young and Paula Tjarks.

The toughest opponents the Eagles faced were Valhalla and Grossmont, both notorious for their strong girls' soccer teams. The most exciting game however, was on Friday, January 18 when Granite Hills defeated Monte Vista at Monte Vista. With a score of 3 to 2, the Eagles beat the Monarchs for the first time ever. Coach Salinas helped the girls to work and to prepare for the game, and everyone had a feeling of achievement about their accomplishment. In the first ever girls' soccer Holiday Tour nament in San Pasqual, the Eagles beat a good San Marcos team to come in first in the limited division.

Throughout the season, regardless of the costly injuries, the girls had a lot of spirit and the young players had a lot of promise for future seasons.

Boys Shoot Short

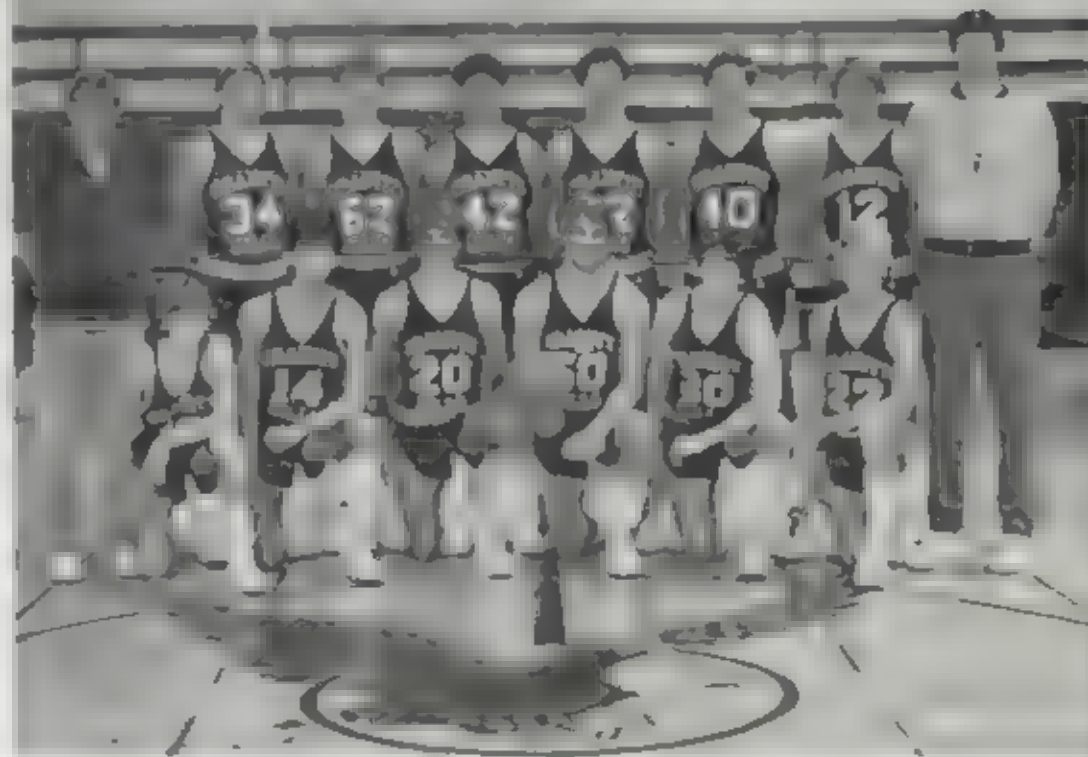

This year's varsity basketball team faced a very frustrating season. This very young team had only one returning letterman, Tom Shawcroft, a 6 ft. 1 inch tall senior who was a key offensive player and chosen for all league second team. Juniors Dan Barnes (a 6 ft. 2 inch forward center) Vernie Wutzke (a 5 ft. 11 inch guard) and Brad Thompson (playing center at 6 ft. 3 inches) contributed greatly to the team. Junior Todd Parker, (a 5 ft. 11 inch guard) was the key defense man. Granite Hills went up against many tough teams such as El Cajon Valley, but could not stand their ground against El Capitan and Monte Vista. Problems such as height and inexperience hurt the teams standings. Although the season was tough and the team finished 3 and 13 in league play, it looks forward to next year with great hopes, as ten lettermen return.

This was coach Thompson's last year as varsity basketball coach. He said "the season was one of experience."

Number one offensive player Tom Shawcroft dribbles the ball towards the basket. The rest of the team follows him. The team's record is 3 and 13 in league play. The team's record is 3 and 13 in league play.

Victor Harker, Lee Harker, and Fred Harker were all players who were all played by his team this year.

Eagles Labor in Vain

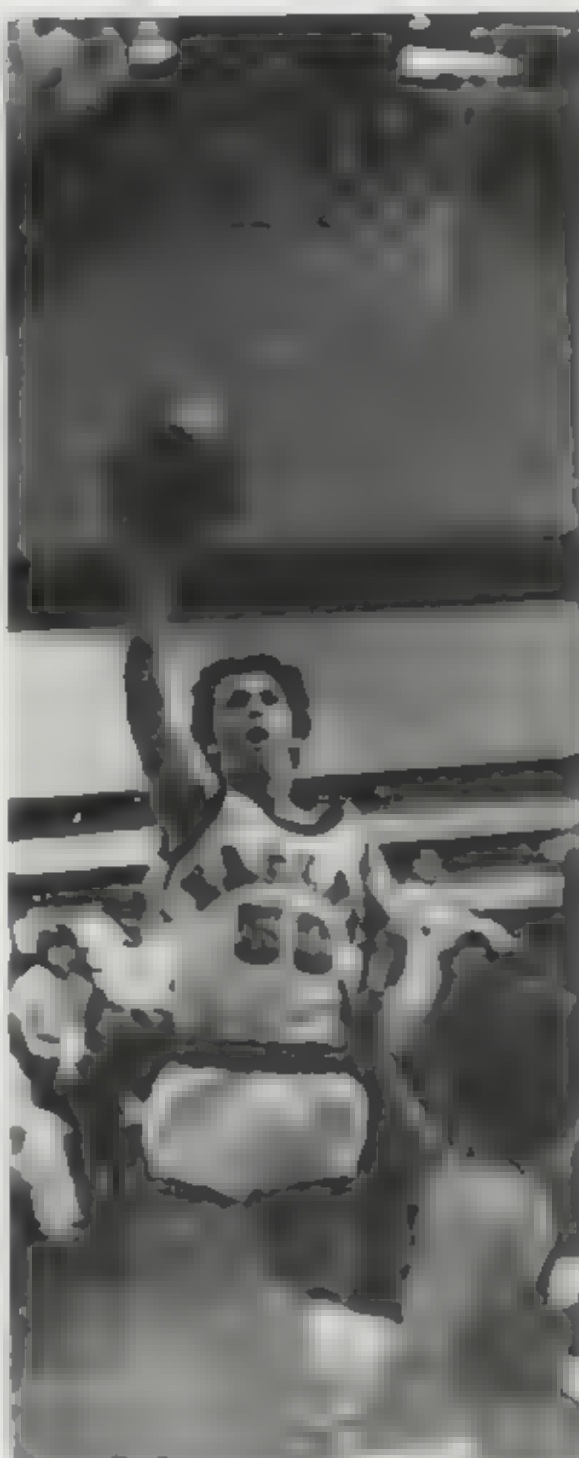

For the JV Boys' Basketball team, the year was filled with highs and lows. Although the team only won three of their sixteen league games, the effort put forth by the team was commendable. The team was, as a whole, young and very inexperienced. As the season progressed, there was a dramatic improvement. The team never gave up and always did their best, no matter what the score looked like.

One game that best shows their performance was against Valhalla. Granite Hills was trailing by nine points at the third quarter. The coach put in freshmen whose talent brought the points up so that the team was only trailing by four points. Finally, starters Chance Cosner, Brad Halte, Ken Weyand, and Rubin Williams, were brought in. Eventually, the Eagles pulled ahead to win.

The first half of the season, the team only won one game. During the second half, they won two games and the scores were much closer. By the end of the season, the team was looking much better. Next year should be much improved. Coach Mark Curran explained the hopes of the team, when he said, "We are looking forward to next year."

During the game, Ken Weyand heads for the hoop. Ken, a sophomore, is a very active player on the team. Santana tries to unsuccessfully swish the shot by Rubin Williams, but his arm is perfect. This sophomore starter scored many points this season.

The 1984-85 Girls' Varsity Basketball team, struggling to win, this year came up with an unsuccessful season. Under the new varsity coach, John Bocko, the girls struggled through a tough year. The team's leading scorer, Leisa Hagen, averaged ten points a game. She is a senior this year and will be missed very much next year.

This young team came out in league standings with two wins and fourteen losses. The majority of the girls came up from J.V. without any varsity experience. April Butcher expressed her thoughts about next year, "Now that we have varsity experience, I am looking forward to a more successful year next year." The varsity girls will start next year only losing two people. This team looks forward to a more experienced team next year.

Led by Cookie Sullivan, the new J.V. coach, the young Eagle team had an average year. Considering little experience and a new coach, the J.V. girls did more than expected. Terry Carroll and Rashelle Walker led the J.V. team throughout the season. This was a great experience for all the girls. "At the beginning of the season, everyone looked at each other and did not know what to say. As the season went on, we became more and more of a team. Since this was coach Sullivan's first year coaching, we learned a great deal with her. She is a great coach and helped us throughout a tough year," reminisced Dona Loshonkohl about her year.

Wayne Hickey and Mike O'Malley clear the bar during timing trials. Pole vaulters need both strength and concentration to perform such a difficult stunt.

"The hardest part of being on track is being motivated enough to go out after school and practice," states four-year track veteran Don Scheidle. The members of the team work hard to prepare themselves for the season. Their workouts consist of distance running six to ten miles a day, short distance sprints of 110 to 880 yards, jumps, step drills and weight lifting. Some die-hard "trackers" run extra miles outside of practice and in the off-season. This year, track has had a good turn-out

Russell Olsen, Sean Sterling, Rick Emery, Tom Williams and Don Scheidle are some of the returning athletes

After meets, the team likes to get together for pizza parties, beach parties and spa parties. Every once in a while they go to places like Magic Mountain or Disneyland.

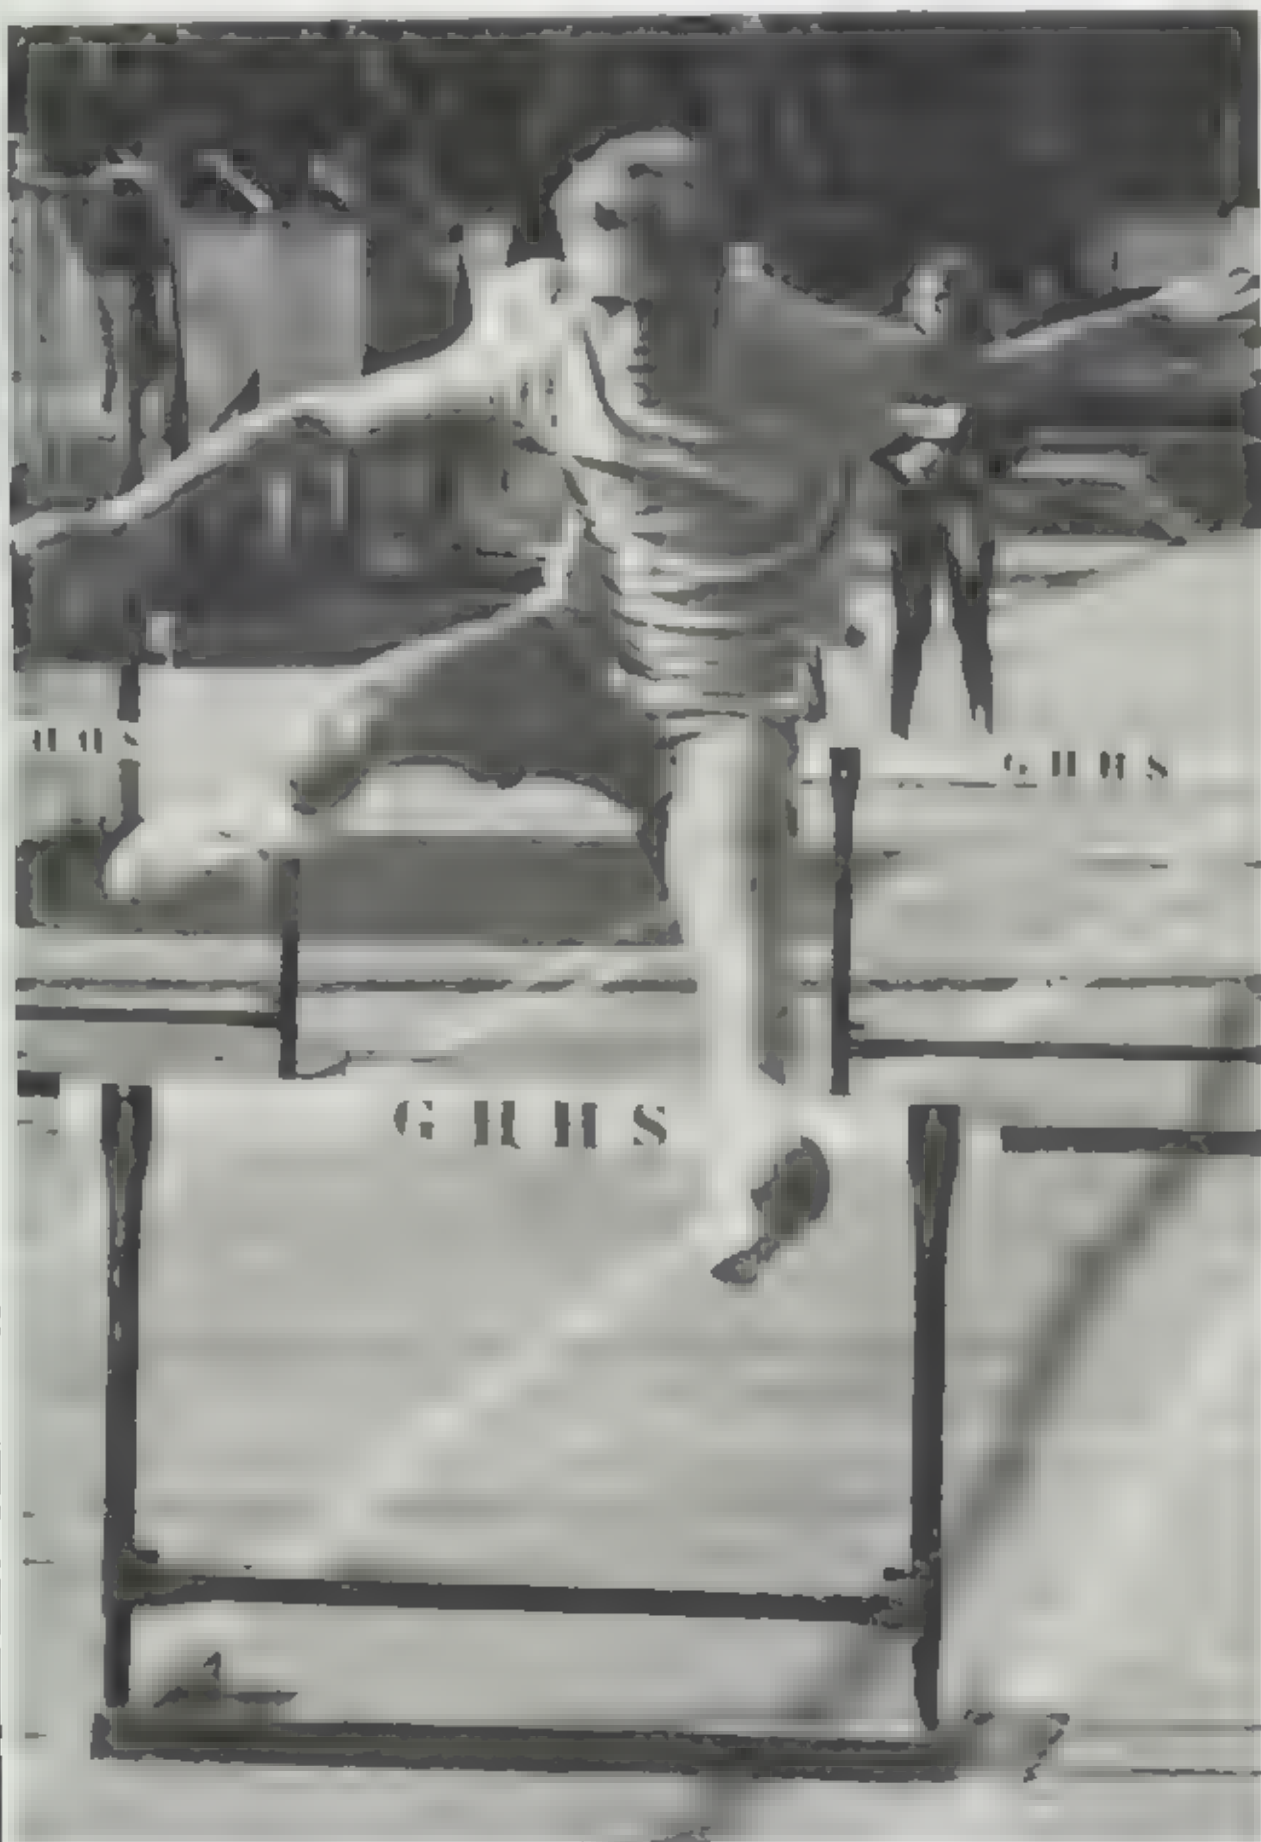

The team is working hard to improve their league standing. This season, they will continue with tri-meets which were started last year

Although Scott is a junior, he is a rookie runner

Although injured, Robert Padilla soars during long and triple jump practice. Robert is proof of a well disciplined and dedicated team

Tom Lower pushes himself to receive a time good enough to impress Coach Paul Wargo at the time trials. The time trials were run to decide who would be sprinters, middle distance and distance runners

Meets Follow Training

The girls on the track team know that when the season begins, rigorous training is necessary for success. For many girls, the hardest part of being on track is the season's start when the coaches push them to their limits. To warm up, the girls run two laps around the field and six 110-yard dashes. The longer distance runners run hills, bleachers, sprints, extra laps and four to five mile runs. For the field events (shot put, discus, high jump, long jump, triple jump and pole vault), the girls work in the weight room and jump rope.

The meets themselves are all triple meets, which consist of three teams competing against each other. Shannon Neilson, in her second year on track, stated that she enjoys "the track meets and also the invitational meets against schools out of our district." Senior Marjorie Turk, the team's most outstanding member, who competes in all of the sprints, likes to be on track because it keeps her in good shape. Another outstanding track member is Christie Gurode.

The girls' track team also has great unity. Occasionally they go to the beach to sit around a bonfire

Bounding through the air, Tami Gripon works on perfecting her form. Very few high school students achieve a form comparable to Tami's

Cindy Brancato and Monique Fergesen push to better their times. The girls work hard to ready themselves for tough competition

Four year track veteran Marjorie Turk pushes hard to finish that last lap. Marjorie knows how important practice is when it comes to winning meets.

Stephanie Golden and Tina Ingrassia indulge in conversation while working out. Many track members develop close friendships during the course of the season.

Tennis Plays to Win

This tennis season should feature one of the strongest tennis teams that G.H.H.S. has ever had. Returning to the team in '85 are Tom Tryforos, Mark Edwards, and Eric Rainer; all have been selected in the past as the team's Most Valuable Players. The most improved player this year appears to be 2-year letterman Bill Thomas, who could soon be challenging for the top position on the ladder. Returning letterman Alex Espinosa; last season's J.V. M.V.P., Jon Tenney; and freshman Preston Waters appear to be rounding out the preseason top seven. Erik Akin, Brent Ford, and Todd Richards also are returning from last year's varsity squad.

Coach Underwood stated, "So many of the players have improved, it's hard to give them a ranking right now. It will have to be determined in the weeks to come. The returning players are going to feel some strong competition from an up-and-coming J.V. contingent that has been playing tournaments year round: Brian Morris, Jeff Merritt, Sam Halabo, Shawn Redmond, and Reed Marquand aren't going to be satisfied with playing J.V. They could be playing varsity for most of the other teams in this league."

"We expect to be one of the top teams in the county this season," stated coach Underwood, "but we still have to contend with the perennial league powers — Valhalla and Monte Vista. They have more highly ranked players, but feel we play better doubles and have more depth. It should be a close race for the top three spots." The Junior Varsity team, under the guidance of assistant coach Bill Staples, is predicted to finish in the top of their league race. They have many returning players in addition to some promising new talent.

Using his two-handed backhand, John Tenney runs for the ball. This sophomore was on the Varsity squad.

Freshman Preston Waters goes for a slice. This lefty played doubles with John Tenney.

A top spin return challenges Eric Rainer. This fourth year varsity player played mostly doubles at the start of the season.

Front row: Kevin Robins, Yoon Cho, Sammy Guerra, Paige Sturgeon, Alex Syktich, Bill Brechsen, Ed May, Jason Smith, John Stone, and Lanny Westherby.

New Gymnasts Soar

This year's J.V. Gymnastics team is expected to finish on top. Three returning gymnasts to keep an eye on are Carm Gallo, Dena Sawver, and Lisa Schaffer. Coach Laurie Downs said, "We have a lot of returning J.V. gymnasts, so the team should be very strong."

There are four categories in gymnastics competition: bars, beam, floor, and vault. Carm Gallo and Dena Sawyer compete all around. Lisa Schaffer competes on the vault and the balance beam.

The gymnastics team includes all who try out. Gymnasts just have to make the top four to compete in each meet. Gymnastics is a difficult but beautiful sport.

Tumblers are Tops

On March 19, 1985, the gymnastics team, in their first meet, defeated Torrey Pines and Grossmont. As we go to press, this is the only complete competition.

Scoring in gymnastics works this way: one person from our team competes against one from the opponents in each event.

The girls are almost all specialists, competing in one or two events only. Tanya Hightman excels in the floor exercises; Wendy Ferland on the beam; Diane Milstead in floor exercise. Ellen Henderson on bars; Krista Pearson in the beam; Cherie Nordenger on the bars; Jenifer Cummings on the floor. Sheryl Bentley on the beam; and Bernedetta Cashman on the beam. As the season opens, the varsity squad, led by coaches Don Walker and Lori Downs, is practicing hard every school day from 3 to 5 or 6 p.m. and hoping the practices will continue to bring them victories.

Coach Mr. Don Walker and Mrs. Lori Downs lounge on the vault. They are joining the squad for the first time this year.

The gymnast is performing a pike position. This maneuver is only one of the many she performs on parts of her floor exercise.

The varsity baseball team appeared to be off to another great season this year. Coach Gordy Thompson and the Eagles began a strong year by placing first in the Hilltop-Moose Tournament. Both the offensive and the defensive sides of the team were strong.

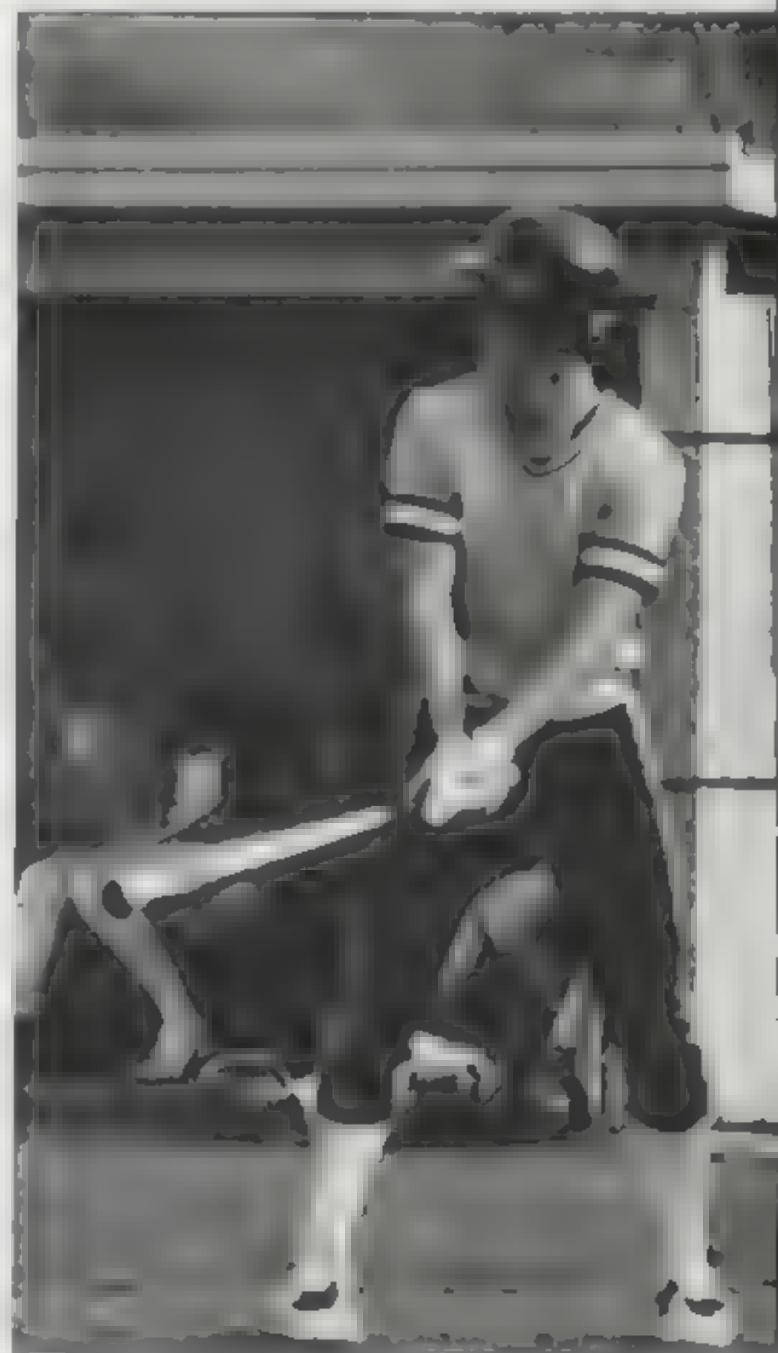

The outstanding pitching staff was led by Fred Helm, Dan Nerat and Aaron Petrich. Damon Hansel, Tim Harris, Frank Carey and Lance Allister have shown their offensive skill at the plate, as well as their expert talents in the field. Other Eagles including Brian Schwartz, Kyle Robbins, Steve Skinner, and Donnie Carroll provided a great challenge to their opponents.

Eight of the returning lettermen were seniors and will certainly be missed next year. However, there are skillful players waiting to replace them and the Granite Hills varsity baseball team expects to continue to shine.

Senior Donnie Carroll surveys the field. During the season he was known for his heavy hitting.

J.V. Baseball Improves

This year's JV Baseball Team expects to put on a good show. Their playing ability has already been shown in their defeat of El Capitan, their first league game of the season.

There are eight returning players this year and Coach Hoffman predicts that the most valuable players will be pitcher/shortstop George Bishop, catcher Jason Degroote, second baseman Todd Bailey, left fielder Joe McLaughlin, pitcher Kurt Southworth, and first baseman Scott Weber.

The team's ability in defense and offense are just about equal. Last season's record was 17-3, and Coach Hoffman says this year's team should be that good or better. This year's toughest opponent may prove to be Valhalla, Santana, or Helix, but as Coach Hoffman says, "You can never tell with JV's." He also says that the team will be as good as their pitchers.

1985 J.V. baseball team roster

George Bisoph — pitcher, shortstop

Jason Degrote — catcher

Scott Weber — first base, pitcher

Jeremy Kay — shortstop

Todd Baily — second base, pitcher

Sean O'Covne — first base, third base

Jeff Moyers — center field

Kurt Southworth — right field, pitcher

Mike Raskind — pitcher

Jamie Lindsey — pitcher

Mike Checchi — catcher, pitcher

Steve Friar — catcher, pitcher

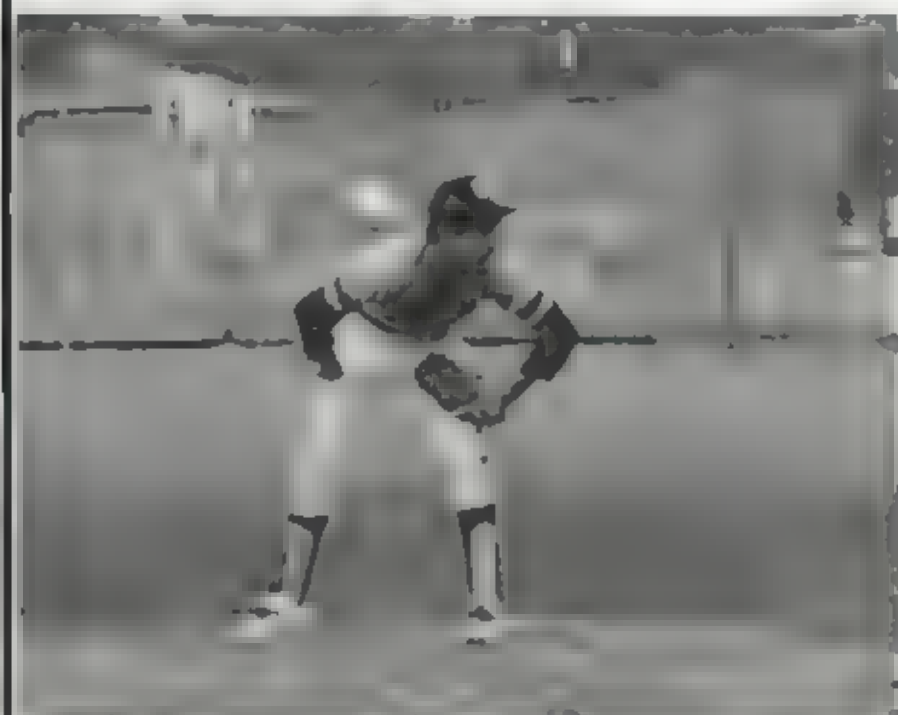

Joey Shulmeister — second base

Tom Vardell — right field

Troy Jernigan — outfield

Hitting home runs for the Eagles, Sam Weaver gets ready to go. He is just one of the players who contribute to a team's success.

Putting his weight into his swing, Sam Weaver shows fans his strength. The Eagles benefit from his offensive skill.

With perceptive judgment, Coach Hoffman looks over his team's ability. His coaching has helped the Eagles immensely.

On the mound, Mike Raskind gets ready to pitch. Pitching takes a shrewd eye and keen judgment.

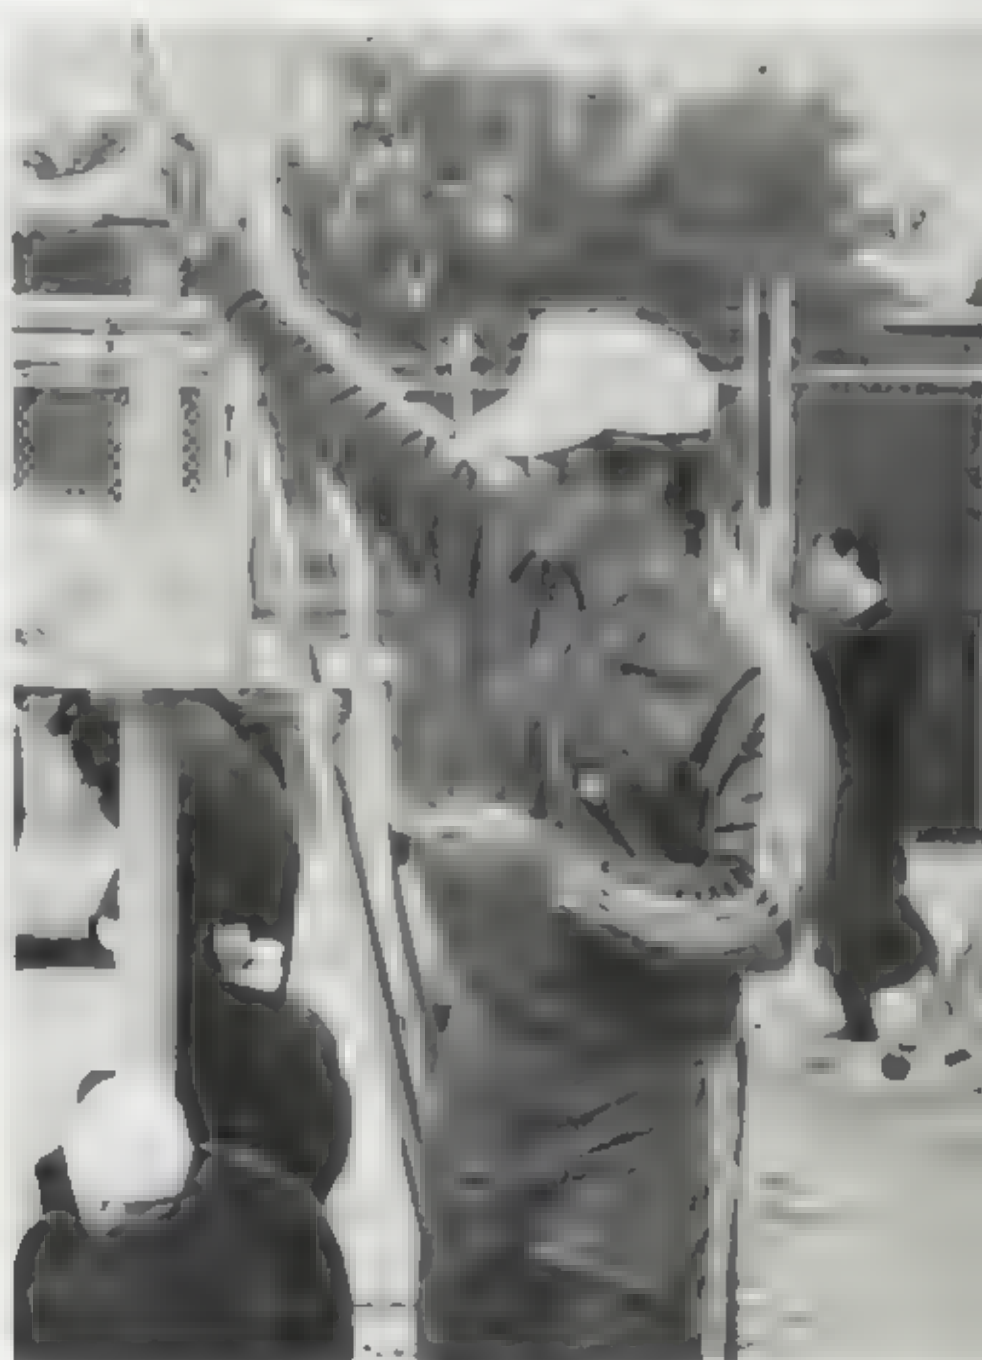

With fine Eagle form and stature, Mike Raskind pitches with force. Because he is a freshman, we can expect increasing ability from him in years to come.

Swimmers' Times Improve

VARSITY

Pam Baker, Hilary Cuevas, Sue Donohoe, Shelly Dunn, Elizabeth Fuller, Kin, Germaine Jennifer Herrera, Renee Lamouree, Marcie LaCasse, Autumn Maza, Sue Merchant, Stephanie Miller, Beth Karsen, Ellen Reinson, Margie Singer, Bonnie Smith, Robin Wacker.

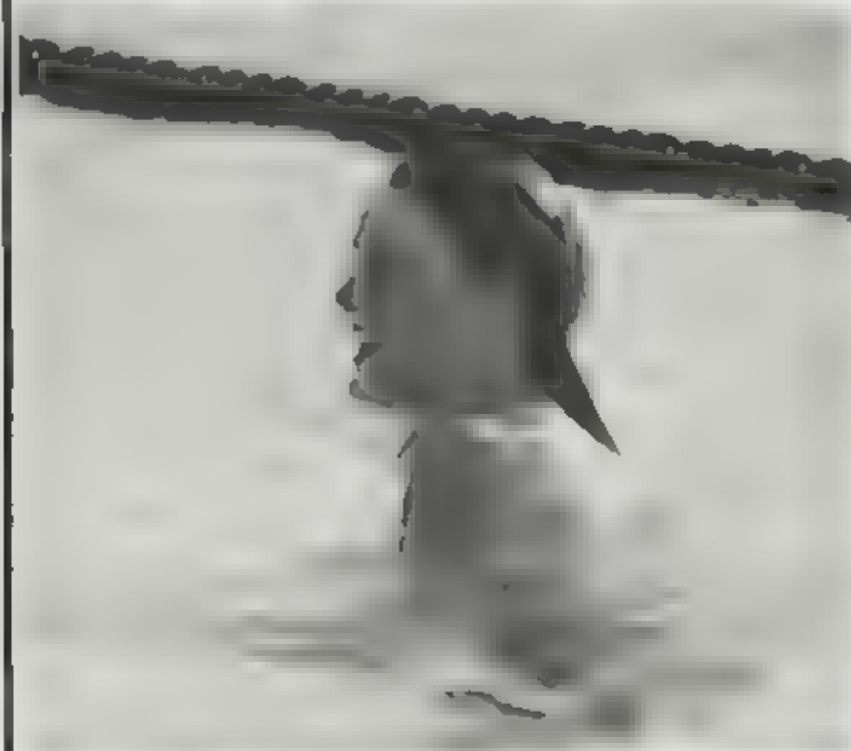

Even after a cold and rainy winter, a record number of girls still wanted to get wet. Approximately sixty girls showed up to participate as members of this year's swim team.

Practice was the key factor for success. The members practiced two hours every day, five days a week working on building endurance, strength and improving the four basic strokes.

Overseeing each practice was Coach Steve Tucker. While coaching each individual on-stroke technique, Steve also had the job of making up workouts to benefit each girl. Coach Tucker worked hard and spent a lot of time to keep the girls motivated and prepared. Each swimmer knew when she was improving as Coach Tucker kept individual times for each girl's performance. One of this year's top swimmers, Jennifer Herrera, said, "This is my third swim season and I have seen a great improvement in the team. I feel much of the team's success is due to our coach, Steve Tucker."

With watchful eyes, Coach Steve Tucker signals to one of the swimmers that they are right on time.

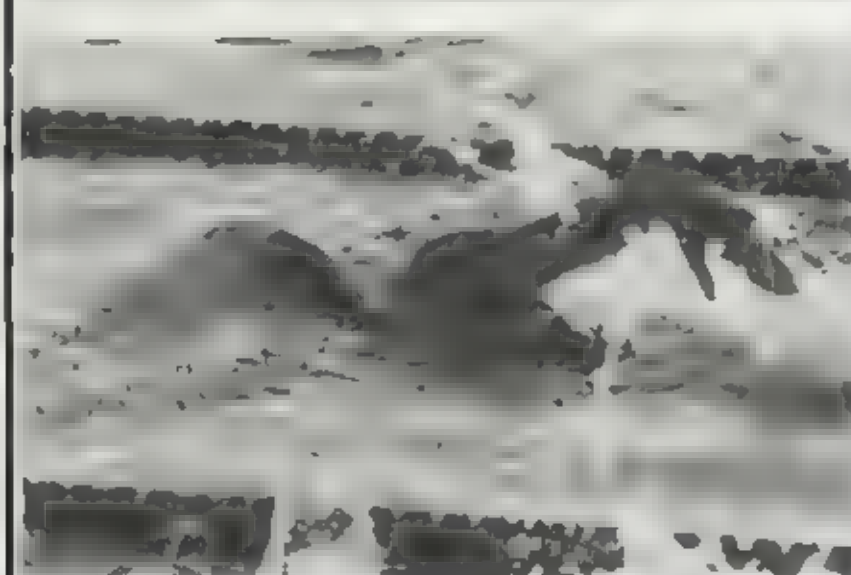

With pread like wings, Jennifer Herrera proves birds aren't the only ones that can fly. Jennifer is one of the top swimmers.

Depth Helps Young Team

Although Granite Hills lost most of its varsity swim team to graduation last year, there are many swimmers who are improving and could become big contenders by the end of the season.

A real hopeful is Burke Kremensky, a freshman, who excels in the 200-individual medley and 100-meter breaststroke. The 50-meter freestyle and 200-medley relay team are the best events for Aaron Gaeir, another ninth grader. Charlie Geng, freshman, is showing encouraging improvement in the 200-meter freestyle and 100-meter backstroke.

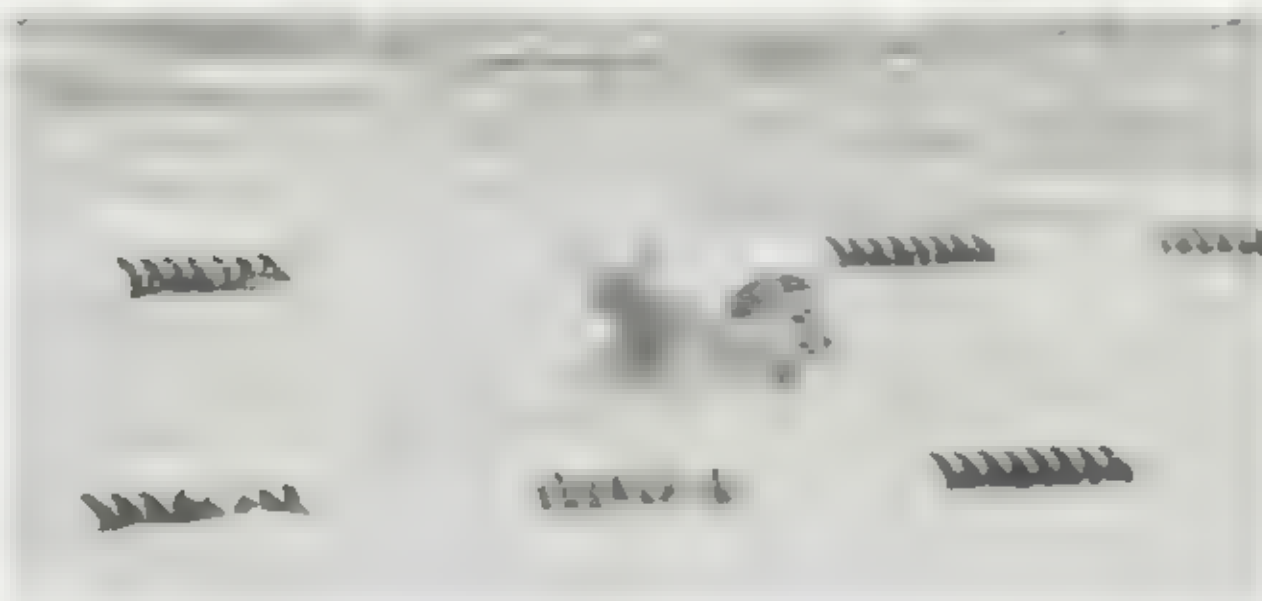

Ti McLaughlin, sophomore, is developing his style as a sprinter in the 50-freestyle and also as a distance man in the 500-meter freestyle. Fellow sophomore Les Shrum heads his program with the 100-meter backstroke and the 200-meter medley team events.

Junior John Chapman is a leader in the 500-meter freestyle while fellow junior Dan Courtois prefers the 50-meter freestyle and 100-meter free. Juniors Andy Herold in the 100-meter backstroke and 200-medley relay team, Brent Marquand in the 500-meter freestyle and Mike Regan in the 100-meter freestyle and the 400-meter relay round out the juniors on the squad.

Corbett Jones, the only senior competing this year, is featured in the 200-meter freestyle and 400-meter relay.

Divers are Ti McLaughlin, Jeff Harrell, and Mike Salerno.

Softball Fills Gaps

The two-time defending Grossmont League girls softball champion have many gaps they must fill. Last year's San Diego CIF 3A division runner-up has a lot of varsity inexperience but the young players could keep the club in playoff contention. The Eagles do have quite a few returning players but if they're enough to mature their younger teammates remains to be seen.

All-League center fielder Stacy Sullivan is the club's best returnee. This 5 foot 2 left hander scored 16 runs in 16 league games a season ago and hit .390. She's one of the league's best defensively. Another returnee outfielder who just missed post season honors with her play in left field is Cheryl Smith. "I would say that the outfield is one of the best," said Coach Neel. "They can go pretty well." Second baseman Debbie Dennett, a senior, returns for her third season as a starter.

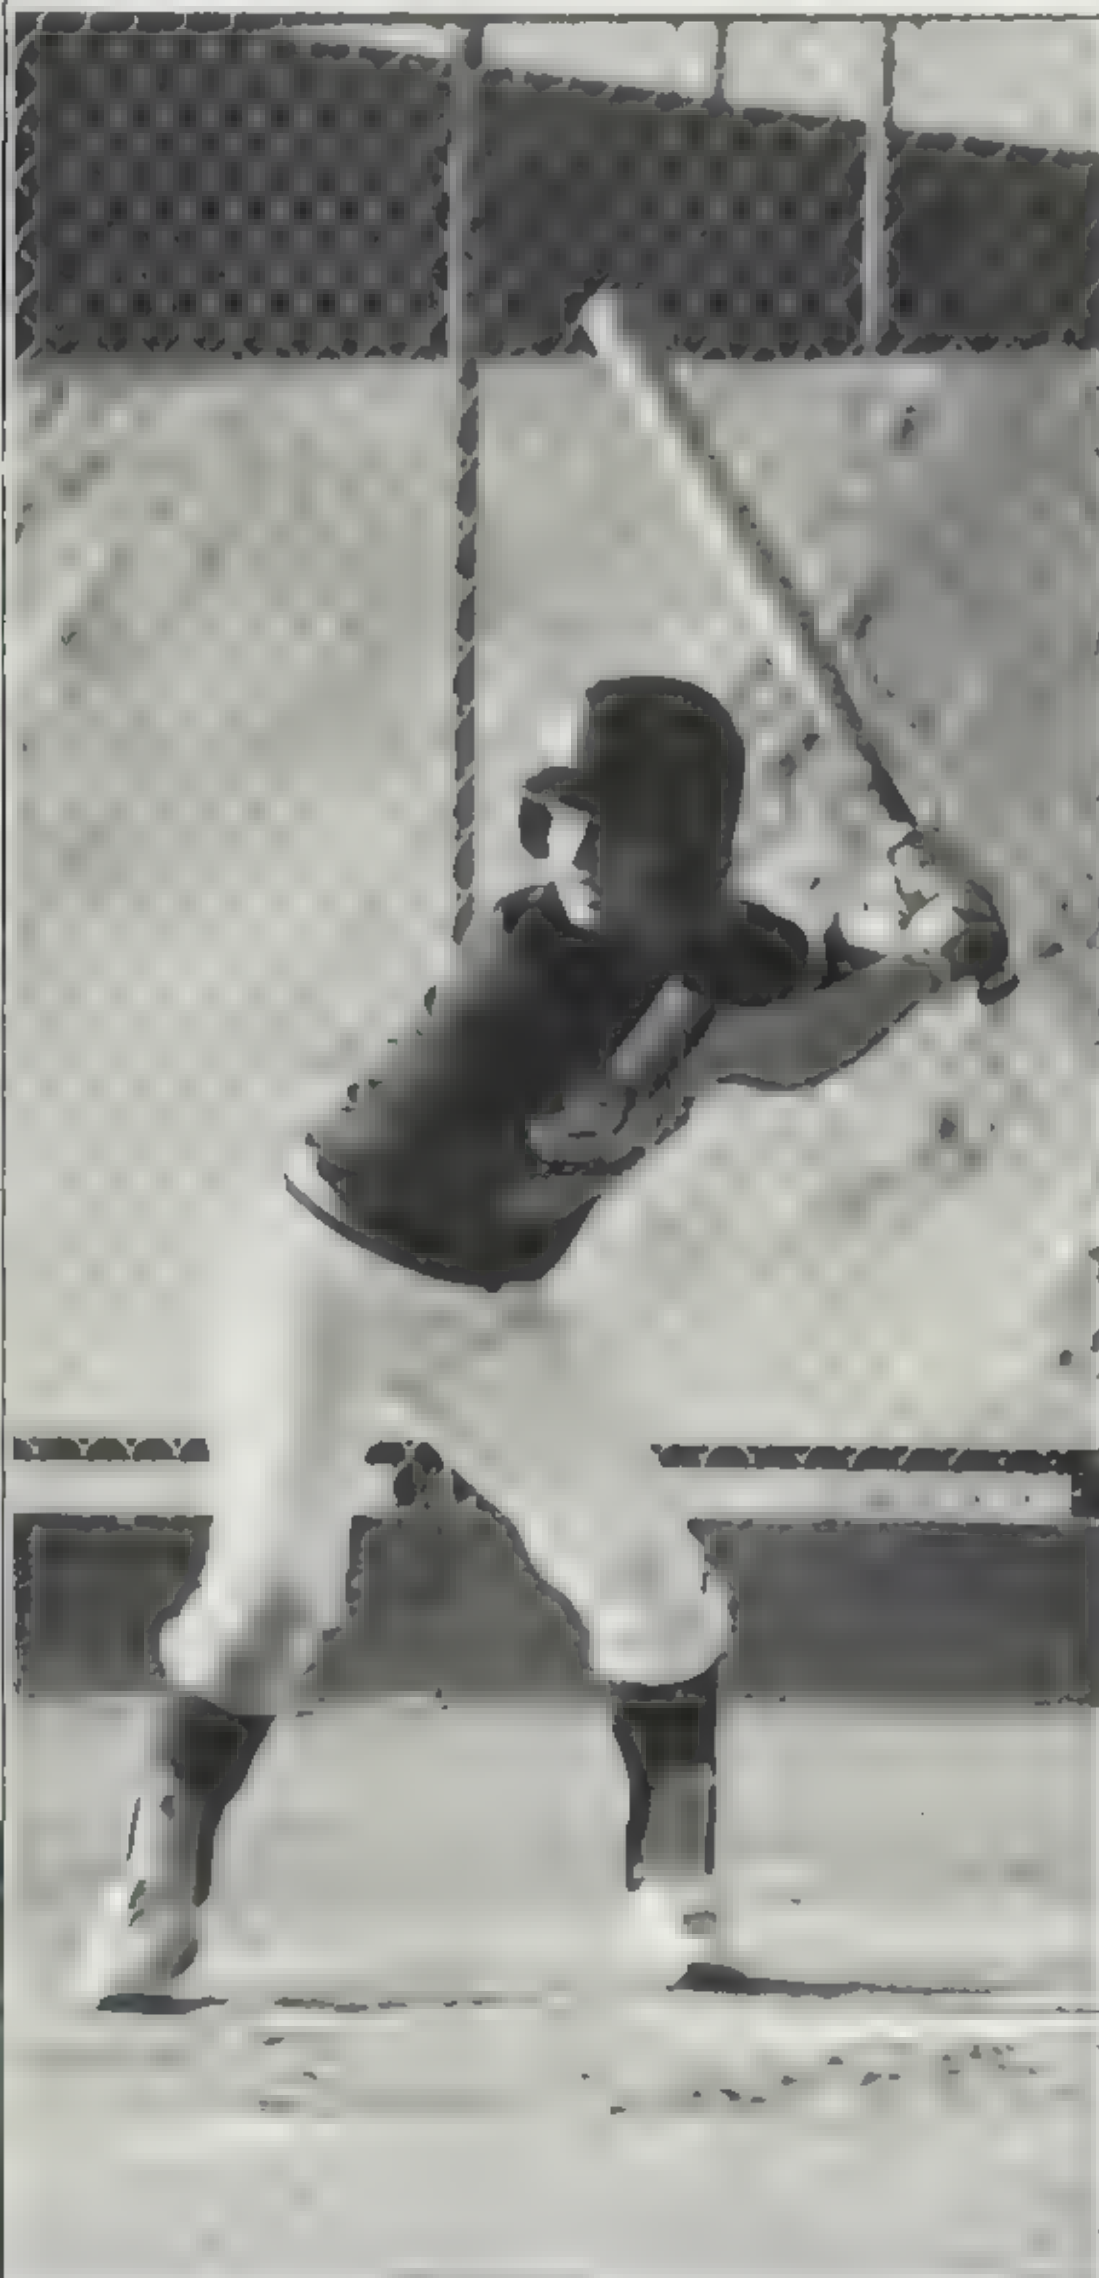

New faces cast many doubts for this year's club. Pitcher Jennifer Beaulove, who moves up from junior varsity has many challenges ahead of her. Everyone will be wondering how might the varsity softball team do this year? Surely coach Neel and the whole team varsity team are going to work hard each game and play the best ball they know how.

Bring her up, Angela Scott swipes for a hit.

For the second year in a row the junior varsity team is led by coach Mark Deesing.

All the previous junior varsity girls softball players have since been advanced to varsity, leaving coach Mark Deesing with the difficult task of putting together a winning team with all new talent. Only one returnee, Diane Eberle, is the team's experienced player. "I plan to work very hard for this year's competition and I think our team is going to do just fine this year," expressed Diane Eberle.

If you happen to notice Eagles over Singing Hills Golf Course the past few months do not call the zoo, it's only the Granite Hills Golf Team planning for their attack upon the Grossmont League. The Eagles in 1985 are again honored with many outstanding individuals. Returning as the team captain, Scott Emery leads the club along with senior Mike Tincup from Northport High School. Andy Heiskala and Paul Pitman are also dependable for low scores. Summer Lee has continued to fill the number five position to the hilt to give additional strength to Granite Hills. Rex Stacey, Lance Silva, and Glen Whiting, who compete for that sixth and final spot on the team occasionally shoot excellent rounds of golf which gives Granite Hills additional diversity. Head Coach John McAdams feels that his team has the talent to perform well in C.I.F. play and possibly win the Grossmont League.

Team Is Only A Club

Lacrosse, in its second year at Granite Hills, remains only a club. The sport was originally an American Indian sport, with the Indians playing until the death. Of course the rules have been changed somewhat.

The sport is still as dangerous as hockey and even more so than football, because there is less safety equipment in Lacrosse than in football. Lacrosse is more of a contact sport also. In fact, the only two requirements for safety equipment are a helmet and gloves. Almost every time a player goes on the field he or she comes off injured.

The object of the game is to knock the opponents over, called a "body block." So why play the game? "Because it is a challenge," says Jerry Keyes, Ty Alexander, and Dave Chrostowski.

The team is made up of competent players: one team member, David Strong, the goalie and attacker, was named the second best goalie in the league his first year.

Lawrence Barber is another superb player on defense and attack. In the midfield is another super player, Kenny Cauthon. All three of these players were on the league All-Star team last year.

Although the team is very enthusiastic and active, the school does not totally support them. The Lacrosse team has no field so all the practices and games are "away." Due to technical problems, the field that was promised to the team this year cannot be used. Since the Lacrosse team has no home field, they really have no support. In fact, their fans hear about games by word of mouth because they are not even on the school calendar. The team has to practice on a field in Alpine that is not regulation size. The team always plays on other fields and all their traveling is done in private cars, not buses. Because the school does not sponsor this hard-working team, all the equipment is bought by the team members. They raise money by doing odd jobs.

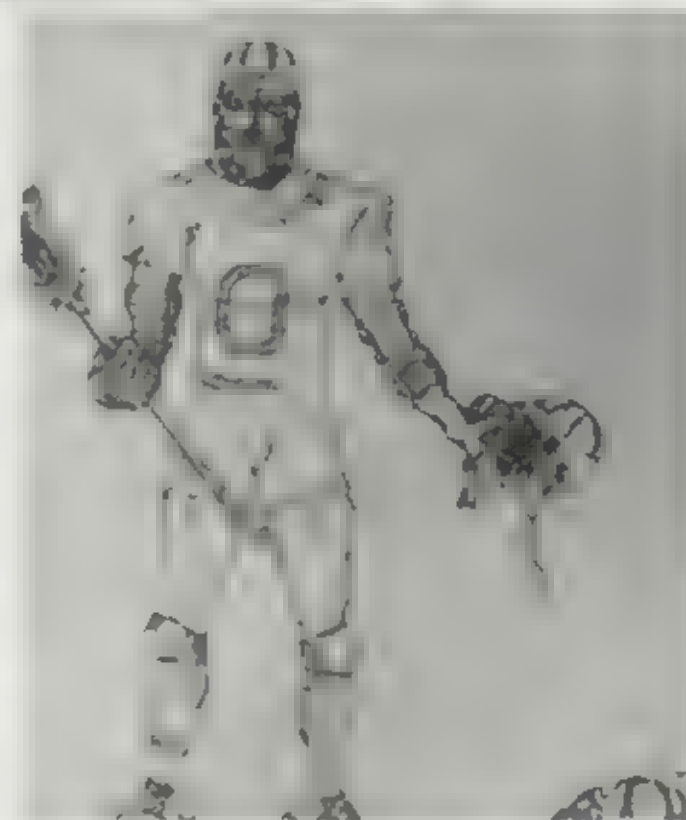

An outstanding team member Lawrence Barber goes after the ball. At times, during this game the ball will travel at speeds of 90 miles an hour.

David Strong blocks the ball. Being a goalie is a tough job because, the goalie must stop the ball at all costs.

Leap for the ball. Kenny Caithon makes a terrific play. Kenny Caithon is a very nice player on the team who seems to get in on most of the critical plays.

At the end of the season, the referee at the face-off Darryl Montoya and Kenny Caithon go at it. This move is one of the most aggressive moves in Lacrosse.

A face-off starts the Lacrosse game for Ty Alexander and Kenny Caithon. The team has many hours of practice even before the season starts.

Faculty

Keeps things running

The home of the Mighty Eagles is still going strong after 25 years, with the faculty and the students having played a very large part in Granite Hills' success.

Mr. Morell started as our first principal along with a small faculty including Mr. Bray, Mr. Burghart, Mr. Decker, Mr. Baumgartner, Mrs. Huffman, Mr. White, Mrs. Huson, Mr. Hauser, Coach Matern, Mr. Salyer, Mr. White, Mr. Zumwalt and a few others. As the school progressed, more buildings and teachers were added. The faculty that started out with a population of 67 in 1961 now has 120 members.

Granite Hills' physical plant has also seen many changes such as the school getting bigger with more buildings added almost every year. Mr. Morell started with a barren plot of land and helped convert it to our Valley Stadium. More buildings are still going up and more improvements are made. Hopefully by next year we will have a bigger quad and a cover to go with it!

Many of the long time members of the faculty have seen many changes from students and the school itself. Mr. Matern said, "When the school first opened, the boys had no gym and had to shower using a garden hose." School spirit is another change teachers have seen. "I used to go to school football games and the stands would be packed," reminisced Mr. Burghart. "Now they are not nearly as full as in the past." Mrs. Huffman would like to see the songleaders come back as well as see more of the students getting more involved with cheering at the games. As for students, most teachers feel that the kids seem more interested in their future and their education than in the 60's.

Gone into the past are the flower children, the small faculty staff that used to play foolish pranks on each other and also "Super Eagle" — Mr. Morell who retired in 1983. Even though Mr. Morell left us, in his place Granite Hills has a new face — Dr. Smith. Dr. Smith came to us from Valhalla to become an Eagle, at the traditional turkeys-become-eagles ceremony. Dr. Smith, eager to become that mighty eagle, flapped her "wings" as well as any other student or new member of the faculty would do.

Granite Hills grows every year. Some teachers retire only to be replaced by new ones, but one thing's for sure — Granite Hills' faculty and staff are a dedicated bunch!

In her second year at Granite Hills, Dr. Smith explained that her job has not changed. "It is just as hard as it was last year but much more fun because I know everyone better."

Dr. Smith was a vice principal, and even before that, she was a counselor. Being a principal is a little easier because she doesn't have to deal with the discipline like a vice principal or even teach one main class. "Being a principal means being more in contact with the community, parents and the staff," she reports.

Dr. Smith is looking forward to seeing some changes in our school such as the quad expansion. She would also like to see an honors program in Social Science, and a bigger lab for biology and chemistry. Another goal is to get the student population down to 2000.

Dr. Smith would certainly like to see these changes happen, hopefully within the next few years.

The art department has seen people come and go, but one person has been here for 25 years — Mr. Bray.

Before teaching at Granite Hills he taught at three high schools, one jr. high, and one four-year college. He has taught Arts and Crafts, Photo and Geography. Mr. Bray plans to teach till the end of the '86 school year.

In some ways Mr. Bray is still a kid. He enjoys playing with his children, all of whom he helped deliver. Another way that makes him still a kid is that he would like shorter school days and shorter weeks.

More than a teacher

Mr. Winter has been a teacher at Granite Hills since 1961.

After getting his degree at Illinois University, he began teaching in a 1-room country school with 8 students.

While Mr. Winter is not teaching he enjoys golfing, camping, and going to Padres games.

"I enjoy every day and every year at Granite Hills," Mr. Winter commented. He would like to see only 25 students in every class. He enjoys teaching math because he says that it is something he, "knows and likes to do." He says that he plans to teach a few more years and then retire.

Here's coach

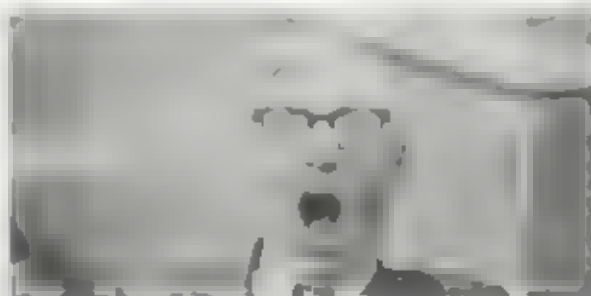

Mr. Army Matern remembers when Granite Hills had no football field or stadium, no baseball field or boys gym. "Students had to use a garden hose to shower," he said. Mr. Matern has seen many changes at Granite Hills and feels that parents' attitudes have changed: "They are not as strict and that has affected the attitudes of today's students." Coach Matern, as he is referred to by his students, feels that his job and sports are very important and is glad to have been a part of Granite Hills for 25 years.

Books — His bag

Did you know that the library at Granite Hills used to be where the Guidance Center stands today? "It was that way for 10 years," reports Mr. Baumgartner, our school librarian.

Mr. Baumgartner has been with the Crossmont District for 33 years and taught at many schools before coming to ours in '61. Mr. Baumgartner taught English, drama and history before becoming our librarian, something he enjoys very much.

Mr. Baumgartner feels the school and the students have changed but he has not and "that's pretty good," he muses.

Retirement beckons

Mr. White, an English teacher who has been here for 25 years, became a teacher because he enjoys academic and cultural subjects. He began student teaching in Oakland, California before he came here.

Mr. White feels that the students of today are less hostile to authority than in the past and applauds the changes Granite Hills has experienced.

In his spare time Mr. White enjoys painting, chess, reading and writing. Mr. White is married and has 1 daughter. He plans to continue teaching until he reaches retirement.

Our Resident Radical!

He's More Than Just French

Mr. Fremont, Granite Hills' French teacher, has enjoyed twenty-five years of teaching. Mr. Fremont, who teaches French and Math, has been at Granite Hills since it opened. Travel, photography, ceramics, reading, and seeing good movies are his hobbies.

Mr. Fremont enjoys Granite Hills because of its outstanding faculty and students and believes it is still one of the best schools in the district. Mr. Fremont has also taught photography, yearbook, and German at Granite Hills. To further inspire students to bring out the best of which they are capable is Mr. Fremont's hope for the future.

Mr. Zumwalt has been well-known to seniors for 25 years because of his American government courses. What students may not know is Mr. Zumwalt enjoys teaching history and traveling.

He also collects interesting articles from newspapers which he displays on the walls of his classroom. Mr. Zumwalt's plans for the future are to keep teaching government and traveling.

Wonder Woman Does It All!

Miss Huson, who teaches Science, will be finishing her twenty-fifth year at Granite Hills as the 1984-85 School year ends. Presently Miss Huson is teaching Biology, but in the past she has taught Art, Drivers Education, Health, Cardio Vascular Resuscitation, and Physiology. Miss Huson enjoys Fitness and Physiology the most.

Although Miss Huson has taught at Granite Hills for twenty-five years, it is not the only place she has taught. Washington State, San Francisco, Emerald Junior High in El Cajon, and Grossmont College district fill the list of places Miss Huson has taught. She continues to teach night classes at Grossmont College presently.

Miss Huson enjoys the changes the school has gone through and says, "It's a more relaxing place in which to work. The sharing and positive flow of new materials continue to stimulate the school." Miss Huson would enjoy more team teaching and longer units. She would also like to see students bring out more of their hidden talents. As far as Miss Huson's future is concerned, she hopes to be given plenty of opportunities to grow and develop her talents as a teacher.

Teacher jokes

Mr. Stowers, known to most of his students as the man in black because of his black clothing he wears on test days, can be found in the chemistry lab at Granite Hills. Mr. Stowers is very well known for his folk dancing, but what students know him better for is his great sense of humor.

Mr. Stowers enjoys painting and drawing. Little pictures with funny sayings cover his black board. Most students enjoy Mr. Stowers' laughter and his dynamite teaching.

This Is It!

This year, Mr. Salyer's twenty-fifth at Granite Hills, will be his last year teaching. Mr. Salyer has taught Biology and a few math classes. He has also taught at a private school and at SDSU as a graduate student.

Mr. Salyer loves teaching, but his spare time also is very important to him. Teaching was his career choice because no other occupation offers so much vacation time. Mr. Salyer enjoys fishing and hunting and plans to spend the summer and fall after he retires in a beautiful cabin in the mountains of Montana.

Decker Sees Gains

"I wanted to give rather than get." This is what Mr. Decker, one of Granite Hills' teachers who has been here for 25 years, said about becoming a teacher.

Mr. Decker taught at Grossmont and El Cajon High School before coming to Granite Hills to teach Spanish, shorthand, typing and business computers.

Over the years, Mr. Decker has seen changes in Granite Hills and the students. Now he is very pleased with the upper classmen (11th & 12th graders) and believes that they seem wiser than the students of the past.

Mr. Decker plans to teach five more years and then retire.

Music And Business Go Together

Going from mechanical adding machines to the computer, Mr. Burghart has seen many changes in his department and in Granite Hills the last 25 years.

Before coming to Granite Hills, Mr. Burghart taught in Kansas 4 years and at El Cajon High School. Mr. Burghart likes the positive attitude of our staff and students but would like to see more school spirit. He likes the fact that students are more serious about work and the changes the school has gone through. "I wouldn't change anything that can be changed," he said.

Mr. Burghart plans to teach four more years and then retire to do something related to music. He particularly enjoys playing the piano.

Big Things Come in Little Packages

The math department at Granite Hills is filled with people short and tall, big and small. Mr. Hauser, the shortest teacher in this department, is the favorite of many. Contrary to popular belief, he hasn't always taught geometry or even math. When Mr. Hauser first came to our school 25 years ago, he was a P.E. teacher and a coach of wrestling and football. In fact, before he started teaching, he won many wrestling championships and was quarterback on a football team when he was younger.

For 6 years Mr. Hauser taught P.E. Then he felt "burned out," so he started teaching math and electives, but as the years went by he got more and more math classes until he has a full schedule of math now.

We know what Mr. Hauser does during the day, but most don't know much more about him. He met his wife at a football game between Purdue and Notre Dame; they were on opposite sides. Several years later they were married. They have two children; one boy and one girl, who are both grown up. Now, Mr. and Mrs. Hauser spend time together sailing.

Looking back over those years, 25 of them, Mr. Hauser believes he's "mellowed" with age, but sees Granite Hills as basically unchanged. How long will he keep teaching? Until he "runs out of gas."

An Old Eagle Returns

A teacher who has neat stories to tell and loves kids as well as teaching them is Mrs. Angie Huffman. She began her teaching career as a kindergarten, music and choral teacher. When she came to Granite Hills in 1961, she taught English and general business. The staff was small and they were always pulling pranks on each other, such as if a teacher was always late, another teacher would take his class to the library, so when the first teacher got to his class, he didn't have one. Another prank that she pulled was dressing as a ghost and going into another teacher's class while she was reading MacBeth.

Mrs. Huffman says the school has changed: as it has gotten bigger, students seem to worry more about their education. But she wishes students would have more spirit. The faculty would put on skits which turned out to be pretty funny years ago.

Now Mrs. Huffman has returned after years of retirement to be a long term substitute, she loves being back in the classroom.

Teaching is Fun

Mr. Rinks teaches Mrs. Jones how to use a word processor. Many teachers attended his summer classes.

On "Padre Day" Mrs. Rinks dressed up as a "Cub Exterminator." She is always a good sport and dresses up for school spirit days.

Mr. Wasieleski helped arrange Jasmin's with her schedule. All of the juniors had to come in during the summer to get scheduled.

Mr. Lotz dances with his lovely wife. Many faculty members have interesting after-school hobbies.

Mr. Murphy is another 25 year teacher at Granite Hills. After he got his degree at Boston and Harvard Universities, he taught one year in Massachusetts and then came here. He has taught choir, Glee, and English classes.

During his spare time, Mr. Murphy enjoys traveling, sailing, reading, and gardening. He has four children, three already graduated from Granite Hills and the fourth attending classes here now.

Mr. Murphy enjoys sharing his experiences in life with his students. In the future he would like to travel, retire, and compose his own music. Also he would like to "Use a computer to teach music theory."

He thinks that "today's students are more pleasant than those of the late 60's and early 70's when the Viet Nam was had everyone upset."

Underclass

Lingo has Changed

A conversation between four friends in 1961, after the Christmas break, would sound something like this.

"Hey Bobbie. Did you get those spiffy white pants for Christmas?" asked Jennifer.

"Ya, I got these pants and these brown suede shoes," said Bobby as he bent down to powderpuff them.

Just then Jeff drove up in his new Woody, so everyone gathered around him to admire it. "Gee, who gave you this?" Buffy asked. "It's sure nifty."

"Ya, fab!" agreed Bobby. "Let's cruise."

"Girls, hop in the back, but don't bruise the leather upholstery."

"Boy, this is sure neato, huh? But when we get back, we'd better study for the chemistry test we have in class on Friday."

"Well Buff, what's new?" Jennifer asked.

"I got my hair flipped. I love your bee hive, Jer."

"I got some new skirts and the new Fabian record," Jennifer answered. "I went to Belmont Park roller coaster at the beach. It was real nifty, but real scary too. Also I went to Valley Bowl three times and the Campus drive in with Ralph once."

In 1973 our school was a fun place to be. We had a winning football team and a lot of spirit to go with it. The kids in the 70's used to talk something like this.

"Check it out man, I got a B+ on my geometry test, man," John exclaimed.

"Outta site man. I went to the Stones concert Friday night. It was cool," Bobby commented.

"Hey Jill, baby, what did you do this weekend?" asked Bob.

"I went to that super duper game on Friday night. Then Saturday I bought this new outfit; hip huggers and a blouse, in Grossmont center. Then on Sunday I just laid back and watched Flipper and Andy Griffith," Jill answered.

"Sounds like a bad weekend. I got the new Jimi Hendrix album, a black light and 3 black light posters. Would you like to come over and check them out?" Bob asked.

"Sure, Bob, that would be righteous, but my brother, Steve, is coming home from 'Nam."

The kids in the 80's tend to be more individual than the kids of the 60's or 70's. A conversation, on the first day of school would sound something like this.

"Like, Steve, what gnarly classes did you get this year?" Kim asked.

"I got a totally cool schedule: Art I, Basic Math, Writing Fund., metal shop and my only bumner class is US History," Steve answered. "What did you get?"

"Like, I got that bogus Business Skills Lab class. It's like a total yawner, but Mr. Hauser is way cool for geometry. Oh wow I have to bail to tennis," Kim answered, as she bounced off.

Freshmen Look Ahead

"Raising more money and fulfilling the needs of our freshman students," is what President Becky Briggs puts at the top of her list of goals for her officers. All the cabinet tries to be available to classmates who might need help or want to help.

Early in Becky's term, the class of '88 had a successful car wash. Many more fund raisers will follow during the next three years in their quest to fill their treasury for senior activities.

Meanwhile, the class of '88 gets to know each other and their school as they look forward to more time here.

Travis Wins Show Ribbons

Travis Dykes, a freshman, has an interesting hobby — raising and showing miniature horses. These aren't just any old horses, though. Standing smaller than ponies, they can't be ridden and cost from $1,000 to $10,000 each.

Travis and his horse, Little Egypt, have won first prizes twice in competitions where the horse and human dress in costume and act out a show. Travis plays a doctor and his horse is a patient. Other times his horse is a lion and Travis, his tamer.

For two years, this pair has performed at Del Mar. "It's not a career — just a hobby that is fun," insists Travis.

For those who enjoy unusual shows, go to the county fair and look up Travis and Little Egypt. They're hoping for many more ribbons and the thrill of competition.

The Class of '88 — How Great!

Being a freshman, like being the new kid on the block, never has been easy. But freshmen at Granite Hills are welcomed particularly warmly. From ESP and freshman/parent counseling during the summer before school to the "Turkeys become Eagles" opening ceremony, freshmen know they are a part of all this school is.

That first week on campus, though, is always chaos. Lockers are not where freshmen expect them to be, are often unwilling to open on command and not large enough to hold all the necessities carted from home. Rumors of hazing by upperclassmen persist in spite of the reality that none goes on here. In fact, one newcomer was overheard remarking, "It was scary at first because everyone was calling us 'little freshmen.'" Another complained that "No one wanted to be friends except for other freshmen."

Then the first month passed and upperclassmen started to be friends. In fact, many freshmen found seniors particularly helpful.

By the end of the first grading period, some even hoped out loud that the year would never end. Even dread freshman English and p.e. which only freshmen and sophomores have to take become fun as classmates become familiar.

Freshmen were welcomed by teams, filling many JV slots. The year progressed and freshmen approach passage to sophomore status. Final exams, with all the fear they cause, are a last hurdle to overcome.

Being the new kids hasn't been that bad after all.

Tina The Ballerina, Dreams of Olympic Gold

Tina the Ballerina — that's what people used to call Holly Reader, but she says, "It was really taking ballet lessons and doing gymnastics instead." This peppy freshman has been taking gymnastics for six years as well as aerobics, jazz, tap and ballet.

Holly has been in several competitions with a number of different groups. All of this activity leads her to dream of being an Olympic gymnast in 1988. In fact, she believes, "That would be a real challenge and my number one goal."

"I love gymnastics and would love to make a profession of it" Holly admits.

Freshmen Hero Saves Brother

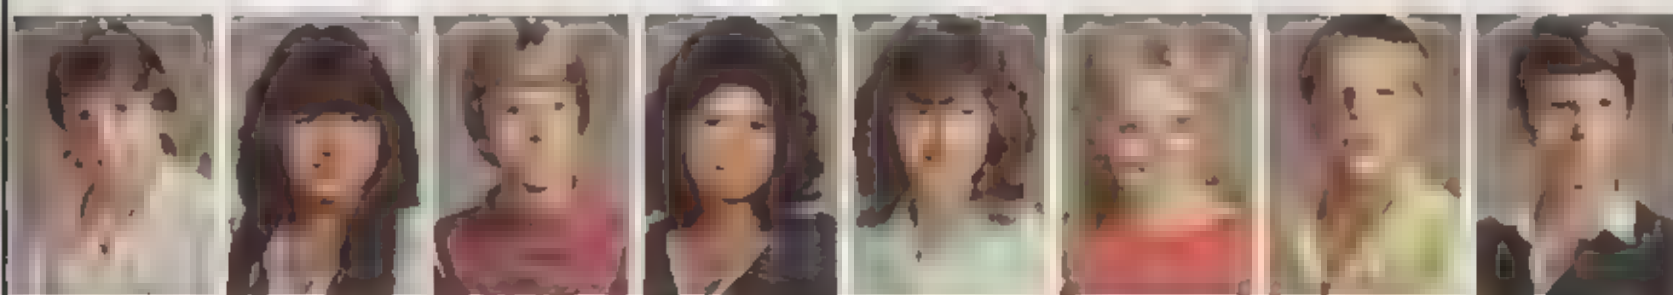

Jay Starkey, only a ninth grader this year, is a true hero. Last summer, while swimming with friends and his little brother, Jay saved his brother's life. This 5-year-old is alive today because Jay remembered the artificial respiration techniques he had learned in his junior high health class.

As Jay recalls, the boys were having a cooling swim when his friend yelled that his brother had drowned. Jay looked up to see his brother passed out on the pool deck, where his friend had dragged him. He had "blue lips and looked really awful." Acting on his training, Jay checked for breathing and pulse. There was a pulse but no breathing, so Jay performed artificial respiration until his brother gasped and started to cry.

The Grossmont School District, as well as several community groups, has recognized Jay for his valor.

Jay just shrugs his shoulders and claims, "It really wasn't all that much." Most who hear his story disagree

Sophomores Show Leadership

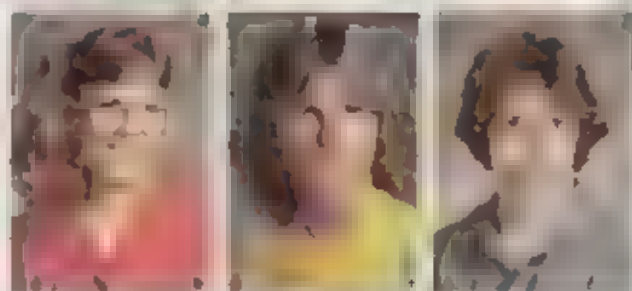

Senators: Julie Leaman, Kristin Sanmartin, Cindy Brancato, Lisa Brown.

The Sophomore class officers have a fairly big job organizing fund raisers for their class. But their first priority is just to represent the class of '87 at ASB meetings. The officers and senators find that representing their class gives them an excellent chance to meet new people and make friends while learning a sense of leadership.

Equestrian Aims to Teach

Lisa Bangle has been riding in shows for rider and horse performances since she was about eight. She practices about three hours a day on weekdays and all day Saturdays and Sundays. Lisa has won many awards including The Silver Saddle Seat Equitation.

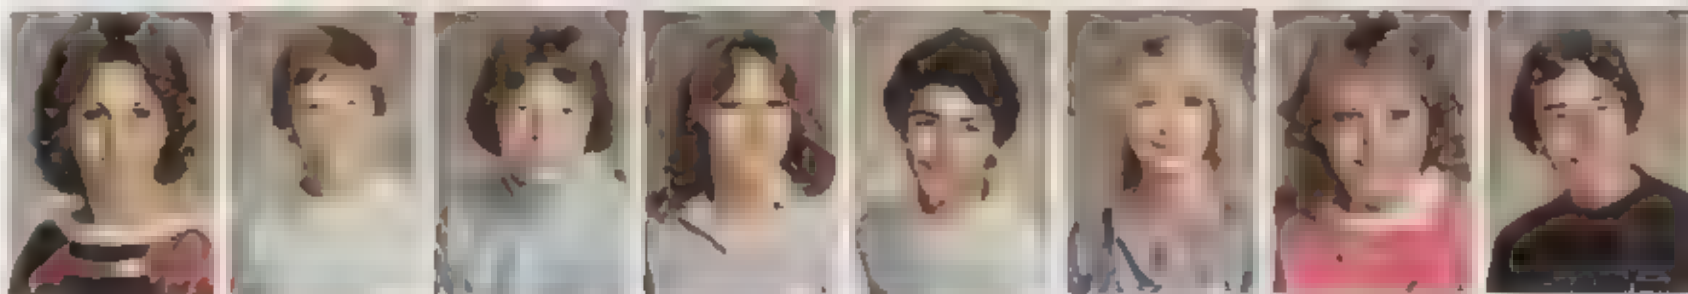

Some of Lisa's major accomplishments are the hunt seat on the flat-open, which she won in 1983 at the Morgan Horse Grand National. Also, in 1983 she won The World Champion Horse Show. Lisa plans to go to San Diego State University and major in Special Education. After getting established in her career, she wants to teach young children how to ride so they can have some of the great experiences she has had.

Let's Go Cycling

Andy Farrar enjoys riding bicycles as a great sport. He also finds that it is a good way to keep in shape and make friends.

Andy heard about bicycle contests first through an article in a newspaper and that started him off. He has now been riding in long distance tours for about a year and a half. His longest ride to date was a 100 mile ride in one day up the coast towards Los Angeles.

When he gets out of high school, Andy plans to join the Air Force to become either a pilot or computer programmer.

Life as a Sophomore

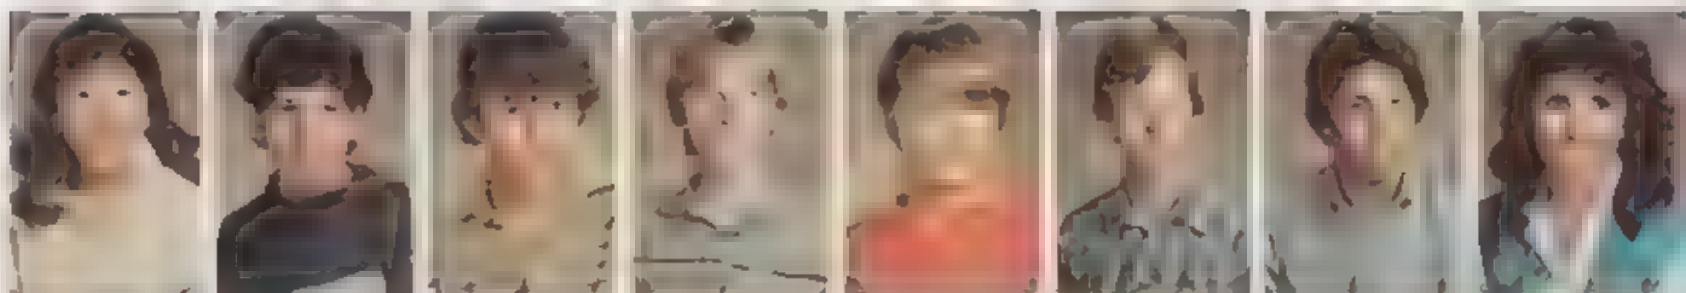

Conferencing with Ms. Ryder, her counselor, Amber Connolly plans her classes. Many Sophomores visit the counseling center for course changes, four year plans and career counseling.

Life as a Sophomore isn't too bad for most Granite Hills 10th graders, even though Driver's Education has been cut out and they have to go to night school to get the credits needed for graduation.

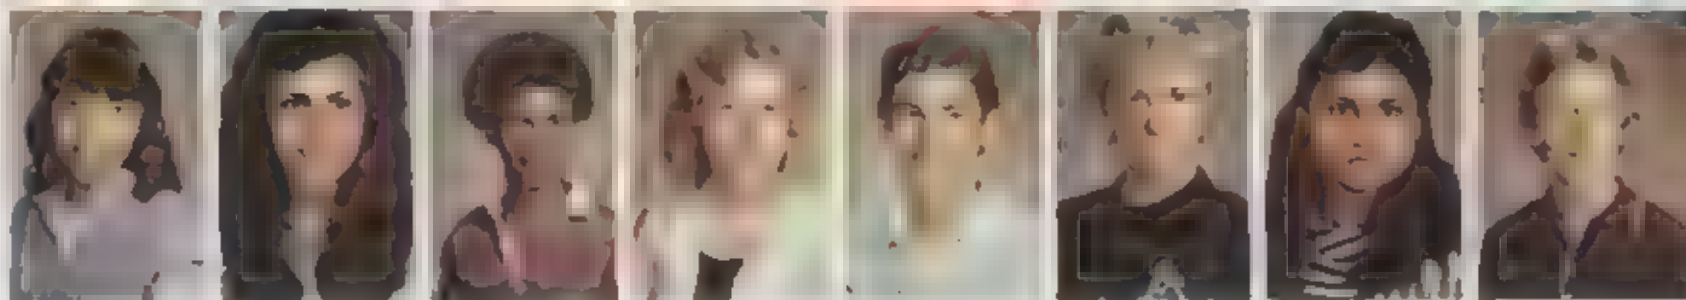

Monica Spiron says, "life as a Sophomore is kind of hard but you get to meet a lot of interesting people." Margaret Prida believes the same thing and also says, "It's a lot better than being a Freshman". This year's Sophomores have had a lot of new classes added to their graduation requirements, and with this coming of new and harder classes, all Sophomores have only one thing to say: "I can't wait until Senior year."

Learning for the Future.

Sophomores dominate the rolls in most of the computer studies classes designed to teach basic computer operations. Classes are fairly new on our campus but already include over 100 computers in three different departments.

Basic computer classes teach general key operations, word processing and general functions of computers. These are excellent classes for those looking for high-paying jobs in the computer industry.

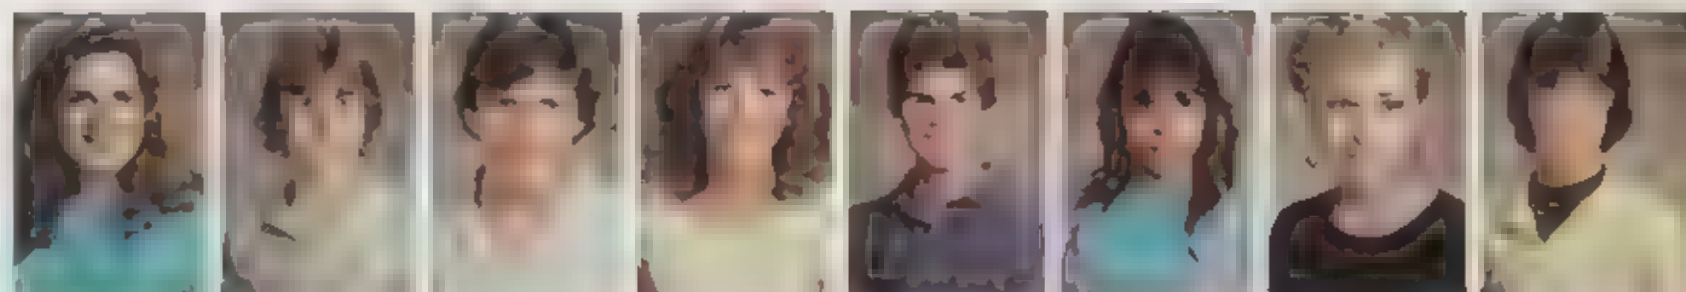

Granite Hills has more computers than any other school in the district now and teaches not only Basic computer language but always offers Pascal to advanced students.

Computer brands include Sanyo, Zenith, TRS-80, Acorn, Commodore and a few Kaypros. Most were bought through ROP funding to prepare students for entry level positions in the computer industry.

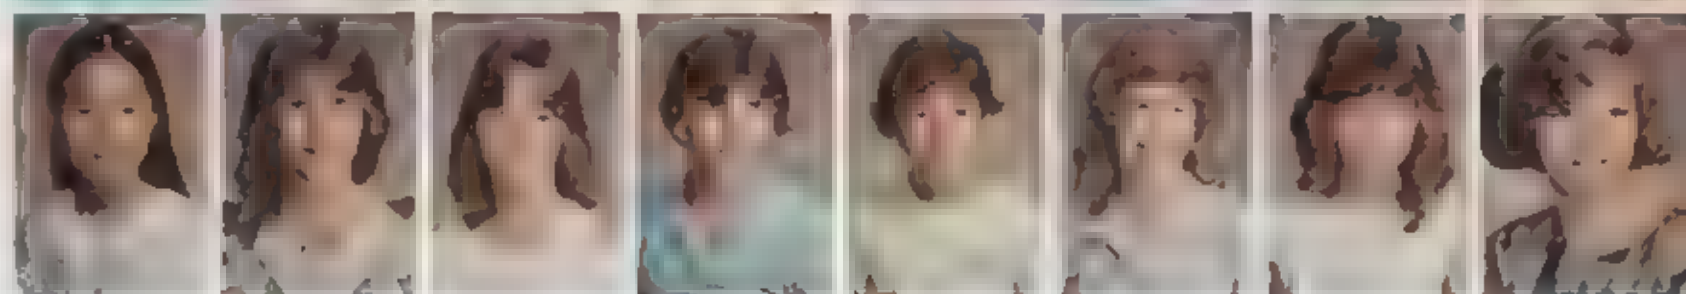

The class of '87 should be well prepared to enter the modern world when they graduate.

Scott Helps Chargers

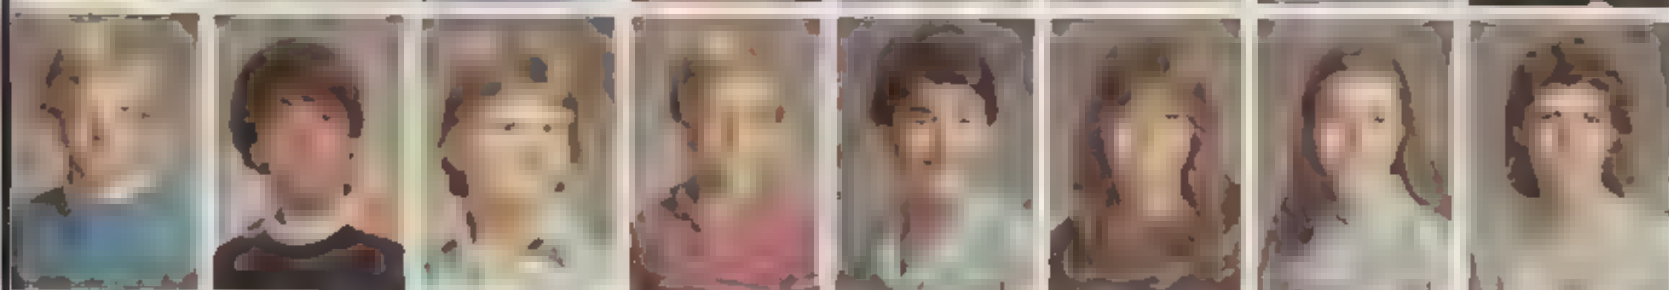

Scott Weber, a starting defensive tackle on the Granite Hills football squad as a sophomore, is also a ball boy for the San Diego Chargers. His dad, Chuck Weber, is a Charger coach.

In this, Scott's second year, he earns $3.50 an hour for his work at home games and trips to L.A. Before play, Scott tapes shoulder pads for 10 players and applies resin and dirt to the balls. (Each team uses about 24 balls per game). After a winning game, the balls go to players as "game balls"; after losing, they're used in practices.

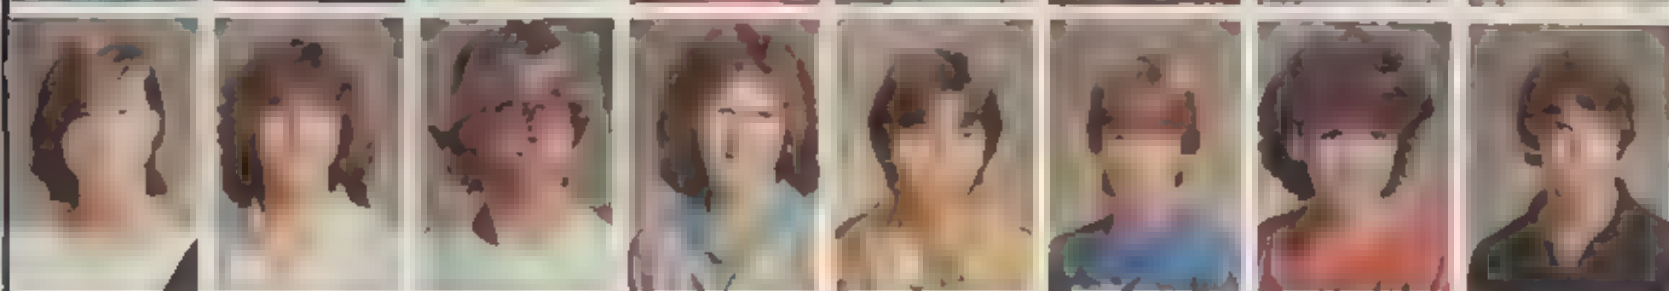

Scott enjoys his job partly because he gets to be friends with players like Bill Elko, his favorite. He also gets the inside scoop on players and plays, some information he may use to advantage on our own gridiron.

Juniors strive for a great Senior year!

Raising money for the Junior class to provide them with activities, raise more spirit and fulfill the students' needs are some of the goals which Lisa Landes, Junior class president, has in mind.

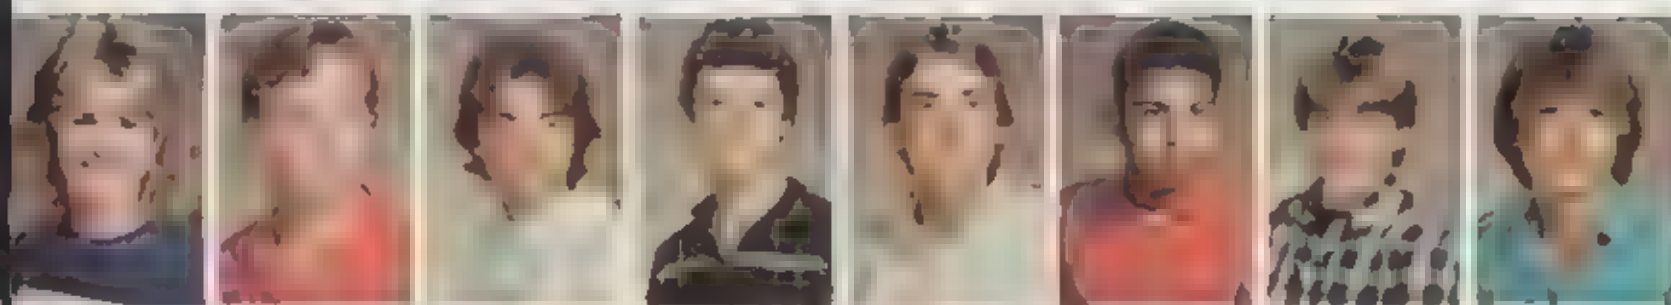

New fund raisers for this year are musical Christmas cards and a hypnotist show. Lisa is hoping that all the Juniors will contribute to the fund raisers so they can have a great Senior year.

What about spirit? "The Junior Class has lots of spirit which has helped us to raise money. Hopefully even more Juniors will get involved to help our class," Lisa commented.

Being class president has taught Lisa responsibilities that she hopes can help later. Next year Lisa would like to be the Senior Class president so she can do her part to help the Seniors have a great prom and a year to remember.

Tonia bikes to Olympics

She runs for the school Cross Country team, rides at least 20 to 30 miles on her bike every weekend, and has a dream for the "88" summer Olympics. This energenic junior is Tonia Sieg.

This dream started the Christmas of "83" when the movie "Breaking Away" inspired Tonia to be a biker. Christmas brought the dream closer with a 15-speed bike. With her brother Matt and a friend, Mike Ison, she began her training. Her early goals include getting road racing bike, and most of all, to be in the "88" or "92" Olympics.

Though she has not been in any official races yet, Tonia did ride 62 1/4 miles for a McDonalds Diabetes fund raiser.

Students dress their feet

Shoes — no outfit is complete without them. And there are so many styles to choose from. Look around lunch. There is a big assortment. Everyone wears what's comfortable or at least in style. No surfer would be caught dead wearing combat boots. Instead, he or she might wear checkered VANS or topsiders. Some shoes have even had a comeback from the '60's, such as penny loafers and saddle shoes.

But whatever your style — hot pink high tops or simple flats — Granite Hills students sure know how to dress their feet.

Denny sees Padre fever first hand

Imagine catching pitches from Rich "Goose" Gossage or sitting next to Steve Garvey in the dugout at a Padre game! Well, Denny Stover doesn't have to imagine. He is a bat boy for the National League Champions, the San Diego Padres.

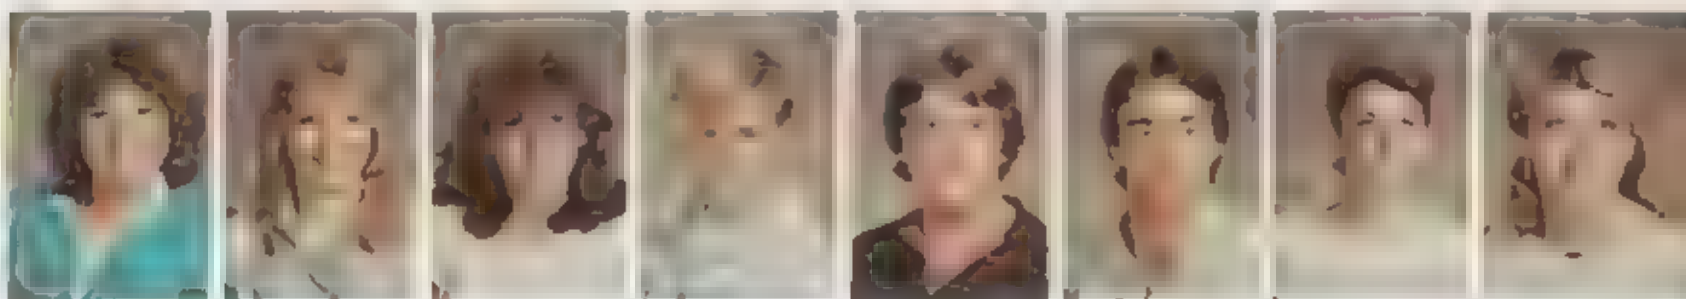

In March of '84, Denny wrote a letter to the Padres about why he wanted to be a bat boy. About mid March, Denny found out he was selected as one of four bat boys, "I was just excited. I've always dreamed of doing this," he recalls.

Denny started work on April 1, 1984, and has been a very busy guy since the Padres made it to the World Series. But life is not autographs and fame for a bat boy, nor is it "all fun and games like everyone thinks," according to Denny "Before games, I have to catch baseballs during batting practice and bring gear down to the dugout. After the games, I have to pick up after players. Socks are the worst. I also have to brush the dirt off of shoes and run errands for the players, all for $21 a game."

What about next year? Denny's signed up for another season and hopes, like all of San Diego, that '85 is the Padres year to win the World Series

The class of "86" kicks

The class of '86 has been tremendously enthusiastic this year. Starting with Spirit Week, we had no trouble getting volunteers for the activities. Then came time to settle into our studies.

Just about the time we got into everyday studies, along came the time to take the PSAT to prepare for the SAT and to qualify for college scholarships. We took the test in October and got the results back in December.

Many more of us attended the Christmas dance this year. More girls know older guys to take them, and more guys can now drive their dates to the dance. The event provided to be extremely enjoyable and made us wonder why we hadn't attended before.

Soon after Christmas came finals. Wow! What a surprise they were to most of us. We had to recall the whole history of the United States from the first settlers to the Civil War for the U.S. history final. The finals made those who thought that they were doing fine realize that they must study much harder and longer the second semester.

Maybe finals were the first event that got us planning for our future beyond Saturday night's date. About February we were bombarded with letters from colleges. Then it was time to start figuring out what we wanted out of life and where we were going to get it. This all happened so suddenly, it was like a slap in the face. In just over a year we would be out of required school and off in the wild blue yonder to fend for ourselves. Our Junior year really was a year of growing up.

Seniors

We Grow in all Directions

This year is a proud one for the 25th graduating class of Granite Hills High School. Looking back, one can see that Granite Hills has truly grown up. The graduating class of 1961 was 174, the graduating class of 1985 is 537 strong.

Through the years, Granite Hills has gained and lost a few possessions and traditions. Back in the "good ol' days", Granite Hills seniors had a prized monument. The empty cement circle near the office was once the happy owner of the Senior Fountain, a wonderful idea. Unfortunately, it became the center of attention for vandals. Just about every school in the district found a way to ruin our fountain. Finally in the early 1970's the fountain was retired after a very rough life.

Let us not dwell on the past. Now Seniors have other important things to look forward to. The graduating class of 1985 is only the second class of Granite Hills to purchase individual parking spaces. These Seniors paid as much as $140 for a single and $220 for a double, to own a personally painted parking space for the entire school year. The funds raised are used for the prom.

The Annual staff has joined the spirit. This is the first year for many Senior features which recognize Seniors' exciting outside activities. Granite Hills realizes that many students lead exciting and even dangerous lives after school hours. Some of these students are featured in the annual.

Granite Hills may have lost male cheerleaders in the past, but they are back now with Mike Badami, Steve Rader, and Devin Polich. These talented cheerleaders add the extra spirit to make the class of '85' soar high.

Last year, an old tradition was broken and a new tradition created. This new tradition is a new school policy that allows Fine Arts students to be awarded Lettermen Sweaters. In the early years of the school, only the male students were awarded any recognition in sports, in the form of the Lettermen Jackets. With the arrival of female sports in the middle 1960's, women could earn Lettermen Jackets too. Now the Fine Arts department has joined this tradition.

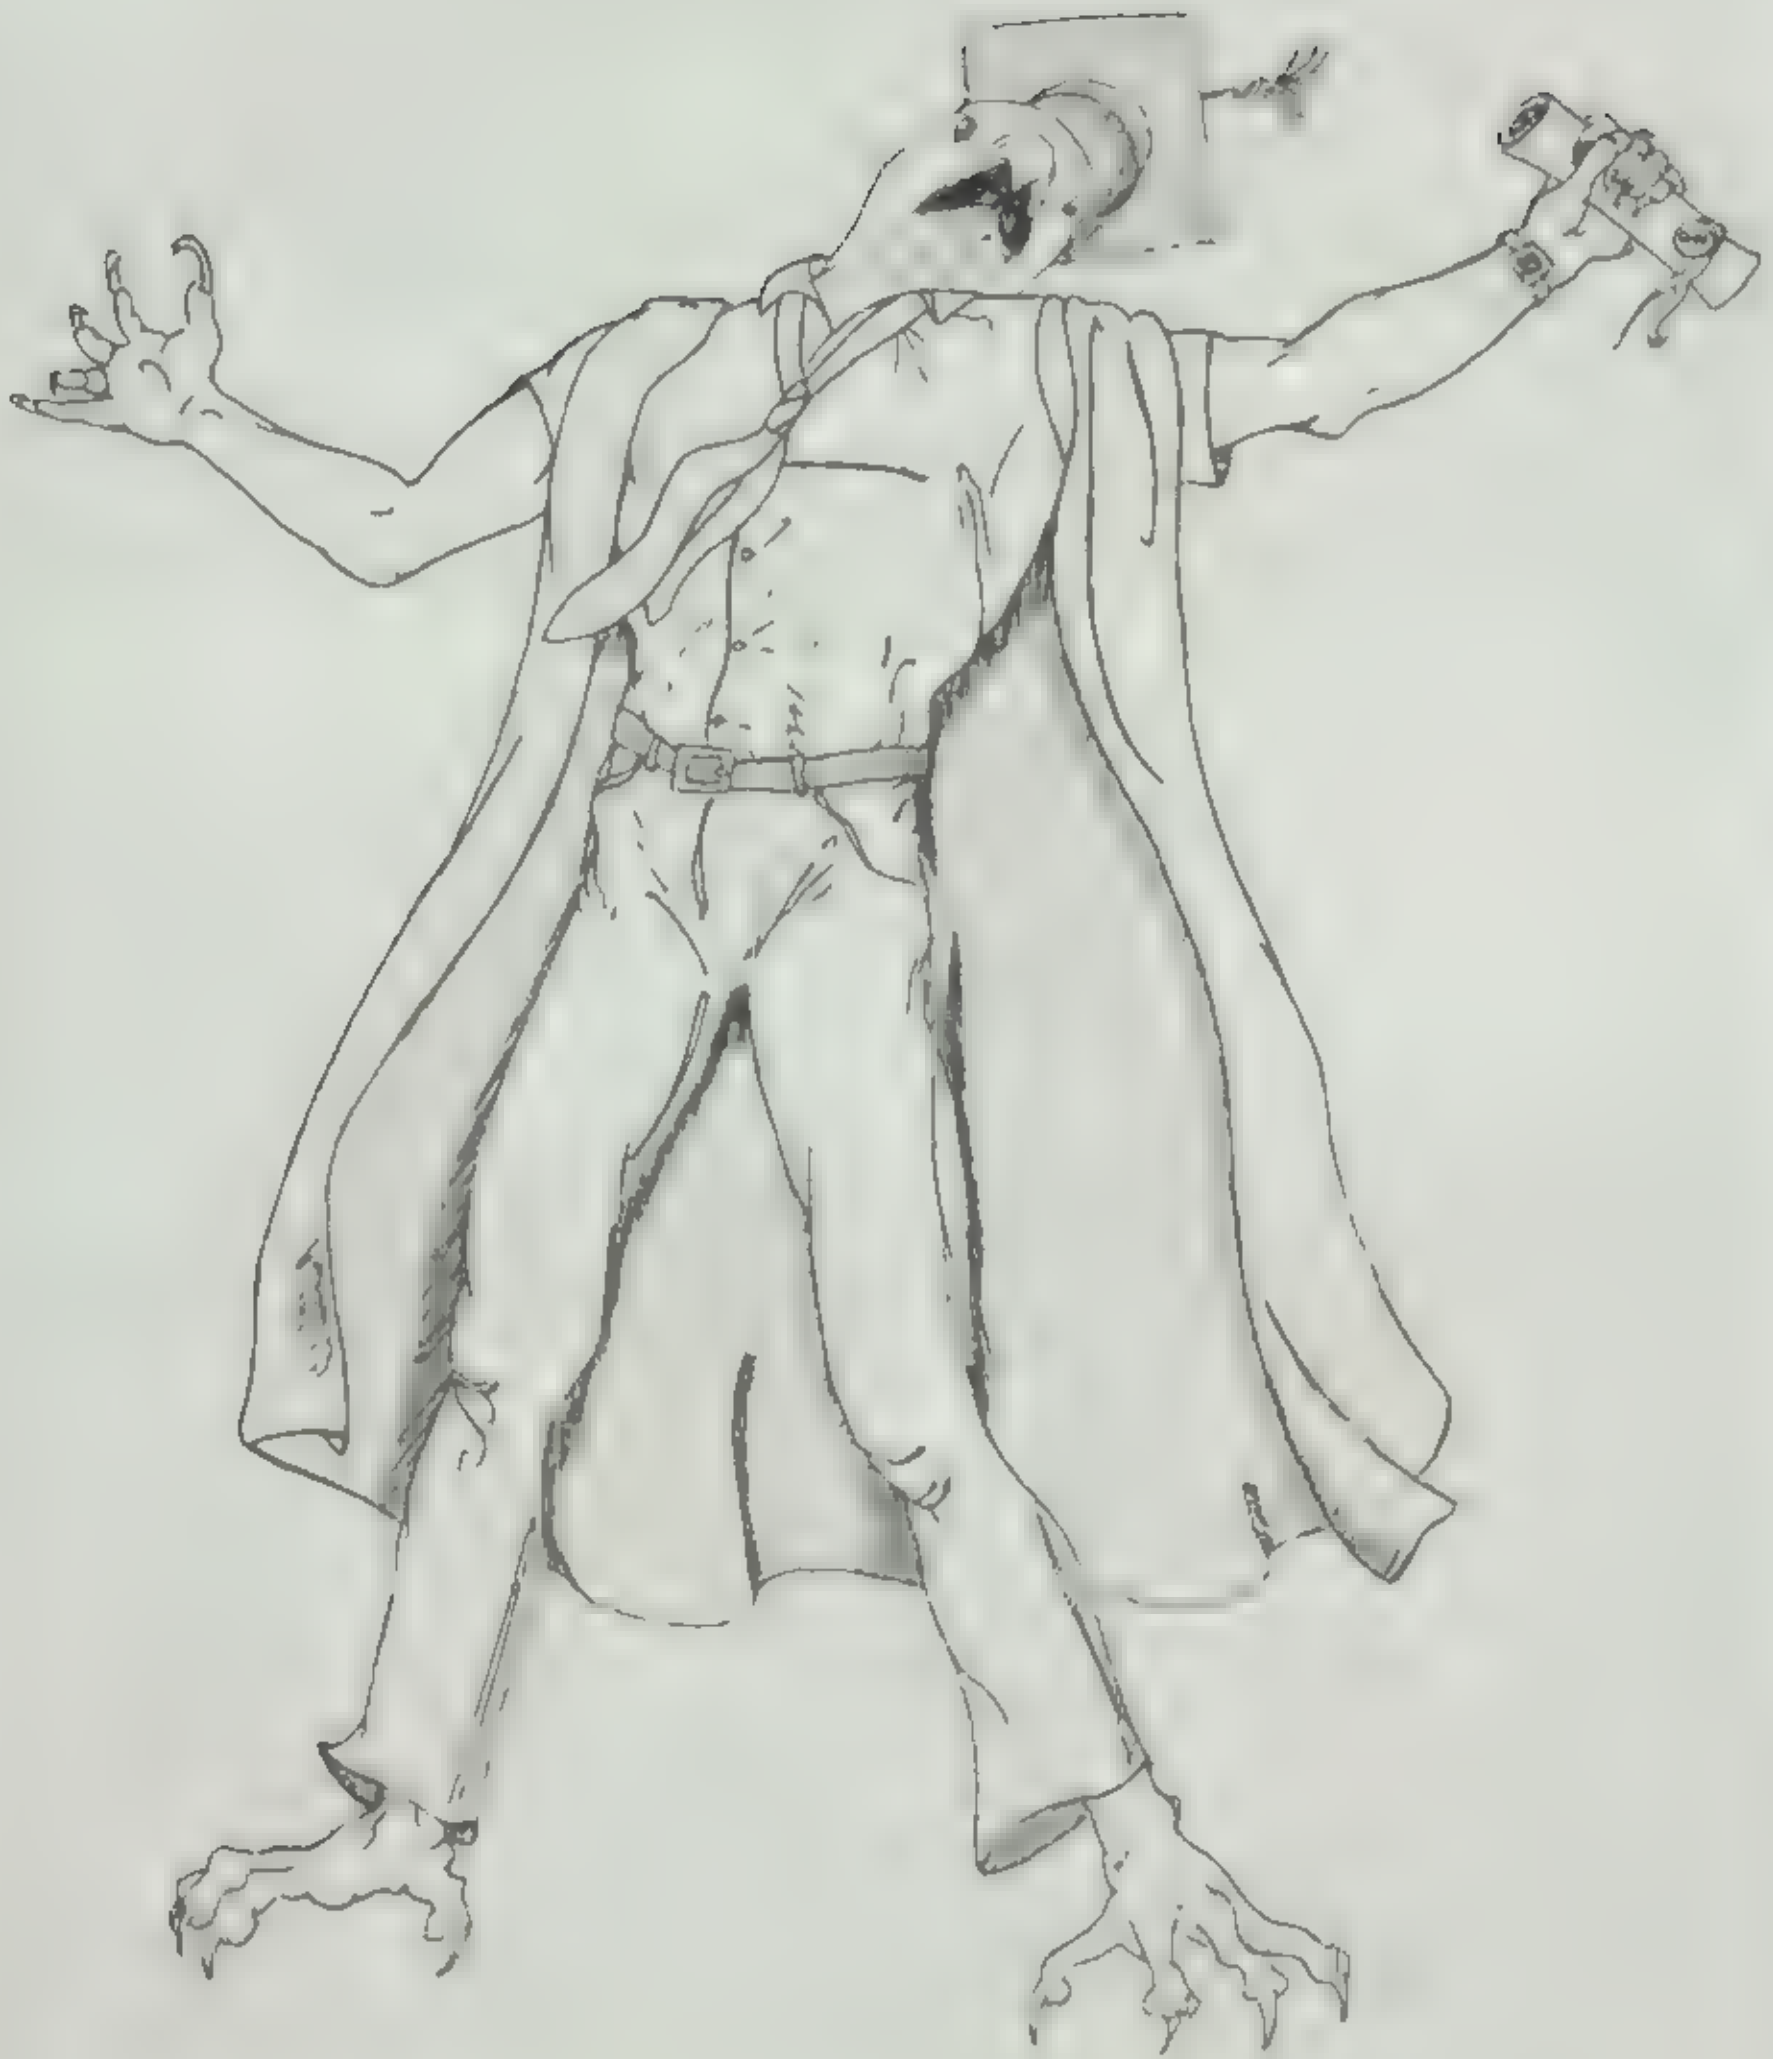

This year is certainly something to be proud about. We have brought out new traditions and even brought back some old ones. Good luck to the class of '85' in all its endeavors beyond high school.

Kim Spends Summer on the Hill

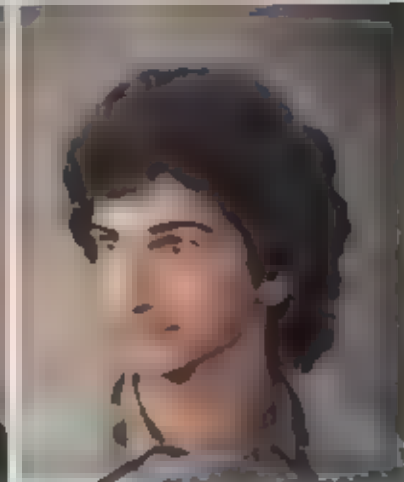

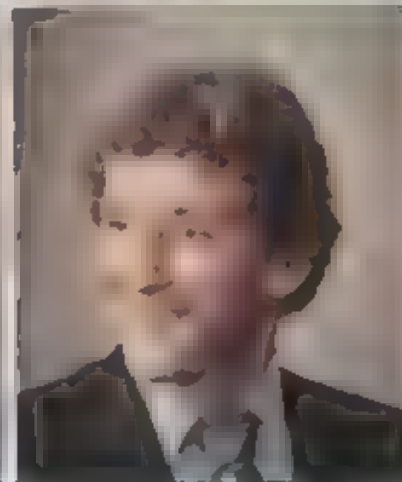

Being a House of Representatives Page was a very exciting experience for Kim Hallisay, who was one of very few young people that were able to spend six weeks working in our Nation's Capitol. Not only did she meet many interesting people in the House of Representatives, she also met Tip O'Neil, Speaker of the House. Of course, being a Page is not just fun and games. A page runs messages to and from Congressmen. Pages even have a certain dress code. Pages have to wear blue, black, or white. This dress code even includes shoes in those same colors. Working right with the system, Kim was able to see that our government is run better than outsiders try to make it out to be. Kim said that paging was "The best time of my life!"

The Sky's the Limit

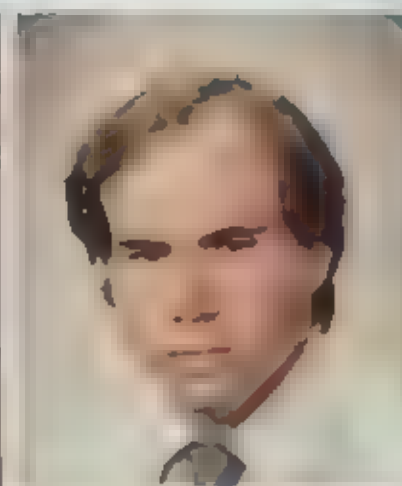

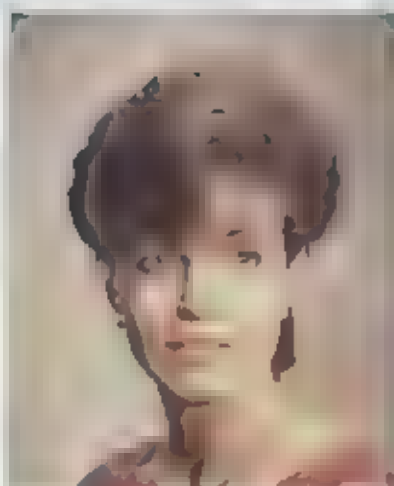

For two years now, David Vopat has been learning to fly a plane. This exciting hobby, he hopes, will later become a well-paying career.

David hopes to finish his lessons soon and get his pilot's license. He has chalked up 30 hours in a biplane and 30 hours in a six-seater. This adventurous teen has almost met the requirements for his private license.

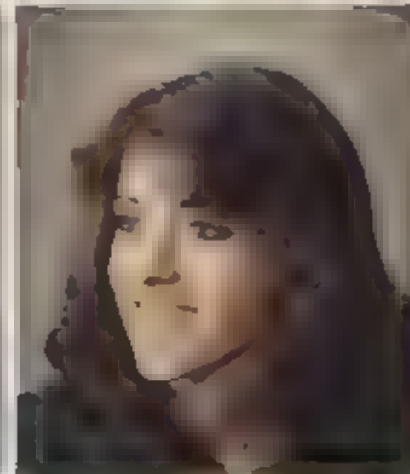

David elaborated on two exciting trips.

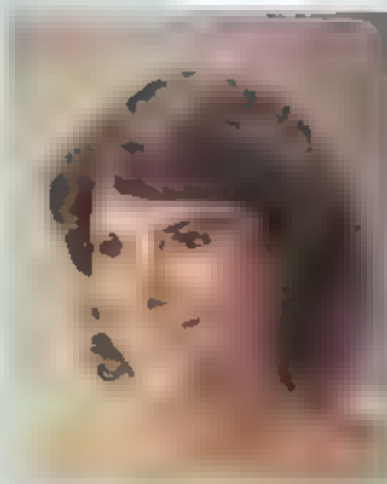

Once, he flew with his teacher and some other students to Reno, where they watched flying races. He has also flown a helicopter with a friend and hopes one day to even get a helicopter pilot's license. Another time, he even parachute dropped lunches to friends on El Cap. Mtn. David feels that "This is really exciting because it's always changing. The best, so far, was my solo flight."

Cyndy Wins in Dressage

Cyndy Shifflet, a senior at Granite Hills, has been showing horses since she was five. She shows Quarter horses, Pinto, and Paint horses. She is currently showing Morgan horses. She owns an eight-year-old morgan mare named, Rhiannon. On her current mount, Cyndy and Rhiannon have traveled throughout California to shows.

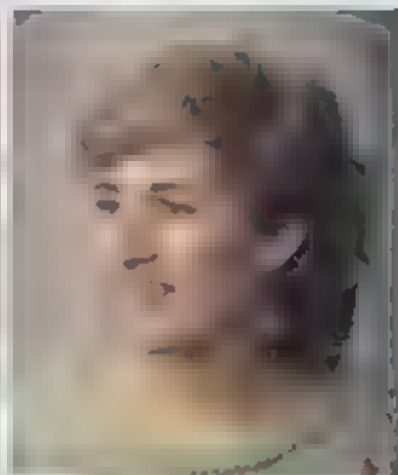

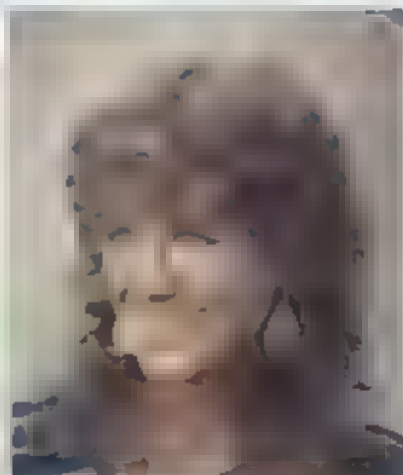

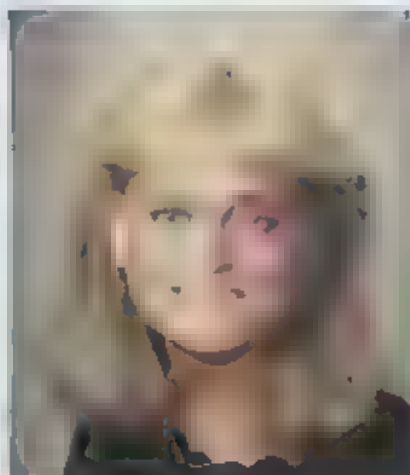

During the past several months, Cyndy has taught her horse the first levels of Dressage, a difficult style of riding for both horse and rider. It was one of the Equestrian events in the Olympics. Cyndy has no hopes of going to the Olympics, but she enjoys exhibiting her horse at California shows.

Cyndy and Rhiannon's greatest success so far was earning the silver medal in the Dressage seat medal class in Santa Barbara.

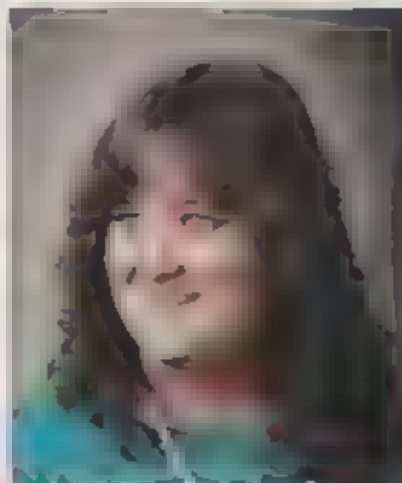

The picture shows Cyndy and Rhiannon prior to winning the class. Cyndy studies the difficult pattern one more time before her presentation to the judges.

Todd Experiences Wilderness

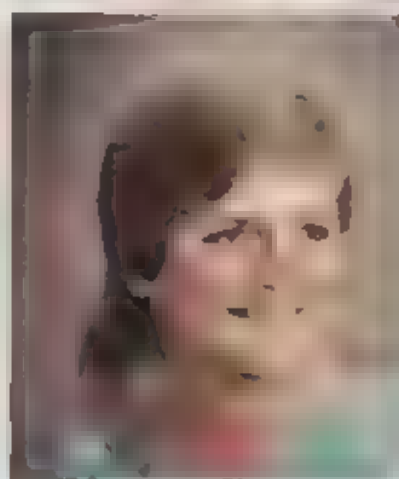

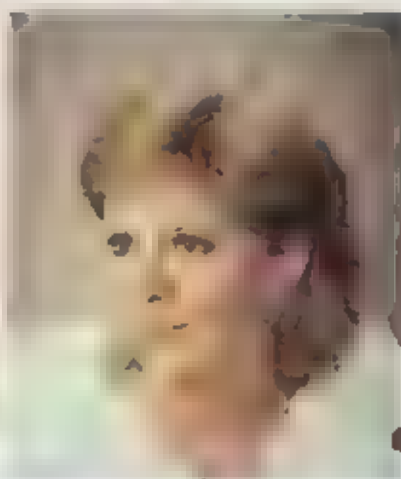

Todd Richards went to Biology camp for ten days in Jackson, Wyoming with a recommendation from Mr. Saver. Applicants from all over the world had to write essays telling why they wished to go as well as get recommendations. Todd and one girl were the only ones chosen from California. The camp included river rafting, hiking and camping around Yellowstone as well as survival techniques. Each person had to sleep alone in the woods and take a Hunter's safety test. Todd feels, "the trip was really worth while." He learned a lot about the wilderness. It was an honor to take this trip.

Chaz Plays New Role

Most of us recognize Chaz Kenna as the amiable and informative voice of boys' sports and events on our twice weekly innercom. Many recognize him for his numerous roles in GHAW productions, and some as GHAW president. But few know of Chaz's newest interest and one that he believes has made a profound difference in his personal philosophy and life — Tang Soo Do.

This unique form of Oriental martial arts combines a philosophy of respect, self-confidence and self discipline with a rigorous program of physical and mental exercise. In Korea, people who are loved and respected for their virtuous way of life, respect and protecting of living things and devotion to family and friends as well as their gentleness and fighting ability are called Tang Soo.

Chaz has been learning and practicing Tang Soo for three months and says that as a result, "whenever I go to the studio, every problem falls away." He contends that the hard workouts purge the body and build self confidence. The workouts consist of talk, basic movements and combinations. Next, the group practices "hyung", Korean for forms which is similar to Western classical ballet in its precise movements. The final phase of each session involves practical self defense. This art form frequently expresses itself through kicks and punches.

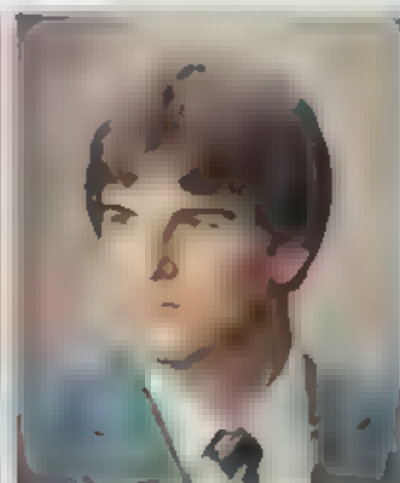

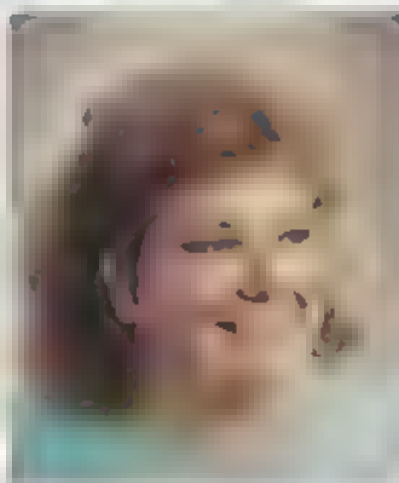

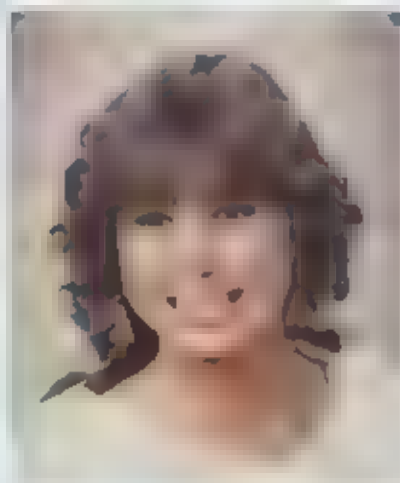

Proper diet goes hand-in-hand with this philosophy of respect for the mind and body. Chaz had little to change in his diet, however, because he was a self-proclaimed "health food nut" before he started the program.

As Chaz progresses in his mastery of Tang Soo, he expects to continue his work with the GHAW where he has been seen in such roles as Martin VanderHoff in this year's You Can't Take it With You and in his favorite role to date, Lord Faircourt Babberny in Charlie's Aunt.

Trophies Reward Tonya's Dance Efforts

After ten years of dance instruction, Tonya Gandy has gained recognition as a very talented jazz and tap dancer. She has competed regularly for the past six years or so in state amateur competitions for dance and won many prizes.

In October, Tonya and her troupe won first place in the Kar Productions' Performing Arts Competition to win the Star Showcase trophy.

Other recent routines have included one of Zut! Zut! music. Right now Tonya as well as Carrie Jacobs, a Granite Hills junior, are working on a new tap routine with Spanish music and costumes that feature capes.

Another of Tonya's specialties is a duet.

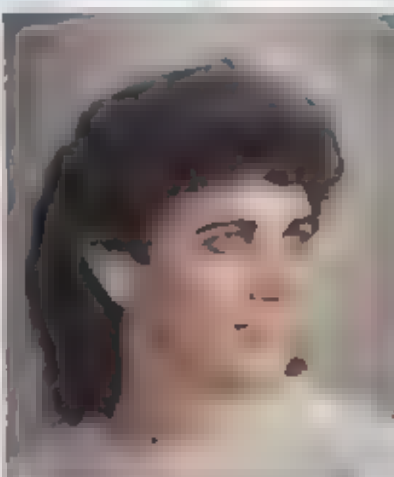

All of this devotion to dance started when Tonya was about six. Her mother took her to classes at the San Diego Dance Center on Fletcher Parkway. Tonya's been dancing ever since. Although Tonya has always enjoyed dancing for its own sake, she also admits that it was "super helpful" in her favorite school activity — cheerleading. In fact, she gets ideas at the studio to use in designing routines for the cheer squad.

When she finishes her schooling, Tonya hopes to teach kids to dance, or at least to teach.

Colorful costuming compliments the dance routines for the San Diego Dance Center troupe. Tonya Gandy, top left, is a talented member with ten years of experience.

Seniors Survive Skinner Week

During the Senior year, everyone must take Psychology. One of the projects that some of the classes participate in, is Conditioning week. Part of this conditioning includes dressing alike, just like uniforms. Each day, the teachers pick certain colors or types of clothes the students are to wear. On one of these days, students had to wear all blue; another day, students in this class had to wear brown. One other day, students had to dress up. All the females wore dresses, and the males wore ties. It was very strange to see so many people dressed up. The males especially had fun on the day the ties were supposed to be worn. Joe Mercurio even wore a fancy polka-dot tie, made out of paper.

Even with all the fun and games, the students were able to learn about one important aspect of Psychology. They were able to apply this knowledge to every day life.

Memories Will Never Fade

Many events happen during our Senior year that help us to face the real world. The very tragic death of Jenice Graf made all of us stop and think.

Students do not realize how short life really is. Each day is precious. Jenice did live each day to the fullest. Few find so many enjoyable and exciting things to do in one day. Jenice seemed to understand the meaning of life better than most students her age. One could almost hear her say, "Hey, go for it; what have you got to lose?"

Jenice had more hobbies and trips planned in four years than most people would even do in ten years. Jenice always brought along a friend. She went on numerous snow sking trips, a trip or two to Palm Springs, some desert trips, water skiing trips, trips to the beach for a weekend, and many short trips to the movies, Bobby McGee's, and Family Fun Center. On every single trip, a friend was there. She may have invited a friend, or a friend may have invited Jenice.

Jenice had many friends to do things with because she knew how to have good clean fun. Jenice believed faithfully in the saying, "If you see someone without a smile, give them one of yours." That is why Jenice always smiled. Smiling gave Jenice that approachable look that made people want to be her friend. All of Jenice's close friends, relatives, and even acquaintances will miss her dearly. But happy thoughts of Jenice's talent for making people happy brighten our memories of her.

Leaders Give Their All

Who ever said that leaders are hard to find? Here at Granite Hills, we have more than enough. We have all types of groups and committee that are very productive and fun to be in. Some of these groups led by Seniors are

Marjorie Turk	—	ASB President
Kim Betcher	—	Senior Class President
Bill Thomas	—	German Club President
Russ Oleson	—	Key Club President
Stacy Allen	—	Cheer Captain
Lance Allister, Jim Rinks	—	Co Captains of Football
Celeste Drake	—	Pageant Editor
Michelle Zehnder	—	I-Club President
Bill Thomas	—	Clarion Editor
Pat Marks	—	Drum Major
Chaz Kenna	—	GHAW President

These Seniors worked very hard trying to make 1985 spectacular. Some may have wanted to quit, but they bravely perservered in their tasks. It is both a great honor and privilege to lead the Senior class. In fact, our Senior class President, Kim Betcher is extremely excited about taking charge of the class of "85" because, "The Seniors this year are really involved and enthusiastic I'm glad we can all work together."

Our faithful class officers, Susan Hammond, Secretary; Erik Aiken, Vice President; Anh Le, Treasurer; Kim Betcher, President; Lance Allister, Senator; Steve Paris, Senator; and Toni Nosari, Senator; are relaxing at Wells Park. These students and Jim Perez, Senator (Not pictured), work very hard throughout the year to make this year the best yet at Granite Hills.

The Granite Hills Band is led by Drum Major Pat Marks. Pat has led the Band through many highly successful parades and competitions.

Chaz Kenna, President of GHAW, is conducting a very important GHAW meeting. Chaz has been a member of the drama club since 9th grade; he knows the ins and outs of the club.

President of the Key Club, Russ Olsen, gets the meeting off to a great start. This revitalized club is planning many activities this year.

Activities Spark The Year

For the class of '85, Senior activities were a big success. This year's Senior breakfast had the biggest turnout in Granite Hills history. More than a hundred and ninety two seniors, all dressed up in costumes ranging from Miss Piggy to Devo, crowded into Aunt Emmas for breakfast.

Another big event was the Senior parking lot auction. Spaces were limited and prices were high, but all the benefits went to help finance the Senior Prom. Mike Stacy had the highest bid with one hundred and twenty dollars and then bought a second space for eighty dollars to total two hundred dollars. All forty five spaces were sold for a total of more than 3,000 dollars.

Just like in fairy tales, two Senior couples lived happily ever after. This year's Mock Wedding, sponsored by the family relations class, was a picture out of a story book. Suzette De Nure, R.J. Alvarez, Theresa Arcamo, and Jim Perez were "married" in the corridors which replaced the traditional rain-soaked lawn. Many classes responded to the wedding invitations by showing up to witness the ceremonies. After wedding cake, canapes, and punch the couples "lived happily ever after" for a semester of simulated trials and joys of married life.

As we go to press, the Senior class officers continue to plan a full calendar of Senior events: the Christmas Dance in December and the Prom in June.

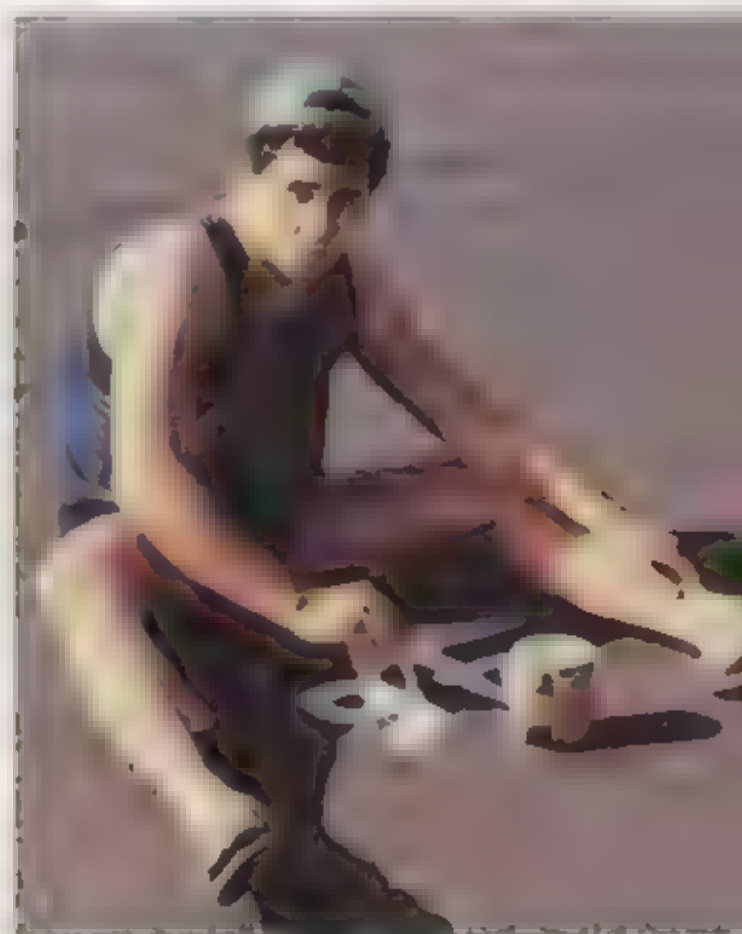

(Opposite page) The Senior Breakfast is very popular. Even a couple of Army men came to enjoy the fun and laughter.

Many seniors showed their school spirit by bidding for personal parking spaces. As one can see, many Seniors were at the auction to support this newer tradition.

The wedding of Suzette De Nure to R.J. Alvarez, and Theresa Arcamo to Jim Perez, was a very popular event. Many many classes came to see the couples get married, an event for "Seniors only" through the Family Relations class.

Senior costumes were more elaborate this year. Some interesting and fun costumes at the breakfast, were Jim Henson's Miss Piggy, Kermit, and Bert. Even a friendly skunk was there.

At first, nobody knew who she was, but the voice of Erik Rainer rang out from underneath his disguise. He and many other spirited people helped to make the Senior Breakfast a success.

Jim Perez shows his wit by painting number 46. After buying bidding for a space, the owners go to paint and personalize their own spaces.

How Did We Grow Up?

Questioningly "What are you doing taking my picture?" David Coker asks. Pageant photographers often showed up unexpectedly.

Romantically Melissa Robinson sits happily on Valentine's Day after receiving flowers from her boyfriend. The campus smelled like a flower garden on February 14.

With Pride Ernie the Eagle has lasted all these years, even in the face of terrorism, to remain the symbol of Granite Hills Eagle Pride.

Quietly After the students are gone, the stands, the hallways, and the classrooms are lonely places, empty of spirit.

1985 is Episodic Year

The news of the school year 1984-85 began much before any of the students wanted to think about going back to school on September 4.

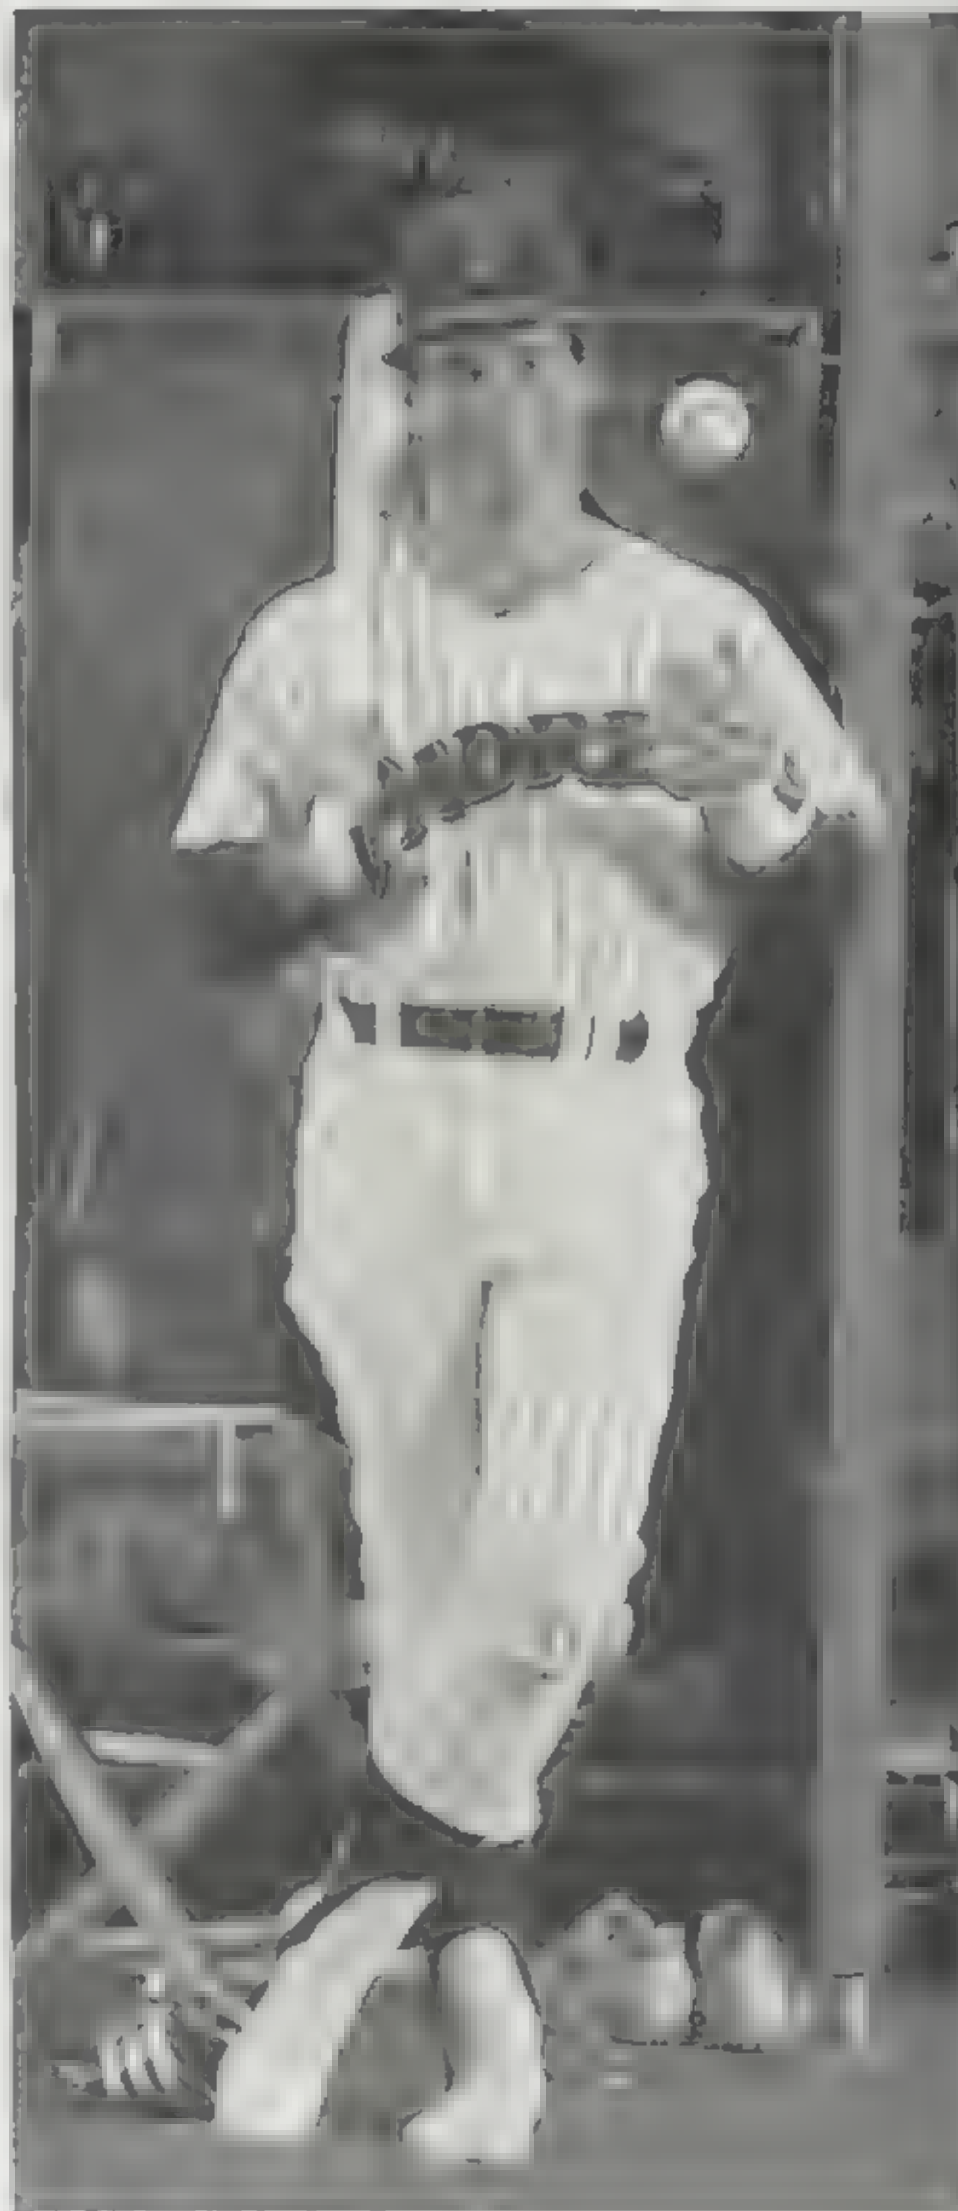

While our athletes felt the joy of victory in Los Angeles, James Huberty sought vengeance on a world he hated. Huberty entered the San Ysidro McDonald's and opened fire, killing 21 people, and physically and emotionally wounding many more.

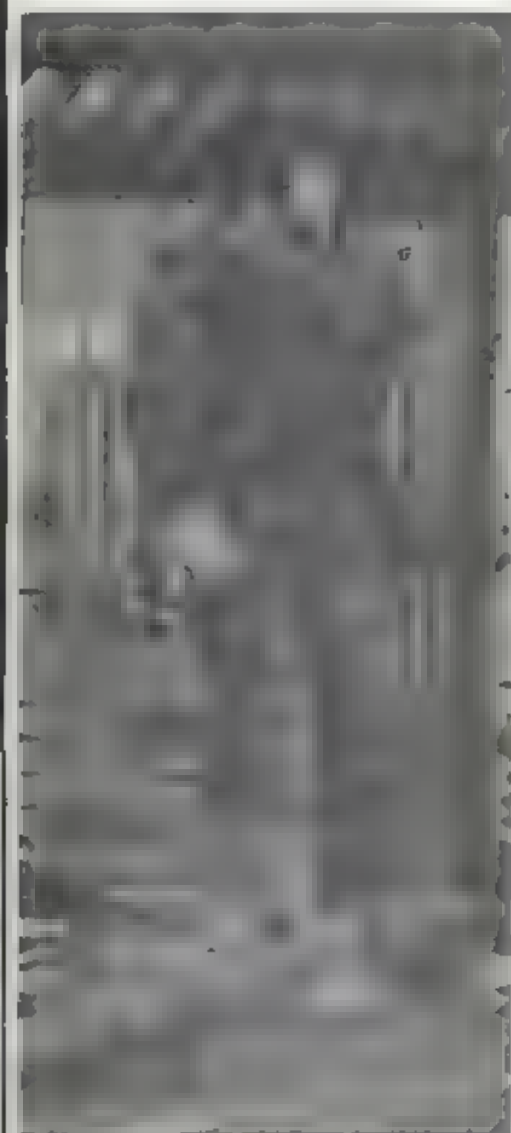

Many exciting events occurred on the campaign trail this election year. Geraldine Ferraro was the first woman from a major party nominated to run for Vice-President. Although she and Walter Mondale, the Democratic presidential candidate, lost the presidential elections to incumbents Ronald Reagan and George Bush by one of the biggest electoral vote margins ever, they made history. On the local election scene, San Diego Mayor Roger Hedgecock won his re-election bid under a cloud of controversy. He had been indicted for perjury and conspiracy, but his winter trial ended in a deadlock, with eleven jurors voting guilty and one lone city employee voting not guilty. Hedgecock will have a retrial this summer.

Industrial and natural disasters plagued the world in 1985. Mexico City endured a week-long fire caused by an underground gas explosion. The Union-Carbide plant in Bhopal, India, leaked a deadly gas that killed hundreds of unwary citizens. Ethiopia was the focus of attention for the

A member of the San Diego SWAT team tries to help the injured at the San Ysidro McDonald's where James Huberty killed 21 people. NBC wanted to make a miniseries about the tragedy, but backed down since public sentiment against it was so strong.

World-famous actor and ex-husband of Liz Taylor, Richard Burton died in late 1984.

Doctors tried desperately to save Baby Fae by giving her a human heart.

Surrounded by members of the press, Geraldine Ferraro makes her way from a campaign speech. Geraldine is now making Pepsi-commercials with her daughters.

These people and hundreds more were killed by an accident in chemical production at the American Union-Carbide plant in Bhopal, India.

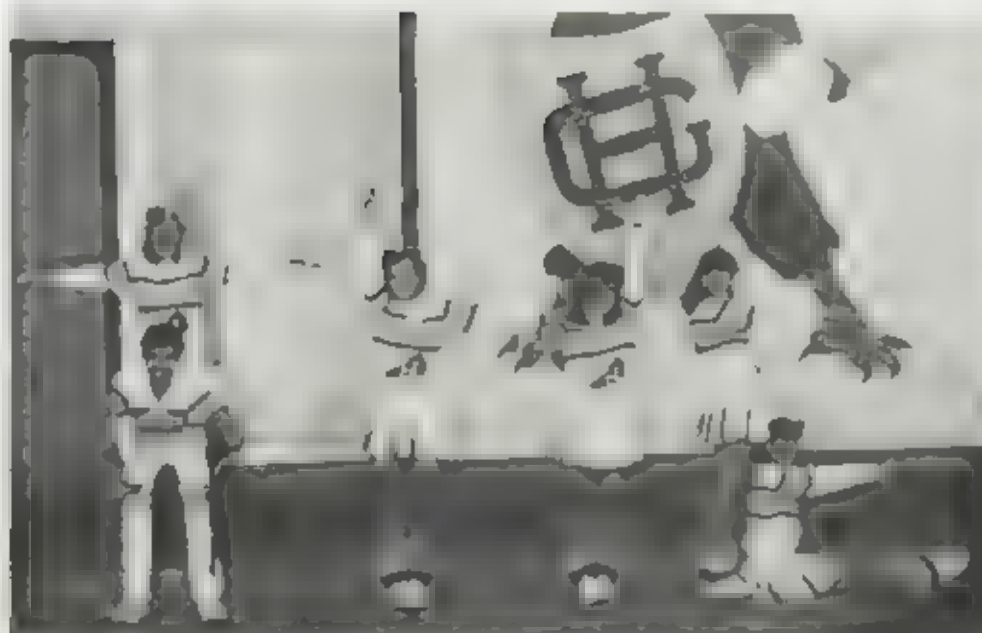

Although he was indicted for perjury and conspiracy in connection with J. David Dominelli and Nancy Hoover long before the November election, Roger Hedgecock won re-election to the position of mayor of San Diego by a decisive margin.

National Championship Series hero Steve Garvey models the 1985 Padre uniform. The Padres won the NL in 1984, the first year they've been out of the cellar.

majority of the year, however.

For the past several years the farmers of Ethiopia have been battling a drought. Now there are no farms and no food, so millions of men, women, children, and babies are starving to death, if they don't die of contagious disease first. The popular music stars of the United States and Great Britain have given generously of themselves for the starving in Ethiopia. A group of British stars, calling themselves Band-Aid, recorded "Do They Know It's Christmas" on November 25, 1984, while USA for Africa, a group including Cyndi Lauper, Michael Jackson, and Bruce Springsteen, released "We Are the World" on March 8, 1985. One hundred percent of the profits from both songs were donated to Ethiopian relief agencies.

The year 1984-1985 held somber catastrophes for many, but both the fortunate and the unfortunate showed their strengths and compassion for others in the face of adversity.

Hello, Goodbye

Well, this is it, the end of the book. If we listen to our English teachers, we should never read a book without gaining some lesson from it. If this book has no other lesson, then let it be this: Let us never close our minds to growing and learning no matter what our age.

We have all grown in some way this year, be we students, teachers, or administrators. We have shared new and exciting experiences with friends. We have suffered through the deaths of three fellow students: Chris Pain, Daniel Roderick, and Janice Graf. The Pageant would have liked to be able to pay due tribute to all three students, but no one could have predicted more than one death, and our book went to print before Chris or Dan died. We would just like to let it be known that all three students were equally loved and respected by those who knew them. May they rest in peace.

Through thick and thin, we have survived another year. That in itself is a great accomplishment for every one of us. We should be proud.

The annual staff of 84-85 has given their absolute all to make this the best yearbook ever. We've tried new methods and let our creativity flow. Congratulations to Mrs. Lynne Cronyn for producing another quality yearbook. The photographers for the Pageant deserve special congratulations for their long hours after school and last minute assignments: Al Guerra, Jerry Keyes, Ty Alexander, Tanya Koll, Deanna Ripley, Chuck Serna, Andy Butz, and Dave Chrotowski. John Stickney and the entire Boyd Anderson staff were also instrumental in helping us meet our deadlines and keeping our picture quality high.

As the editor, I have worked many hours helping others, and by myself, to make sure that all the details are just right. I would like to dedicate all my work in this book to my father, whom I loved very much and who passed away during New Years.

The Class of 85 would like to thank our counselor, Mr. Stull, and our advisor, Mrs. Brooks, and all our teachers for their support. From the Class of 85: Goodbye and Good Luck, Granite Hills. And from myself and the Pageant staff: Thank you

The Varsity Cheerleaders The End" of the book. These girls and guys promoted school pride all year long.

Senior Class President Kari Hetscher waves goodbye to her alma mater. June is the month the seniors will say their goodbyes, but every September will bring in new students to greet with hello.
